Solanco Fair opens in sunshine

Doug Hershberger, 17, took the senior division showmanship honors at the Holstein competition Thursday at Solanco with junior division award going to Lorri Rutt, 11, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rutt.

BY PAT KAUFFMAN

QUARRYVILLE — The Solanco Fair opened Wednesday under sunshine and colored breed dairy and sheep competition kicked off the livestock judging.

The traditional opening parade was held Wednesday evening in warm weather, with swarms of people packing this small town to watch business and youth groups vie for prizes.

Donald Eckman, R1 Peach Bottom, exhibited the Grand Champion Holstein Thursday at the Solanco Fair. The cow, a 5 year old purchased last fall at the Maurice Welk dispersal, was according to the judge not in the bloom of milk, but exhibited body and strength.

This show Eckman said will be the last for the animal until after she freshens, perhaps the Farm Show will be her next outing.

An interesting sidelight is the cow — Lo Pine Astro Midge, an Astronaut daughter classified excellent — brings to 7 the number of Welk bred or owned animals winning the championship at this fair in the last 8 years, according to Maurice Welk.

Eckman said she'll finish her current lactation at over 20,000 pounds of milk.

Reserve grand champion honors in the open competition went to Bob Wenger, who exhibited his senior reserve champion cow. Wenger's cow was also named second place in the best udder competition.

In showmanship and fitting competition, Doug Hershberger, 17, took the 13 year and older division blue, with Lorri Rutt, 11, daughter of Kenneth Rutt, Quarryville, taking the 12 and under blue.

Lehigh Valley Co-op asks end to PMMB price fixing

BY VIVIAN PAUL
Staff Correspondent

ALLENTOWN — Lehigh Valley Farms has called for an end to milk price regulations by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board.

Dairy officials last week suggested that legislation be enacted to eliminate the board's ability to set minimum prices that dealers charge supermarkets and stores charge consumers.

The proposed changes would have no effect on prices paid farmers, Lehigh said.

The statement was part of testimony by Robert P. Barry, president of Atlantic Processing, Inc., which trades under the name, "Lehigh Valley Farms." It was presented at a hearing to set new milk prices for the Philadelphia suburbs.

Lehigh Valley Farm's testimony was made by Harold Masteller, vice president of its dairy division.

Barry called price fixing an "archaic example of accepted govenrment control."

"It gets in the way of free enterprise, the foundation of the American economic system," he said.

"It's supposed to control the market place, but it doesn't. Let prices seek their own level, with the Milk Marketing Board just making sure that dealers don't sell below their costs."

The primary impact of the proposed change would be among milk dealers themselves.

"Unfortunately," Barry said, "the board now sets minimum prices based on costs of average dealers. This often means inefficient dealers are subsidized by the consumer, while efficient dealers are restricted from being competitive."

One area cited by Barry which deregulation would involve is that of school milk.

"School milk pricing is an outrage," Barry said.

"There is no competitive bidding and prices are much higher than they should be. Some dealers are profiteering and school kids in Pennsylvania are being gouged to the tune of millions of dollars annually."

Earl Fink, executive secretary of the PMMB, disagreed with Barry's assessment of the situation.

"School milk carries a lower price than out-of-school packages," he said.

He added that the dairy

Musselman plans to irrigate processing water

Farmers protest waste irrigation

BY SHEILA MILLER

ARENDTSVILLE — Farmers and land owners in Franklin Township, Adams County are protesting plans of a large fruit processor to irrigate plant waste water on 120 acres of orchard land located here.

"We're concerned about the potential pollution to our creeks and wells," said Roger Sprague, a dairy farmer who rents land directly downstream from the proposed irrigation site.

Sprague explained how about 70 local people recently met to protest the plans of Musselman's fruit processing plant, now a division of Pet Milk and Illinois Central Industries.

"I suppose you could say we want to stop the possibility of pollution. If we have to, we'll stop the system until we gain some assurances that there won't be any problems," Sprague remarked.

The dairy farmers and other area land owners are concerned that a problem that is currently affecting the Conewago Creek in nearby Biglerville will be transfered to Mummasburg Run near Arendtsville, said Sprague.

He explained that Musselman's received word from the state's Department of Environmental Resources that the pollution of Conewago Creek, which runs past their Biglerville plant in Butler Township, must be stopped by August 1, 1981.

To do this, the industry is planning to pump their waste water — water used to wash the raw fruit before it is processed — to their orchard land near Arendtsville. The water will then be spray irrigated on the land.

Local dairy farmers, who's cows and heifers drink from Mummasburg Run, are concerned that once the irrigation begins the water will no longer be fit to drink — a situation that occured elsewhere in the county.

However, before Musselman can begin this process of disposing of their waste water, they must secure a permit from DER. Their application, which was submitted in August, has not yet been approved.

According to DER's Jim Donato, facilities chief for the Harrisburg Regional Office, the application lacked some needed information.

One vital piece of information that was not submitted by Mussleman, he said, was an analysis of the waste water. "It's their responsibility to provide that information — the burden of proof rests with them."

Donato explained his department has not been testing Musselman's plant water to date. However, they are running their standard tests on a neighboring plant that has been irrigating their waste water for the past 15 years.

"We look at the water's pH, its five-day BOD (oxygen content), and its suspended solids, ammonia and nitrogen levels," Donato said. However, he noted, his agency does not test for

Will there be breeding swine at Farm Show?

HARRISBURG — With four new cases of pseudorabies having been identified within the past two weeks in Lebanon County, the question of whether there will be breeding swine at the 1981 Pennsylvania Farm Show remains unanswered.

The final recommendation on whether or not to lift the moratorium rests with Dr. Max A. Van Buskirk Jr., director of the Bureau of Animal Industry in Pennsylvania. He announced he will be finalizing his advice to the Farm Show Commission on September 29.

At the present time, tests are being run to trace the point of origin of the most recent outbreaks in Lebanon County.

Dr. John Cable, also with BIA, reported that the animals with pseudorabies were detected through packer slaughter checks. While the trace back procedures are being completed, the herds in question have been quarantined, he said.

Farm Show Director Hugh Coffman said the final decision on whether to have a bred gilt show and sale will be announced on October 1.

"We're wanting to let the decision ride until the last possible moment because we don't feel we can honestly make a decision until then," Coffman said. He noted the Commission will be working closely with BIA and the Secretary of Agriculture, Penrose Hallowell.

"I understand that this is an inconvenience for swine breeders," he added "We want to have the show but we are concerned about the health of the animals exhibited."—SM

Mushroom growers fight fines, criminal charges

BY CURT HARLER

PHILADELPHIA — Legal briefs are due next month in a Chester County mushroom firm's fight to be recognized as a part of agriculture.

Guido and Jim Frezzo and their corporation, Frezzo Brothers, Inc., are faced with fines totalling $100,000. Each of the brothers also faces a 30-day prison sentence in a federal case charging them with violation of the U.S. Water Pollution Control Act.

Even deeper than the fines and jail term is the underlying question of whether the government has the right to require growers to make large financial investments to correct pre-existing conditions when new laws are passed.

The Frezzos' attorney, Thomas Carroll of the Philadelphia law firm of Carroll and Carroll, is handling the Frezzos' attempt to overturn their earlier conviction and fines.

The Frezzo case dates back to the 1970s. At that time the brothers were found guilty of violations of the federal water pollution standards. Their mushroom

Sharing money-making ideas in milk production.

When it comes to dairy farming a little learning can be a profitable thing. Milk production can soar. Butterfat can jump higher. Profits can increase. That's why Pennfield spends so much time educating its own Penn Pro salesmen as well as dairy farmers in the latest nutritional, herd health, and farm management developments. These educational programs are, of course, an excellent supplement to the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. And here's how the service works: 1. We collect samples of your forage. 2. Then we evaluate the quality of your forage. We determine the total digestible nutrients. The fiber content. The protein content. The amount of carbohydrates. 3. The computer quickly spots any nutrients lacking in the forage. For your milking cows. And for your dry cows. It immediately points out the overfeeding of nutrients. Underfeeding, too. Both, of course, may be different at different times of the year. And the printout will tell you what you need. And when. 4. Your Penn Pro Professional advises you on the quantity and type of nutrients that should be added, to balance your total feeding program to your cows nutritional requirements.

Try the Pennfield Computerized Total Ration Service. For better milk yields. For better profits. There's no cost or obligation. Just phone us today at Pennfield Feeds. Local calls: Lancaster 299-2561, Red Lion 244-4511. In 717 and 215 areas dial toll-free 800-732-0467. Pennfield Feeds, Rohrerstown Road, Lancaster, PA 17604.

Lancaster Farming says...

What price milk marketing freedom?

Lehigh Valley Farms has called for an end to milk price fixing by the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board.

It should come as no surprise that Lehigh Valley Farms, one of the area's larger cooperatives, also is one of the state's largest milk dealers.

Any such move would free up competition in the dairy industry. And Lehigh is banking its future on some innovative ideas, including expansion of markets and successful promotion of its own brand name advertising.

What Lehigh and its sister business Atlantic Processing, Inc. want is legislation to eliminate PMMB's ability to set minimum prices that dealers charge supermarkets and stores charge consumers.

If nothing else, API President Robert Barry rocked the Pennsylvania milk marketing boat when he called for a system to let milk prices seek their own level.

The only qualification Barry's statement included was one which would allow PMMB to be sure milk dealers don't sell below their costs.

There's plenty of meat for discussion in the proposal.

In many dairymen's minds, such a move will throw API and associates into the same group as the CNI folks who want to get rid of federal milk marketing orders for much the same reason: less government control and a free-floating milk price.

Two questions need to be answered: Is Lehigh trying to float the crest of the popular consumerist fads to free up milk markets? And, if accepted, would Lehigh's proposal help only Lehigh Valley Farms or would it be a benefit to all Pennsylvania dairy farmers?

The ultimate reason for both federal orders and PMMB's price fixing power can be summed up in two words: 'stable market'.

The powers-that-be have held a stable market up as the most desirable of situations for dairy farmers. A stable market, we are reminded, means a steady flow of good milk to consumers at a reasonable cost.

It would be nice if the system always worked, but it doesn't. The fault is not the Milk Marketing Board's, but the system which it must manage.

Lehigh estimates 60 percent of the milk sold in Pennsylvania is tolled. Tolling allows milk to be processed at a negotiated fee.

Individual farmers jug milk on their own farms, legally getting around minimum price rules and making good profits in the bargain.

School milk pricing as well as store pricing varies widely from one end of the state to the other, often with little apparent reason. Lehigh says

Stable markets mean the farmer can be fairly sure of a milk pickup every few days. It means the farmer can offer the bank some market security.

Stable markets also put a lid on prices the farmer can expect at the farm.

In grabbing for stable markets the farmer must let go any hold on a cherished free market economy. The farmer gives up the right to sell his product at open bid.

The farmer says Washington or Harrisburg knows better what a reasonable price is for milk than the producer does.

In short, the farmer trades his right to a free market for the security of a guaranteed sale. The cost of our stable markets is paid at the price of individual freedom.

It's a bargain most dairymen, until now, have seemed willing to accept. Are the times changing?

THE SACRED MOUNTAIN

September 21, 1980

Background Scripture:
Exdous 2:23 through 3:14; 19:1-19.
Devotional Reading:
Jeremiah 17:7-13.

To Abraham, God had made some extravagant promises of what he would do with and for Abraham's descendents. When generations later God comes to Moses leading the people of Israel in the wilderness of Sinai, he begins his talk of the covenant, not with promises, but with declarations that he has been true to the commitment he had made: "You have seen what I did to the Egyptians, and how I bore you on eagles' wings and brought you to myself" (19:4).

NOW THEREFORE...

Thus the convenant which God offers to the people through Moses begins with the reminders of what God has already done for his people. Abraham had had only a promise from God, but Moses and the Israelites had seen that promise vindicated in their own lives.

It is because of this that God also now begins to enlarge upon what he wants in return: "Now therefore, if you will obey my voice and keep my covenant, you shall be my own possession among all peoples" (19:5). Because God has followed them with a special providence, he also expects from them a special relationship: "...you shall be to me a kingdom of priests and a holy nation" (19:6).

It is a great responsibility, but when Moses explains it to the Israelites there is no hesitation for them to make the commitment God seeks: "All that the Lord has spoken we will do"(17:8). Good has made his eloquent offer and his people have readily accepted. There will be an expanded covenant between God and his people under Moses.

SET BOUNDS FOR THE PEOPLE

But that was not to be the end of it. This new covenant between God and his people needed a solemn occasion by which this agreement would be fully etched upon the hearts and minds of the people. And this is where ritual entered in: by means of ritual the covenant was dramatized for the people's benefit. There were three main elements to this ritual: prepare for the institution of the covenant: "Go to the people and consecrate them today and tomorrow, and let them wash their garments..." (19:11). By these acts the people would better realize that they were being set apart for a special relationship.

Secondly, God himself would appear before the people, coming in fire and smoke and a thundering voice from the mountain. It was not enough for Moses to assure them that he had talked with God; the time had come when the people had to see it for themselves.

And finally, "you shall set bounds for the people round about, saying, "Take heed that you do not go up into the mountain or touch the border of it; whoever touches the mountain shall be put to death" (19:12). There has to be some sacred place or experience in our midst, a place where we do not defile with easy familiarity. There needs to be an experience of the awesome "otherness" of God that both sobers and deepens our covenant relationship.

TO PREPARE FOR WINTER

The other morning when the thermometer dropped into the forties, and you could see your breath in the cold air, it reminded me that winter is approaching. This usually means colder weather and higher fuel costs. What have you done to reduce energy needs in your home or heated buildings? The Penn State Engineers say there are dozens of things that can be done to cut down fuel costs; however, most of us do not take the time to eliminate the hot air leaks. The place to start might be storm doors and windows, insulation, caulking, and sealing. Many homes and buildings were constructed while fuel costs were much lower. Now it is important to invest in these energy-saving practices to reduce mounting fuel costs. We urge some attention to these practices before freezing weather arrives. Your check book will benefit from your efforts.

TO LIME GROUND FOR WINTER GRAINS

Soil testing is a good practice at any time of the year but applying the needed lime before seeding winter barley or wheat is a very good practice. The small grain will yield better and if the area is to be seeded down to a legume mixture, the lime will have time to sweeten the soil. Some farmers will apply the lime on top of the grain next spring. This is not a good practice and legume failures might be the result. Give the lime a chance to work in the topsoil for several months before the alfalfa or clover are seeded. Soil testing in the fall is strongly recommended in preparing for next season's crops.

TO PLAN HOME FIRE ESCAPES

Do you have a definite escape plan for your family in case of fire during the night? Home fires are blamed for disabling or killing thousands of people each year. Most of these might be avoided by having smoke detectors with a rehearsed home fire escape plan. To some folks this might seem unnecessary, but families with youngsters should take this suggestion seriously and give it some attention. Work out a home fire escape plan for each room in the house; this is especially needed for youngsters and for bedrooms. Make sure windows and door can be quickly opened. Show youngsters how to break glass in windows or doors with a chair leg. Some families might have fire ropes or ladders for escape to a deck, roof, or the

Tribute to Dutch Bucher

REAMSTOWN — Floyd S. "Dutch" Bucher, Lancaster County's first extension agent and the rugged individual likely most responsible for today's modern and diversified agricultural industry in the county, died this week.

Although Dutch officially retired in 1949 after 36 years as agent, he continued to serve the land and its people he admired and respected.

His trademark was the motorcycle he used to get from farm to farm. Actually, he wore out more than 40 of the vehicles and estimated he logged more than 1½ million miles.

Six days a week, Dutch and his cycle would visit farms. On the afternoon of the seventh day, he would ride 100 to 150 miles over back roads to take in the quiet countryside and to avoid the fumes on the main roads.

Many were his achievments – starting the artificial breeding program in the county, getting farmers to adopt soil conservation and personally collecting seed samples, which led to the development of Lancaster Surecrop seed corn – one of the 18 original corn hybrid ancestors.

He relished telling this story about artificial breeding in the early days:

"I visited one county farm and talked my head off (in Dutch naturally) for two hours before the farmer said he would give it a try. But first he had to ask his wife if it was alright. Finally, they came out and the wife spoke:

"We've talked this whole thing over, Dutch Bucher, and we've decided we'll go along with it only if you'll promise it will be kept just to the cows."

Once in his hometown, a public auction was being held to sell a four-room school building. Some community-minded citizens wanted to buy it as a recreation center, but the bidding soon got beyond their means.

A recess was called. When bidding was resumed, their was a new bidder. It was Dutch Bucher. He didn't stop nodding his head resolutely until he bought that building for $6,260. The deed was legally enacted in the name of the trustees of the adjoining community park.

Dutch was a hard-headed Dutchman when he wanted to be.

But he always had the land, its people and Lancaster County at heart.

Dutch Bucher — a very informal servant of the land and its people.

Grange leader pessimistic about mushroom relief

FLEETWOOD — At a meeting with a group of approximately 50 Berks County mushroom growers, Robert Frederick, Legislative Director of the National Grange, expressed "doubt" that President Carter would come to the aid of the domestic mushroom grower by placing import restrictions on mushrooms.

"Even if Carter adopted the minority opinion of the International Trade Commission," Frederick said, "the restrictions would only last five years. What you growers need is permanent protection."

The minority opinion was advanced by Commissioner Moore, who suggested imports be limited to 78 million pounds for the next two years, then 86 million pounds the following year, 94 million pounds the next year, and 103 million pounds the final year.

The majority opinion of the Trade Commission called for the restrictions of the final three years of the Moore proposal. This plan would only extend for three years.

Frederick reported to the growers it was the opinion of the Special Trade Representative's Office that growers use this "grace period" to make their industry more efficient so they might be able to compete.

He went on to say there were other alternatives if satisfaction could not be gained from the President.

"There are three alternatives we are looking into at the present time: price supports, marketing orders, and permanent legislative restrictions.

If mushrooms were under a price support program, Frederick noted, Section 22 of the Agriculture Act would require them to be protected by import restrictions. Also under this plan, domestic growers would be guaranteed a minimum price for their product."

Marketing orders was another alternative being studied by National Grange. "We still don't know if that idea will work or not."

Under the legislative restriction alternative, Frederick cautioned the Berks County group of "possible protectionist action from other commodity groups" who might be concerned about possible retaliations.

Rod Fisher, representing Congressman Yatron's office, stated that the proposals on marketing orders and price supports were "unique". He later pledged Congressman Yatron's "total support in finding a solution for the domestic mushroom problem."

Representative Lester Fryer, who also was in attendance, noted that the United States was being "very careless about its own industries". He compared the mushroom industry to the steel and automobile industries, saying the United States could no longer afford to ignore what foreign products were doing to domestic markets.

State Grange Master Charles Wismer, who opened the Fleetwood meeting, revealed the fact that the United States government had created this situation. "The way these people across the ocean got started in this business was with U.S. tax dollars.

"They came to this country, financed by the U.S. government, studied American operations, and took our knowledge home with them. Now it's coming home to roost."

Broiler placements shoot up

HARRISBURG — Placements of broiler chicks in the Commonwealth during the week ending September 6 totaled 2,219,000, thirteen percent above the corresponding week a year ago, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service. The placements were one percent below the previous week.

Average placements during the past nine weeks in Pennsylvania were two percent above a year earlier.

Placements of broiler chicks in the 21 key poultry producing states during the week were 73,401,000. The placements were one percent above the previous week, but two percent above the same week a year earlier.

Average placements in the 21 states during the past nine weeks were four percent below a year earlier.

Broiler fryers slaughtered in Pennsylvania under federal inspection during the week ending August 27 totaled 1,936,000, with an average liveweight of 3.99 pounds.

"Harvestall Chillcuring works. I get big energy savings and I don't have to babysit a dryer."

DAN KOLB, Spring City, Pa.

This is my third year with the Harvestall system, and I've found it to be ideal for my setup. I've harvested corn at 30% with no problem. The thing I really like about the Harvestall is that I don't have to babysit a dryer. I can fill it and forget it. Plus there are really no major moving parts to wear out or break down.

"I can cure down 26%-30% corn for around 6¢ to 8¢ a bushel. 24%-25% would run considerably less.

"The way the Harvestall works is simple and effective. As for those who are skeptical, it's like the bumble bee: according to scientists he's not supposed to be able to fly. But he's too dumb to know it, so he flies anyway. So regardless of what anyone says, the Harvestall system works. It works for me and I'm happy with it. I do recommend the Harvestall for its economy and for its considerable savings on energy."

HARVESTALL

The Harvestall Chillcuring System

It's simple When grain comes out of the field it's a living seed So instead of destroying the seed with high heat, moisture is removed with natural air ventilation The grain keeps all its feed value; there is less shrinkage than with heat drying because only moisture is removed, not dry matter You'll never see white dust in chillcured corn. You actually save half of what you're used to losing in heat shrink

There's no oil or gas to buy Natural air carries away heat and moisture as the corn releases it

Harvestall Chillcuring is a "back-to-basics" system that just simply makes good sense Find out more about it.

Eastern seeks complete investigation of any Leprino-crime ties

SYRACUSE, N.Y. — Howard McDonald, General Manager of Eastern Milk Producers, has called for a complete and thorough investigation of any possible links between Leprino Foods Company of Denver, Colorado and organized crime.

McDonald's request came in response to recent newspaper stories implying that Arizona police believed that there are connections between Leprino and Joseph Bonanno, Sr. of Phoenix.

Eastern and Leprino are involved in a twenty-year agreement calling for Eastern to own and finance two mozzarella cheese plants in Horseheads, New York and South Waverly, Penna.

The agreement also provides for an exclusive milk supply contract under which Eastern would supply Leprino over the twenty-year period with approximately 600 million pounds of milk annually.

McDonald said "I am getting sick of continued newspaper and magazine reports full of suggestions, half-truths and innuendos about Eastern or Leprino having connections with the mafia. The 4000 members of Eastern are not going to stand idly by and continue to be subjected to this kind of unwarranted attack".

He said further that both Eastern and Leprino would welcome the investigation by any appropriate agency having authority, whether it be the Department of Agriculture and Markets, a state legislative committee, congressional committee or the state crime task force. The important thing, he said, was that it be a responsible agency that would come up with a definite conclusion.

"It is too serious a matter to be tried in the newspapers or left unsettled", stressed the Co-op leader.

McDonald said he would prefer to have any hearings or investigation as public as possible so that everyone will know the truth.

Let's bring everything out in the open and settle it once and for all. Neither Eastern nor Leprino has anything to hide." he said.

McDonald reported that Leprino has previously been investigated several times and has always come up clean. There have been FBI checks as well as a thorough investigation by the Pinkerton Agency, authorized by the A.G. Edwards Company, an investment firm which Eastern had hired to place the financing for the cheese plant project.

In addition, McDonald said, "The FmHA application process, itself, calls for FBI checks of both Eastern and Leprino and the principals of each company."

In regard to Eastern's application for a $20 million loan guarantee from the Farmers Home Administration, McDonald said he had talked Thursday of this week directly with the Washington office of FmHA and was told the application was being evaluated and processed on schedule.

He said James Flickinger, Senior Loan Officer stated that, "As yet, the application has neither been approved, disapproved or delayed."

Flickinger reported, according to McDonald, that, "There was some additional evaluation to be made but that, all in all, the attitude here is very positive".

McDonald also reported arrangements for the placement of the cheese plant financing is moving ahead satisfactorily. A preliminary draft of a detailed loan agreement with the AMMC Funding Corporation was reviewed at a recent board meeting.

He said, "I expect the loan agreement will be finalized and executed later this month".

BIG FARM POWER AND EQUIPMENT

SEE US BEFORE YOU BUY A FOUR-WHEEL DRIVE

There are other four-wheel drive tractors. But Steiger is preferred here in the East by more farmers farming more than 1000 acres than all the other 200 plus drawbar HP four wheel drive tractors combined. Why? The answer is simple. Steiger Tractors have been proving themselves in the fields of Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Maryland and Delaware for the past six years.

Steiger Tractors are dependable, like a Farmall M. Steiger uses rugged components designed for construction equipment. Engines such as Cat and Cummins. Drive-line components such as Spicer and Allison. Steiger uses plate steel for their hoods, not fiberglass. Steiger guarantees its drive-line components for 2-years. Steiger Tractors we sell are backed-up by Hoober Service Specialists and a stand-by-tractor.

Steiger Tractors save fuel, like a Volkswagon Rabbit. Steiger's simple drive train converts a larger percentage of engine HP to the drawbar than other 4-wheel drive tractors. Steiger's drive train efficiency translates into more work performed per gallon of fuel than the others. Our experience with large tillage equipment enables us to match the proper tillage tool to the proper tractor for your particular operation. Less slippage means increased efficiency.

Steiger Tractors are comfortable like a Lincoln Continental. Steiger's Safari Cab is quieter than other 200 plus HP four-wheel drive tractors. They are roomy and the large contoured seat takes the torture out of those long spring days. Air-conditioning and an AM-FM stereo tape player are standard equipment.

Steiger Tractors are priced like a Chevrolet. Price a Steiger by the pound, by the drawbar HP, or by the acre. Then compare. You'll see you can afford this Cadilac of four-wheel drive tractors.

pesticide derivitives or heavy metal content.

"We haven't asked for an analysis of the pesticides and metals primarily because this waste water comes from food processing. As far as the fruit is concerned, the ag department takes care of that," he added.

According to Penn State's Robert Cunningham, a soils expert, DER should have an analysis of the heavy metals that might be present because they could interfere with crops grown on irrigated land.

"Cadmium and lead, or any nonessential elements have shown in the past that they could be accumulated in fruit. Once cadmium enters the food chain, it's difficult to get out.

"If food that contains this element is eaten over long periods of time, it has been shown to interfere with the body's metabolic processes, causing a syndrome liver disease," Cunningham explained.

Theoretically, he said, it would be possible for the elements to concentrate in the plant's wash water, and then be taken up by the trees and fruit after the water is sprayed on the land.

If there are no heavy metals, virus, disease or pesticides present in the water, Cunningham commented, the spreading of the waste water on the soil would be beneficial to crop production.

However he noted the rate of application would have to be strictly monitored.

"If the water is acidic, the irrigation process would make the soils more acid — making it essential to apply more lime.

"And care would have to be taken not to saturate the soil. This would lead to water logged soils that would drown the trees; and there would be a problem with the water channeling and running off the sloping land rather than soaking in."

As far as ground water contamination goes, the Penn State professor noted that studies have proven that when there is 3 to 4 feet of soil for the water to filter through, there is little chance of contamination.

"In graduate student studies here at the university, we've looked at application rates of 1-2 inches and have found that 1 inch applied during the growing season is optimum for the soil and safety.

"You have to understand that with a 1 inch application rate, you are adding 30 inches of water to the soil in addition to the 40 inches of normal rainfall.

"In our studies, we have found that after 5 to 10 years of application at this rate, the soils show evidence of wetness.

"I personally don't see anything wrong with irrigating the fruit processing water as long as there are no contaminants in the process — I wouldn't imagine there would be because we're talking about products used for food.

"Spreading the water on the soil will allow crops to use the nutrients in the water, while the organic matter in it will improve the soil's tilth.

"I think these organic wastes should be encouraged to be spread on the land — we can't keep them in one little barrel," Cunningham concluded.

One Adams County farmer who has been farming land owned by Knouse Foods which has been irrigated for the past 15 years claims that the artificial water on the land is "terrific".

Stanley Wolfe has been farming the Knouse land for the past six years. He commented that the 34-38 inches of artificial water that was sprayed on his corn fields this year has made the difference between his yield of about 80 bushels to the acre of almost perfect corn to the county's average of 6-15 bushels to the acre.

Wolfe noted, however, that before he was farming the land there were problems. "The runoff was terrible — cattle wouldn't drink the water in the local streams."

All this changed, he said, because he started planting corn on the fields. "The corn pulled the water out of the ground. I'd be leery of putting it on land unless it was corned to take out the moisture."

Wolfe explained the 50 acres of irrigated land he's farming is an Arendtsville silt loam. He said he plows it one year and chisels it the next in order to break up the ground so that the water can soak in.

He also noted there are diversions on the land to carry most of the water that runs off back to a holding pond where it is stored.

Wolfe admitted they "over did it" last year when they applied 50 inches of artificial water during a naturally wet year. That was just too much, he said.

As far as what's in the water, Wolfe said it's "industrial waste water" which he believes contains insecticides. He noted that DER works with Knouse Foods on the application.

According to Roger Sprague, he and the 300 citizens who have signed a petition against the proposed irrigation plan in Franklin Township are aware of the Knouse Foods irrigation fields. However they remain concerned about the contamination of Mummasburg Run which flows into Marsh Creek, the water supply for the Borough of Gettysburg.

"The company processes food until January and February. What will happen when they irrigate their waste water on frozen ground? And what about times when the rainfall is excessive?"

Sprague voiced his apprehensions when he remarked he's heard some rumors that the Knouse Food waste water program was not doing well. "What I hear doesn't make me more confident in the Musselman plan."

When Kenneth Lawver of the Pet Milk company was asked about their proposed irrigation plan at the Musselman plant, he said "We have no information available on the irrigation. And we don't care to have any information published until our application is completed."

Before DER approves the permit application, there will be a public hearing, said Jim Donato. He added that it has not been scheduled at the present time because the application was not complete.

Sprague commented that the permit hearing would allow the public to take issue with the proposed plans if there were not adequate precautions to control pollution and odor. He said the protest group's attorney has discussed the possibilities of requiring the company to file a bond.

Representing the group is Harrisburg attorney Michael Davis, also the legal representative of the York County organization OUCH (Opposing Unnecessary Chemical Hazards), citizens fighting a chemical dump near Seven Valleys.

"We would prefer the processing plant upgrade its filtration system to the point where the waste water can be discharged right into the creek at the Biglerville plant," said Sprague.

He compared the 240,000 gallons per day of waste water involved in the Musselman plant to a comparable amount handled by Holly Milk Cooperative's processing plant where he ships his milk.

"DER required us to upgrade our treatment of waste water so that we can discharge into the stream at the milk plant," he said. "The latest estimates show that the plant with modifications will run just under $1 million. That's what it will cost Musselman to pump their water from Biglerville to Arendtsville and then irrigate it."

In closing Sprague said, "We don't know what we're getting into . . . but we have a right to know as residents just what Musselman's plans are and what type of impact they will have on us and our farms.

"I've done a lot of soul searching when asked how I would feel if Musselman had to close down because of this issue. I'm sure I don't want to see that happen. But, I think it's been proven, we don't need industry regardless of what."

Seminar in horse anatomy tonight

COLLEGE PARK, Md. — Some novel concepts on understanding the anatomy of horses will be presented this evening at a seminar on the University of Maryland campus in College Park.

The speaker will be James R. Rooney, DVM, of New Castle, Del. His topic will be "Biomechanics of the Horse — Normal and Abnormal."

Dr. Rooney is a veterinary pathologist for ICI Americas, Inc., at Wilmington, Del., and an adjunct professor at the New Bolton center of the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine near Kennett Square, Pa.

His appearance is being sponsored by the Cooperative Extension Service at the University of Maryland and the Maryland Farriers Association. The meeting will run from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. in the Fire Fighters room at the Center of Adult Education on the western edge of the College Park campus.

All interested persons are invited to attend, according to Dr. Edwin E. Goodwin, Extension horse specialist at the University of Maryland. There will be a $4 registration fee, payable at the door.

Dr. Goodwin noted that the guest speaker's inquisitive mind and vast experience have put him in the spotlight of progressive and sometimes controversial concepts. His presentation is expected to be a critical, analytical and indepth study of how horses are built and how they move. It will also cover stress location and degree, performance, soundness and unsoundness.

Farm fieldwork, vegetable harvest continue

HARRISBURG — The 1980 summer weather patterns continued their course during the week ending September 15, bringing rain to western sections of the state and only a few scattered showers in the eastern region, according to the Pennsylvania Crop Reporting Service.

In all, six days were rated suitable for fieldwork throughout the Commonwealth, with farm activities centering on harvesting of potatoes, tomatoes, corn for grain and tobacco; baling hay and straw; fall plowing; filling silos; and general farm chores.

Harvest of apples and peaches is continuing, with peach harvest winding down. Sweet corn harvest is also in its closing stages. Tomato harvest continues, and late cabbage sizing is poor in drought affected areas.

Potato harvest was 51 percent complete statewide compared to 54 percent a year ago. Northern operators reported potato harvest at 54 percent, central operators reported harvest at 52 percent and operators in the south reported harvest at 47 percent complete.

Pennsylvania soils are still rated mostly short to adequate statewide, with the weekly rainfall ranging from less than 0.5 inch in most eastern and central areas to 1.0 to 2.0 inches in western sections. Isolated areas in the west received up to 3.7 inches during the week.

Northern farmers rated soil as 54 percent short in moisture and 42 percent adequate. Central region soils stand at 89 percent short and 11 percent adequate while southern soils are rated at 85 percent short and 15 percent adequate.

Silage corn harvest stands at 33 percent completed statewide compared to 14 percent a year ago.

Throughout the Commonwealth, corn for grain is 56 percent in dent, 17 percent mature and less than five percent harvested. A year ago, the corn crop was 51 percent in dent and only five percent mature. Over the past five years, the corn crop averaged 55 percent in dent, 12 percent mature, and less than five percent harvested.

Harvest of tobacco is 58 percent complete in the Commonwealth, well behind last year's 87 percent.

Fall plowing is 49 percent complete compared to 58 percent complete a year ago. Fall plowing was rated as 39 percent complete in the north, 63 percent in central counties and 42 percent in the south.

Barley planting advanced to 24 percent during the week, well ahead of the 13 percent reported planted last year. Wheat planting increased to 28 percent, compared to eight percent at this time last year.

Third cutting of alfalfa was estimated at 68 percent statewide compared to 72 percent last year. Fourth cutting was at 34 percent, well ahead of the 13 percent cut in 1979. Second cutting of clover-timothy stands is virtually complete, well ahead of the 85 percent last year at this time.

The quality of hay made during the week was rated good to fair throughout the state. Feed from pastures was below average to average statewide. Pasture in the north was rated 63 percent below average, 29 percent average and eight percent above average.

USDA predicts cattle prices to rise

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Dominating the cattle situation this summer are the rapid — but not too rapid — rebuilding of the cattle herd, concern about deteriorating pastures and ranges, and improved price prospects for 1981.

The midyear cattle inventory showed herd rebuilding to be underway, stimulated by strong cattle prices in early 1979, very favorable grazing conditions, and reduced herd culling due to mild weather last winter.

There were an estimated 123 million cattle and calves on U.S. farms and ranches on July 1, 4 percent more than a year earlier. Other inventory highlights:

Beef cows numbers were up even more — 6 percent.

Only Illinois, and the drought-stricken States of Montana, North Dakota, and South Dakota showed a decline in total cattle numbers.

After declining for 5 straight years, the U.S. calf crop may rise to 45.5 million head this year, up 6 percent.

With the memory of the last long herd liquidation fresh in mind, some cattlemen may view that rebuilding is coming too quickly, too soon — once again leading to overexpansion.

Beef supply and demand tend to be favorably balanced when the ratio is about 24.5. A value above this average usually signals an oversupply; a value below, an under supply relative to demand.

The number of cows per 100 people is still below the 24.5 ratio — by more than 4 million head. Furthermore, lower prices this spring and drought this summer and into fall will likely slow expansion in 1981.

The cows-per-people ratio is expected to be about 22.0 to 22.5 next January 1.

Remember, however, that this ratio is only one of many measures of a favorable supply/demand balance. Numerous other factors, such as supplies of competing meats, the general economy, and grain supplies and prices can affect this balance.

Farms and ranches on which the cattle enterprise is the only, or a primary, source of farm income have responded to the higher cattle prices since 1978, which has helped them rebuild their financial base.

Due to the reduced cattle numbers and generally favorable pasture conditions prior to this summer, many of these operations had not been fully using their forage resources.

To date, the present expansion appears to have largly occurred on these operations. They will probably continue expanding their herds till pasture use appraches full capacity. Further expansion will depend on the building of new herds in the eastern half of the country.

But increased production costs in the North Central and Southeastern regions and much stronger grain prices have caused many producers to expand crop acreage and reduce or drop their cattle operations. This is borne out in the midyear increased in both regions, they rose less then the national average.

In the Southeast, in particular, where pastures need heavy fertilizer rates for favorable grass stands and good grazing conditions, higher fertilizer costs have forced some feeder cattle producers to shift some of their land to other uses. Others have reduced fertilizer usage and consequently pasture carrying capacity.

Producers who sold off their beef herd during the mid 70's–particularly on farms where much land has shifted back to crop production and livestock represents a small share of farm income–are not likely to return to feeder cattle production under current crop/livestock price relationships.

Between 1975 and 1979, over 200,000 farms and ranches dropped their cattle operations, as the number of cattle declined by 21 million head.

Higher prices for replacement beef cows expected over the next couple of years and continued strong grain and soybeans prices that draw additional acreage into crop production will further deter reentry.

Despite the drought in many areas, the cattle industry is now entering a period of more favorable supply and demand factors.

Large year-to-year increases in total red meat and poultry supplies began late in the second quarter of 1979, forcing meat prices lower. Supplies started to ease this summer and will continue to ease throughout 1981.

The major shocks of the current recession occurred prior to and during the second quarter of this year. Some economic indicators will remain negative, but consumer incomes--a primary factor determining meat demand--slowed markedly in the second quarter and are expected to increase during the second half of this year and throughout 1981.

Large financial losses during the last half of 1979 and throughout the first half of 1980 reduced feedlot placements and caused hog and poultry producers to cut back production plans. Poultry production has already dropped below year-earlier levels, where it's expected to remain until next spring.

Pork production is slowing and while it may reach record levels in early fall, it's expected to be below year-earlier levels late in the year and throughout 1981.

Sharply higher grain prices, which have reduced the uncertainty of selling grain in the cash market, are expected to contribute to lower total meat production in 1981, especially pork produced on smaller crop-livestock farms.

Reduced meat production from last year's levels and stronger demand factors suggest livestock, poultry, and meat prices will increase during the second half of this year and into 1981.

However, meat price gains could be held down this summer and fall if the drought continues and additional livestock are slaughtered this fall and winter. Increased slaughter this year, however, would further reduce total meat supplies in 1981, and increase livestock prices more than currently anticipated.

Fed cattle are expected to average in the low $70's for the rest of 1980, with prices strengthening late in the year. Further strength is expected in 1981 as meat supplies decline and incomes rise. Prices in the upper $70's to low $80's are likely by next summer.

Yearling feeder steers are expected to average in the upper $70's in second-half 1980. Feeder cattle prices are expected to strengthen during 1981, particularly as the spring grazing season begins. Next spring, feeder cattle prices could return to the record levels of the spring of 1979.

Producers in many areas will face the question of overwintering breeding herds at higher costs or increasing herd culling. Northern Great Plains producers have been hurt by drought for some time. Conditions in much of the South have also deteriorated, particularly in the Southern Plains.

Conditions in the South and Central Plains could still improve if late summer and early fall rains improve fall and winter grazing prospects. Improved prospects for wheat and small grain. Pasture production would particularly improve the situation in these areas.

Last winter was mild, and many older cows that normally would have gone to slaughter likely were kept for an additional year. As you assess your situation for 1981 you may want to sell some of these older, less productive cows particularly if an average to hard winter would force their sale anyway. If grazing prospects in your area are declining and you face a growing feed bill, this may be the time to sell the poorer cows in your breeding inventory.

Despite a reduced hay harvest this summer, hay stocks–which were records large on May 1--are adequate in most areas to prevent any large scale herd liquidations. Some areas, however, may have problems because of this summer's severe drought and supplemental feeding requirements.

If hay stocks in your area don't appear adequate to carry your herd through the winter, consider other forage supplies that, when supplemented with small amounts of grian, can provide a maintenance level of nutrition.

Crops that were ruined by the drought— corn, milo, and small grains— can be used for this purpose. Also, cattle operations in designated drought disaster areas may be eligible for emergency feed payment to supplement purchases of grain or hay.

All in all, the outlook for cattlemen is improving and prospects look good over the next few years. To the extent possible, try to maintain brood-cow and replacement heifer inventories in light of improved 1981 price prospects.

Expansion will slow as farmers and ranchers who are dependent on the cattle enterprise as a chief source of income approach normal stocking rates. At this early stage of herd rebuilding, overexpansion does not appear to be a problem. Furthermore, overexpansion is not now expected to begin until the mid-1980's. However, producers should begin to monitor retention rates of heifers as early as 1983.

As of August 1, this year's drought-reduced feed grain crop is expected to be down 16 percent from last year's record. Corn production could be off 14 percent, while extreme drought in the Plains has reduced the grain sorghum crop an estimated 32 percent.

Corn prices at the farm are expected to average $2.90 to $3.40 a bushel in 1980/81, compared with an average of about $2.50 in 1979/80.

Soybean production may drop 17 percent. However, substantially larger U.S. and world carry in stocks of soybeans and other oilseeds, coupled with some slowing in the demand for soybean products, particularly in the United States, will temper price increases in the new season.

Soybean meal prices are expected to average $185 to $255 a ton in 1980/81, up from around $180 a year earlier.

Mushroom

composting operation's pollution control system was not in compliance with the new federal government requirements, EPA said.

The Frezzos were convicted of violating the clean water act and they appealed their case.

The Appeals Court upheld the conviction. At that time Carroll got involved.

Carroll said he is asking for a reconsideration of the case on the grounds that mushroom growing is an agricultural activity and that agricultural activities are exempt from the federal permit requirements.

At the time of the original hearings the exemption possibility was not considered.

The appeal was filed in Southeastern Pennsylvania District Court. In late June the District Court refused to overturn the original conviction.

But Carroll said Thursday that the Environmental Protection Agency has exempted agriculture from the standards. So, in October the appeal is being taken one step farther.

Many people connected with Chester County's mushroom industry have expressed amazement at the vigor the U.S. attorney's office in Philadelphia is showing in the case.

Some have hinted at a personal vendetta, not in the attorney's office, but elsewhere along the line.

"Thre is an unusually aggressive campaign going against the mushroom industry in Chester County," Carroll said.

Jim Frezzo agreed, saying, "I don't know why thay are trying to do this to the people in this industry."

The case began when the Chester County Health Department began flying above mushroom farms after heavy rains to take photographs of runoff from composting operations.

Frezzos were cited and EPA got involved.

Rocco Pugliese of the Pennsylvania Food Processors Association, pointed out that the growers were not even warned before they were cited.

It rained, photos were taken, and they were cited without being given an opportunity to correct the problem.

"Really ludicrous," Pugliese termed the action. He said he feels there is a personality conflict involved somewhere along the line.

Worse yet, Pugliese said, the huge fines would go to Washington, D.C. and not to a fund to help growers pay for needed conservation measures.

Although legal briefs in the appeal of Frezzos' case are due in October, the court will not hear arguments until 60 to 90 days after briefs are filed.

The decision will be handed down a month or so after that. So, a decision can not be expected until February or March 1981.

Frezzos' attorney takes the position that their original conviction should be overturned and the indictment dismissed. That would clear the Frezzos of any criminal charges, the fines, and the jail term.

The court could agree, or decide to overturn the conviction but allow the indictment to stand in which case the charges again could be brought. Or it could uphold the original decision in which case the Frezzos would be lost.

But the matter goes deeper than a single case. It even covers more than whether or not mushrooms are agricultural products.

Underlying the entire question is the issue of whether Congress ever intended an agriculturally related industry to shoulder the costs of paying for expensive devices or technology needed to meet the new Federal laws.

The position argued by the U.S. Attorney's office says each producer has to take on that financial burden at the risk of criminal prosecution.

The growers are saying they should be given both technical expertise and financial a sistance to meet the new federal water standards.

"They are perfectly willing to comply with the law, but government has come down on them like King Kong without working with them," Carroll said. "They got no notice before the criminal charges were brought."

After losing several rounds in a row in the courtroom, the Frezzos have one more chance at an appeal.

If nothing else, their case will clarify where growers stand in the eyes of the law.

Feidt shows grand Holstein, Brown Swiss

GRATZ — The 4-H and FFA competition at Tuesday's Youth Dairy Show found many Upper Dauphin County members returning home after a hard day's cleaning and showing with the grand champion trophy to reward their efforts.

In the Holstein show, David Feidt, Millersburg, proudly exhibited his 5-year-old entry to the senior championship and on to the grand champion honors.

Marilyn Deaven travelled from Fredericksburg, Lebanon County, to capture the grand champion's trophy with her 3-year-old and Senior Champion entry.

David Feidt was once again the top money winner with his Brown Swiss 5-year-old cow, Rainy. Feidt adds the Gratz grand championship to his Brown Swiss' admirable winning record. She was the grand champion in the Brown Swiss show recently in the District Dairy competition.

In showmanship competition, David Feidt tied with Marilyn Deaven for top Senior showman while Steve Shetterly, Millersburg, captured the Junior championship honors.

Marlin Deaven took home the Senior championship for best fitter. And Kim Boyer was selected as the best Junior fitter.—SM

David Feidt, Millersburg, exhibited the grand champion Holstein at this year's Gratz Fair 4-H and FFA Show. She went on to be the grand champion in the Open Dairy Show. At halter is friend Raymond Buffington.

The grand champion Jersey was exhibited by Lebanon County's Marilyn Deaven, Fredericksburg.

Kaye Sweigard was the grand champion showman at Wednesday's Gratz Fair Beef Show — showing her grand champion steer "King Tut".

Twelve-year-old Becky Webster took home the championships for both Junior showmanship and fitting.

Sweigard steer tops Gratz Beef Show

GRATZ — Kaye Sweigard, Halifax, led her heavyweight Chianina x Angus crossbred steer into the winner's circle after Wednesday morning's 4-H Beef Show at the Gratz Fair.

Despite the intermittent drizzle and threatening skys, Kaye kept her cool while showing "King Tut" and proved to Judge Don Sunday, York, that she deserved the Senior Champion Showman award.

Her black steer was also tagged champion — as a matter of fact, he was selected by Judge Sunday as the Grand Champion

Kaye's younger sister Monique didn't go home empty handed. She was selected as the Senior Champion Fitter for her clip and comb job on her Chianina x Angus heavyweight steer "Motivator" who placed second to Kaye's grand champion in their heavyweight class.

Ivan Bechtel, Halifax, exhibited his lightweight steer "Rusty" to the Reserve Grand Champion honors Bechtel's steer is a Chianina x Hereford crossbred ionships for fitting and showmanship went to one person at this year's Gratz Fair beef show. Becky Webster, R4 Halifax handled and groomed her Angus steer "Jeremiah" for the top honors.

PA vegetable contest winners' recipes available free

ROCK SPRINGS — More than 250 recipes were entered in the first Pennsylvania Vegetable Recipe Contest held recently at Rock Springs, Centre County.

Altoonan Judy Burchfield's Cucumber Hors D'Oeuvres conquered the judges' palates to become the winner and walk off with the $100 first prize. Burchfield combined cucumbers, cream cheese and Italian dressing mix to make a delicious spread which would be welcome at a family outing as well as a dinner party for friends.

Second prize winner was Ruth Runnock Roberts of Bensalem, Bucks County, who recieved $50. By using a variety of Pennsylvania-grown vegetables, Roberts created Pride O' The Commonwealth, Vegetable Medley Au Gratin. A special sauce brings out the best in each vegetable. Cooking and preparation time is less than 30 minutes, while serving eight to ten people as a one dish meal.

Mrs. Geary W. Huntsberger of Etters, York County, won third prize with her creation, Super Beef and Squash Casserole. Using fresh yellow or zucchini squash, onions, peppers, rice, ground beef, sour cream, and cheddar cheese, Huntsberger's recipe captured the judges' attention. Mrs. Huntsberger was awarded $25 for her recipe.

Mrs. Myles Strohl of Trappe, Montgomery County, took home $25 as the fourth place winner for her Zucchini and Tomato Stir-Fry with Herbs. The interesting combination of Pennsylvania-grown vegetables and spices takes only 15 minutes to prepare.

Recipe booklets containing the top winners' and finalists' recipes may be obtained free of charge by sending a long self-addressed, stamped envelope to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture, Promotions Office, 2301 North Cameron Street, Harrisburg, PA 17110.

Angus Assn. celebrates millionth pound of Certified Angus Beef

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. — Angus beef retailers and the American Angus Association celebrated production of the one millionth pound of Certified Angus Beef recently in special ceremonies at Columbia, Missouri.

The 13 Missouri supermarket and meat market operators who take part in the American Angus Association's quality beef merchandising program toured Diggs packing plant in Columbia, where Certified Angus beef is processed, then went to Memorial Stadium and presented a side of Angus beef to University of Missouri football coach Warren Powers and Athletic Director Dave Hart, for use at the University's athletic training table.

The Certified Angus beef program was developed and test marketed in 1978 to identify high quality Angus beef and make it available to consumers through a network of participating retail outlets.

Today, the Certified Angus beef program includes participating packing plants in Missouri and Alabama with 13 retail outlets in Missouri and eight in the Boston, Massachusetts area, Allen told the group attending the presentation ceremonies.

More Certified Angus beef is processed and marketed in Missouri than any other state, he said.

Expansion of the program is planned in several areas of the country, Mick Colvin, director of the Certified Angus Beef program announced. Three more Missouri stores are expected to join the CAB program soon. The number of retail outlets in the Boston and New England area will increase substantially within the next few months, and negotiations are underway with packers in Iowa, in an effort to bring Certified Angus Beef to that state.

In addition, announcement of the name of the first restaurant to feature Certified Angus Beef is expected this month, Colvin said.

"Strict quality standards govern the selection of Certified Angus Beef," Colvin explained. "And this assures consumers of getting a higher quality, consistently better, product than is normally available in most supermarkets."

In addition to being from Angus cattle, the CAB carcasses must meet the following seven qualifications: have at least modest (average Choice) marbling; fall within the "A" maturity range; yield grade 3 or better for Prime and no higher than the midpoint of the 3 grade for Choice; lean must be within the "fine" texture range; have fine to medium marbling texture; color of lean must be slightly dark red or lighter; meat must be moderately firm with no indication of softeness.

The Angus cattle used for CAB are identified and certified at the packing plant and the breed identity is maintained from the live animal to the individual retail cut on the supermarket shelf.

The carcasses are quality graded and rolled either Choice or Prime. Then those carcasses that meet or exceed the seven Certified Angus Beef specifications are rolled with the trademarked "Certified Angus Beef" stamp.

"Certified Angus Beef is an outgrowth of the decline of USDA beef quality grading standards, combined with desire on the part of many Angus breeders for a program to identify the superior Angus beef carcass traits and market them to consumers," said Mick Colvin. "We have found also, that many retailers and consumers are not happy with the wide range of quality that is found within the USDA Choice grade, and we designed the CAB program to eliminate this problem."

The American Angus Association does not take ownership of the cattle or the beef. The Angus cattle are obtained by the packer, and the carcasses or boxes of primal cuts are sold directly to the participating retail outlet.

Participating packers and retailers sign an agreement with the American Angus Association, that spells out how the program is to operate. Both packer and retailer are subject to unannounced inspections by a CAB representative to insure that all the provisions of the program are being followed.

Republicans name ag campaign leaders

LITITZ — An Iowa farm owner and a former California farm businessman were named today to direct the Farm and Food Division of the Regan-Bush campaign.

Iowan Seeley Lodwick has been appointed director, and co-director will be Richard Lyng, formerly of California, National Voter Chairman Elizabeth Hanford Dole announced today at the Regan Bush headquarters in Virginia.

"These two men bring together farming and farm business perspectives to the agricultural needs in America," Dole said. "We are extremely pleased to have them take an important role in the Reagan Bush effort."

Lodwick, who lives on a farm near Wever, Lee County, Iowa, is a former Iowa State Senator. He is a former U.S. Department of Agriculture official and director of government relations of the American Farm Bureau Federation. He comes to the Reagan Bush campaign from U.S. Senator Roger Jepsen's office where he was an Iowa administrator. Early in Lodwick's career he operated combination grain and livestock farms in Appanoose and Lee Counties in Iowa and still manages family grain farms in Lee County.

Lyng, now a Virginia resident, was president of his family seed and bean production company, Ed J. Lyng Company of Modesto, California, from 1945 to 1967, when he became director of the California Department of Agriculture. He held that post until February 1969. Lyng served as assistant secretary, U.S. Department of Agriculture from 1969 to 1973, when he became president of the American Meat Institute, Washington, D.C. Since Dember of 1979 he has been a consultant for food and agriculture.

Plan now for fall fertilization

LITITZ — Your 1981 soil fertilization program should start now.

Careful planning at this time can make the difference between a good or poor crop next year, reminds John Baylor, extension agronomist at Penn State.

Begin with a soil test. Determine the need for lime and fertilizer. Fall is the best time to apply lime. You can also apply some of the needed fertilizer this fall.

Baylor outlines the advantages for applying phosphorus and potasium this fall.

—Hay crops continue to "breathe" all winter. They may be in hibernation, but you can't let them die.

—Fall fertilized alfalfa and other legumes will suffer less winter injury than staved plants.

—Fall fertilized hay crops get off to an earlier and more vigorous start in the spring.

—Time is money. You have more time to fertilize in the fall than during the busy spring period.

—Less soil compaction. The soil is generally more firm in the fall than in the spring.

However, there are some don'ts.

—Don't apply fertilizer on frozen ground, particularly on sloping land. Winter rains and melting snow can carry much of the fertilizer off the land.

—Normally, you should apply nitrogen in the spring rather than in the fall. Nitrogen is very mobile and can be lost by leaching or by run-off. Also, it can be lost as a gas during winter-logged periods.

Lauden Acres sweeps Gratz Suffolk show

GRATZ — The Suffolk show at this week's Gratz Fair provided the most ovine competition at the Wednesday morning Open Show.

Both the grand champion ram and the grand champion ewe were exhibited by Lynn Laudenslager, Lauden Acres R1 Dalmatia.

Although they've been in the commercial sheep business for the past 10 years, Lynn's wife, Dixie, explained this is their first year in the purebred business. As a matter of fact, Gratz Fair marks their first attempt, and a rather successful one, at showing.

The Laudenslagers also exhibited the reserve grand champion Suffok ram. Both champion rams were this year's lambs.

The reserve grand champion ewe followed the Laudenslager ewe lamb in their class before being tagged by Judge Don Sunday as the second top female in the show. She was shown by Dianne Eberts Keefauver, of Newville.

Competition in other breeds found Wayne Bankert, Red Lion, exhibiting the champions in both the ram and ewe classes in the Hampshire show; E Richard Eberts, Newville, exhibited the champion ram and the champion and reserve champion ewes in the Rambouillet show; and Lynn Laudenslager exhibited two Dorset ram lambs for the championship honors in the breed.

Vegetable-dairy farmer named campaign chairman

CLARKS SUMMIT — Keith Eckel, a Lackawanna County dairy, grain and vegetable farmer, has been named chairman of the Pennsylvania Farmers for Reagan-Bush Committee.

His appointment was announced by the Reagan-Bush State Chairman, Richard J. Fox.

Eckel, a member of the executive committee of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Farmers Association and a member of the Pennsylvania State University agricultural advisory council, farms near Clarks Summit in partnership with his father, Fred W. Eckel, and his brother, Fred D. Eckel. They produce and pack mature green tomatoes on 250 acres and have a herd of 150 Holstein dairy cattle.

Eckel said he has joined the Reagan-Bush effort because of the need to end government regulations of agriculture and other businesses.

"Regulatory overkill has impaired our productivity. Government over-regulation contributed to inflation," he said.

Eckel said Pennsylvania dairy farmers are concerned that the Carter Administration is considering weakening or eliminating the present federal milk marketing orders.

"Such a move," he said, "would be as unpopular among farmers as the Carter grain embargo has been."

He added that his Committee will seek to mobilize all members of Pennsylvania farm families — regardless of their political affiliation — in support of the Reagan-Bush team "in order to bring about needed changes in Washington."

Eckel, 33, is a graduate of Dickinson College. He is a past Vice President of the Pennsylvania State Council of Cooperative Extension Service Councils. He is a member of the board of directors of the Pennsylvania Vegetable Growers Association and of the Governor's seasonal farm labor committee.

Non-farmers take top beef honors at E-Town

ELIZABETHTOWN — Two youthful "hobby farmers" took the top honors Wednesday night in beef competition at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Amidst a chorus of thunder, lightning, pelting rain on the canvas tent and the applause of onlookers, the top beef honors went to:

Bob Snyder, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Snyder, 550 Groff Ave., Elizabethtown, who showed his purebred Angus junior yearling heifer to first in the breeding competition, and Rick Baker, 18, a 1980 graduate of Elizabethtown and member of the Lower Dauphin Baby Beef Club, who showed his Angus-Chianina cross to the Grand Championship of the Market Steer competition.

Both Bob and Rick are non-farmers in the strict definition of the term.

Bob is in his senior year of studies at Elizabethtown and hopes to go on to Penn State to study wildlife technology and become a researcher in that field. His family has been "off" the farm for some eight years.

Rick works for his father in masonry contracting. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Baker, R2 Elizabethtown. His steer is kept in a shed at home. Bob boards his animals at Baum's Bologna, where he has worked for the past three years after school and weekends.

Bob's medium lightweight market steer took the reserve champion honors. Rick also placed first in Showmanship for participants 15 years and over.

Bob's heifer was picked over Rick's market steer for the Grand Championship of the Beef Show.

Repeat performance for Deb Martin at E-Town Fair

ELIZABETHTOWN — It was 1979 all over again in the sheep competition Wednesday night at the Elizabethtown Fair.

Deb Martin, R1 East Earl, is a year older and her Suffolk lamb has grown into a yearling ewe. But both returned to the spotlight to make it two years in a row to capture the Grand Championship of the Show.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John M. Martin, R1 East Earl, Deb walked her lamb every day before the 1979 show. On pasture this year, her entry must have been well trained because she remained in top condition to retain the title.

Deb and younger brother, Barry, dominated the championships. Deb also took the Reserve Championship in the market division, in addition to her top winner in breeding. Barry had the champion market lamb and the reserve champion in breeding.

And even younger brother, Jeff, took his share of winnings, too.

Large fruit supplies dampen price outlook

LANCASTER — Large supplies of noncitrus fruit mean that grower prices for fresh and processing fruit this fall will stay below 1979 prices. Total 1980 noncitrus production is forecast to be marginally above last year's large crop.

In August, the index of prices received by growers for fresh and processing fruit was 207 (1967=100), 27 percent below August 1979. Nevertheless, retail prices will stay higher than those last year, as marketing and distribution costs continue to increase.

In total, noncitrus production is expected to be less than one percent above last year and about nine percent above 1978.

Apple production is forecast to be three percent larger than last year's record crop.

Grape production, which also set a record last year, is expected to total 4.83 milion tons, down three percent, but California table grape production is forecast to go up 10 percent.

The pear crop is expected to be one percent larger than in 1979, and the peach crop two percent smaller.

The 1980-81 pack of canned fruit will exceed last year's large output. The large pack, combined with considerably larger carryover stocks, will boost total supplies of canned fruit. However, wholesale prices are expected to stay firm, although there will be occasional promotional price reductions.

Retail prices for most canned fruit will stay higher than a year ago, reflecting higher wholesale prices and distribution costs.

Prospects for dried fruit production are about the same this season as last. Raisin production may be below last season's large pack, but the prune pack will be up substantially. Combined with an adequate carryover, this season's production may bring dried fruit supplies above those of last year.

Domestic and export demand for raisins will probably stay strong. Nevertheless, large supplies may keep wholesale prices lower than last year.

At the beginning of August, stocks of most frozen noncitrus fruit were above those of a year ago. A sharply larger pack of frozen tart cherries is expected, along with a moderately larger pack of frozen strawberries.

Snowmobilers need licenses

HARRISBURG — Winter is just around the corner and snowmobilers should begin to prepare for their sport, says Rep. Noah W. Wenger.

Wenger said persons interested in snowmobiling this winter should check into registration requirements and the rules and regulations governing the spot.

"In Pennsylvania you must register if you wish to operate your snowmobile on property other than your own," he said.

"If you ride on state owned land or on local roadways and are not registered you can be fined.

First-time snowmobilers can apply for registration by contacting the Snowmobile Unit. Most notaries and snowmobile dealers also have the necessary forms.

Registration is for a two-year period. The Snowmobile Unit in the Department of Environmental Resources will mail snowmobile registration renewal applications in mid-September.

A pamphlet explaining the rules regulating snowmobiling in the Commonwealth can be obtained by writing to the Snowmobile Unit, Box 1467, Harrisburg, PA 17120.

License relinquished by dealer in Franklin

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

HARRISBURG — A Franklin County livestock dealer has voluntarily relinquished his license to the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture for a period of two years and has agreed to cooperate in the tracing of brucellosis-infected dairy animals.

Relinquishing of the dealership license involves Arthur Ray Mellott, of R2 St. Thomas, Franklin County, and his son, Gregory, who acts as agent in the livestock business.

The voluntary action by the Mellotts came in the wake of a scheduled PDA hearing this week into whether the license should be revoked. The hearing had been scheduled for Thursday.

"There was no longer a need for the hearing to be held," according to John Childe, of the PDA legal staff.

The revocation hearing was to be concerned with 14 separate transactions involving brucellosis aniamls. Also involved was the lack of proper maintenance of records by the Mellotts.

The PDA's Bureau of Animal Industry began its investigation in April, according to Dr. John Dick, head of the Bureau's Cattle Division. Some of the transactions involved as many as four different dealers as the animals were passed through before reaching farms.

Twenty herds have been quarantined in the state trace-back of animals. They include seven in Lancaster County, two in Chester, three in Berks, one in Lehigh, three in Cumberland, one in Butler, one in Indiana, one in Lebanon and one in Union.

All but one involve dairy animals.

In late August, the Bureau called a special meeting in Harrisburg to dicuss the brucellosis outbreak with concerned farmers, including representatives of Berks, Chester, Delaware, Lancaster, Lebanon and Lehigh county farmers' associations.

Testing rules for out-of-state animals are due to be tightened next month.

According to Dr. Dick, PDA regulations will now be the same for both states which certify brucellosis-free animals and those which don't.

Regulation will now require that all animals coming into Pennsylvania come from herds having blood or milk ring tests 90 days prior to shipping and then again within 30 days. Previously, animals from certified brucellosis-free states only needed one negative test within 30 days of shipment.

The new stiffer regulations are similar to those imposed by the USDA a few years ago concerning Canadian imports.

Meanwhile, farmers buying dairy livestock are urged to require health charts from dealers and to buy only from herds known to be free of brucellosis. The PDA also recommends that herd replacements be isolated and tested immediately and then retested after 60 days. Calfhood vaccination is also recommended.

Berks Farmers' Assn. to hold annual meeting

READING — The 30th Annual Meeting of the Berks County Farmers' Association will be held Friday, October 3, 1980 at the Sheraton Berkshire Inn at 7 p.m.

Purpose of the session is to elect directors and adopt policies for the general farm organization which has 1151 family members.

"Our Association has been gathering policy suggestions at some twenty meetings throughout the county," commented President John K. Kooker, Jr., "and these will be submitted to the total membership for consideration."

Some of the policies recommended for consideration are: (1) Import restrictions on mushroom imports; (2) Antibiotic tolerance in milk, (3) School property tax reform, (4) Ethyl-Alcohol production, (5) Transportation improvement, plus many other important issues.

"It is important that all members strongly consider attending this meeting to aid in deciding the direction of agriculture in Pennsylvania through the efforts of this general farm organization," said Kooker.

"Policy development chairman, John Koch, has put together a program that gives every farmer an opportunity to voice his or her opinion and concern about farming today," continued Kooker, "and we owe it to John Koch to turn out and honor that effort."

Persons interested in dinner tickets should contact Mrs. William A. Moore, R1, Box 282, Myerstown, 17067. Deadline for ticket reservations is September 26.

Now Is The Time

ground. Teach everyone how to call for help in case of fire or other emergencies. Take time now to plan your family's safety.

TO BEWARE OF FROSTED CROPS

The reports of snow and freezing temperatures in some parts of our country indicates that fall is just around the corner. This will be good news to many of us who have had enough of the very hot, humid weather of this summer. Livestock producers who have fields of sudan grass, or one of the sudan-sorghum hybrids, should keep in mind that when frost hits these crops they could be toxic to livestock for 7 days following the freeze. After this period, and the plants are dead, they may be used safely. However, any growth coming from the plant after a killing frost might also be toxic. Another frost hazard would be to permit livestock to graze alfalfa or clover stands while the frost is still on the plants. This can cause severe bloating. Allow the frost to melt and the plants to dry before grazing the area. Good management is needed on various forage crops after a killing frost.

Don't feed green chop corn

Dairymen should be alert to corn problems

LITITZ — Eastern Pennsylvania's corn crop is suffering from lack of rainfall. Normal growth but poor pollination has occurred in some areas. In others, corn is severely stunted and may not have pollinated at all.

Drought-stricken corn is more apt to contain relatively high nitrate levels which can result in dangerous silo gas formation. The latter is a serious hazard to both humans and animals.

Properly ventilate silos and silo room areas before entering a recently filled silo. Watch out for a heavier-than-air gas, sometimes brownish in color. Look for signs of poisoned birds or small animals in the area.

Nitrogen oxide gases are very toxic and damaging to lung and other body tissues. Small amounts will cause a burning sensation in nostrils and chest.

High nitrate levels in corn silage can cause the hemoglobin in the blood to lose its ability to take up oxygen. The animals sort of suffocate to death.

Tests on corn silage at the Penn State Forage Testing Laboratory indicate a greater incidence of nitrate problems in this year's corn silage crop. Some of these have been extremely toxic and if fed to dairy cattle would have caused death.

Nitrate and silo gas problems may be kept to a minimum by delaying harvest for five days after a rain such as one we had just recently. Always feed other forage and grain ahead of drought-stricken material.

The addition of eight pounds of sodium metabisulfite per ton will help prevent silo gas formation. Immature corn plants will generally contain higher nitrate levels than mature corn.

If at all possible, do not feed this year's corn as green chop. Dairymen who persist in feeding corn this way are taking a sizeable risk.

Feeding this corn as green crop does not allow for control of nitrate intake and may adversely affect animal performance. Production will probably drop, plus you coud lose some animals. Until the whole corn plant material has undergone fermentation, the protein in the plant is relatively unavailable to the cow.

Thus the use of drought damaged corn in this form requires the feeding of high-protein items just before and after the green chopped material.

Check your corn fields. Corn is maturing faster than normal because of the warmer weather. Your corn may be mature and getting dry. Some silage samples have been checked at 50 percent moisture. Normal moisture levels are 60 percent to 65 percent.

Whenever possible test corn silage made from drought-stricken corn. Obtain nitrate tests as well as the usual moisture, protein, fiber and mineral contents. These are available through the Penn State Forage Testing Service and other laboratories.

Contact your county agricultural extension office for further information.

Lehigh proposal

should provide figures to substantiate their allegations.

According to figures supplied by the dairy, the October milk price for milk in the Allentown School District will be 13 cents for while milk and 15.5 cents for chocolate milk.

"We can sell white milk for less than that," said a spokesman for the dairy.

"And we deplore the cost differential between while and chocolate milk. Our cost differential is only one cent."

Neither Fink nor dairy officials see a major impact on retail sales even if the price of milk were lowered a few cents.

The testimony also pointed out that the PMMB does not control the custom processing market, which the dairy estimates at 60 percent of all milk sold in the state.

"If the PMMB chooses not to regulate such a large portion of the market, they should eliminate all of the regulation," the dairy spokesman said.

"Deregulation would force dealers to become more efficient or would force them out of business."

Rain benefits some farmers slows harvests elsewhere

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Needed rains fell on portions of the United States last week while wet weather impaired harvest conditions in many other parts of the world, according to a weekly report issued today by the Joint Agricultural Weather Facility of the U.S. Departments of Commerce and Agriculture.

Highlights of the report follow.

United States. Widespread showers accomplished a cold front that passed slowly from the central United States to the Atlantic Coast last week. Thunderstorms brought rain to portions of Arkansas and Oklahoma, but more is needed to replenish soil moisture reserves and improve conditions for autumn wheat sowing and for grazing.

USSR. Wet weather persisted last week in western portions of the winter grain belt and interrupted harvest activity in southern Belorussia. Delays in fall sowing there are becoming serious. Above normal rains fell on spring grain harvest area in northeastern European USSR and across the northern New Lands. Some light frost occurred at midweek.

Europe. With generally fair weather moving in, wetness in some areas from the previous week tapered off, leaving favorable conditions for late harvesting of small grains across the north.

China. Above-normal rainfall continued in a broad band just north of the Yangtze River, prolonging the potential for substantial losses to the nearly mature cotton and rice crops. Areas south of the river dried out after last week's heavy rains.

South Asia. Monsoon activity produced near-normal weekly rainfall totals in much of India's northern region where autumn rice is approaching maturity.

Canada. Wet weather delayed harvest activities in the wheat aras of eastern Saskatchewan and Manitoba.

Australia. Wheat growing areas continued dry last week and rains are needed to carry the wheat crop through the vegetative phase in the key growing areas of West Australia, New South Wales and Queensland. Some crop deterioration has occurred in Queensland.

Dorset breeders form association

HARRISBURG — Dorset breeders throughout Pennsylvania have flocked together to form a state-wide organization.

Legally organized on July 11, 1980, the group is known as the Pennsylvania Dorset Breeders Association — an appropriate title.

Listed as their first and primary objective is to support and sponsor a Bred Ewe Sale at the Keystone International Livestock Exposition. This young organization has made their goal a reality.

On Saturday, October 4, the First Dorset Bred Ewe Sale will begin at 6 p.m. at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. This marks the first major function of the newly formed organization, and will become an annual.

Fifteen ewes are being consigned by some of the area's top Dorset breeders, including: Erdenheim Farm, Lafayette Hill; Kenneth Staver Family, R1 Palmyra; Suzie & Bob Leib, R2 Mechanicsburg; The Perry Farm, R3 Whitehouse Station, N.J.; Kimberly Crommelin, Stanton, N.J.; Norman, Evelyn & Barry Roberts, R1 Newtown; Steve Myers, R1 Rushylvania, Ohio; Penn State, University Park; Andre Lombard, R1 Canonsburg; Kenneth Moore, R2 Nichols, N.Y.; D.L. Grimes & Son, Paris, Ohio; and Tim Grimes, Paris, Ohio.

Ann Staver, president of PDBA, explained that any citizen of the state who owns Dorset sheep is eligible to become a member of the Association. Annual dues per family is $5.

Out-of-state breeders wishing to become associate members of the Pennsylvania group can apply for membership with the recommendation of a member in good standing Dues for associate, non-voting members are $2.50 each year.

Other elected officers include: Lewis Meiser, Jr., R2 Mt. Pleasant Mills, Vice-President; and Robert Leib, R2 Mechanicsburg, Secretary-Treasurer.

Serving on the board of directors are: Sally Young, R1 Canonsburg; Glenn Hunter, R2 Slippery Rock; Robert Herr, R2 Narvon; Al Huff, Lafayette Hill; Kenneth Moore, R2 Nichols, N.Y.; and G.C. Klahold, R5 Sinking Springs.

Wheat, barley producers eligible for benefits

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Wheat and barley producers will continue to receive storage payments on their reserve grain, Ray Fitzgerald, executive vice president of the Commodity Credit Corporation, said last Friday.

"Because the reserve release and call prices were substantially increased last month, due to the rapid increase in production costs, the release prices are above the price received by farmers for wheat and barley," Fitzgerald said.

"As a result, wheat and barley are no longer in release status and will continue to earn storage payments until a sufficient quantity has been placed in the farmer-owner reserve to move farm prices above release prices."

At the present time, storage payments are being made on wheat, barley and oats

Corn placed in reserve before August 25 continues in release status but storage payments have been stopped locally.

Corn and sorghum placed in reserve since August 25 also remains in release status, but storage payments are continuing in all states, at least through the end of September, Fitzgerald said.

Data used by CCC in determining the release and call levels include the five-day average prices as reported by the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Marketing Service showing prices bid by buyers at selected regional markets. The month-end report of prices received by farmers issued by USDA's Economics, Statistics and Cooperatives Service is also used to determine if the release or call authorizations should be withdrawn

Film to be presented

She was not only active but outstanding in a variety of sports, including ice hockey, baseball, basketball, and diving. Joni was also an excellent horsewoman, a winner at both trick and show riding.

The movie will be presented at 7 p.m. and 9 p.m. from October 10 through October 16 at the State Theatre, Columbia. Tickets cost $3. On Saturday and Sunday there will be shows at 2, 4, 6, and 8, 10 p.m.

Marhefka to head Juniata Extension

STATE COLLEGE — Jane B. Marhefka, Juniata County home economist on the Penn State Extension staff, has been named County Extension Director, effective the first of September.

Thomas B. King, Penn State associate dean for extension, points out that Marhefka will be responsible for program coordination for the Juniata County Extension Service. She succeeds George L. Settlemyer, who retired August 31.

A member of the Juniata County staff since 1957, Mrs. Marhefka received a bachelor of science degree from Juniata College in 1948 with a major in home economics education. She has done graduate work at Penn State.

Appointed to the Extension Service staff following graduation from college, she served successively as assistant home ecomonist in Lancaster, Washington, and Allegheny counties, then as home economist in Armstrong and Wyoming counties.

Jane B. Marhefka

She resigned September 1953 to devote full time to homemaking. Four years later she was reappointed to the staff and assigned to Juniata County.

Mrs. Marhefka conducts a comprehensive family living program for county homemakers and more recently developed programs in daycare, rural dental health, and nutrition.

She directs the Expanded Foods and Nutrition Educational Program in Juniata and Mifflin counties.

The new County Extension Director was chairman of the statewide Extension family living program committee, and chaired regional committees on housing, home furnishings, and salable crafts.

Marhefka is a member and past president of the Pennsylvania Association of Extension Home Economists and member of the National Association of Extension Home Economists.

She is also a member of the Pennsylvania and American Home Economics Associations and served three years as chairman of the south-central district of the state organization.

Marhefka was recipient of a Distinguished Service Award presented by the National Association of Extension Home Economists; the Ruby Award from the Penn State Chapter of Epsilon Sigma Phi Society; and Community Service Award from the Juniata County Business and Professional Women's Club.

A resident of Mifflintown, she has two daughters and two grandchildren. Her husband, Frank, is a guidance counselor at Juniata High School.

State dairy princess contest set for Tuesday evening

HARRISBURG — The 24th annual Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation will be held September 23 in Camp Hill. The coronation is a feature of the All-American Dairy Show and is scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m. at the Penn Harris Motor Inn.

The 1979-80 Pennsylvania Dairy Princess, Eileen Shull, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Shull, of Pipersville, will crown her successor at the event. She has been promoting Pennsylvania milk and milk products this summer, travelling throughout the Commonwealth. The Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Program is coordinated by Atlantic Dairy Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

This year 39 local dairy princesses, representing 45 counties, will be competing for the title. These lovely young ladies are currently involved in promoting milk and dairy products on the local level.

The princesses will be interviewed individually by the judges and rated while participating in an activity related to the promotion of dairy products. To be eligible for the pageant, a prospective contestant must be in the 16-21 age group and either be the daughter of a dairy farmer or own at least two dairy animals.

The Pennsylvania All-American Dairy Show will run September 22-26 at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg. The show features entries of six dairy cattle breeds in competition for over $66,000 in premiums, and boasts three national shows. Events at the Farm Show are open to the public at no charge.

The All-American, sponsored by the Pennsylvania Dairy and Allied Industries Association in cooperation with the Agriculture Department and the Farm Show Commission, has attracted exhibitors of the best in dairy cattle from around the world since its inception in 1964.

Tickets for the All-American Dairy Show Recognition Banquet and Pennsylvania Dairy Princess Coronation are still available by writing Joyce Graybill, Dairy Promotion Director, Atlantic Dairy Association, R3, Box 682, Mount Joy, 17552; or by calling, 717/787-2905 before September 19.

To us, agriculture is still the backbone of America.

At Hamilton Bank one of our primary objectives is to serve, and help preserve, the family farm.

We still believe that agriculture is the backbone of America, and the family farm is the cornerstone of agriculture in our area.

That's why we have developed a complete range of financing, credit, trust and estate services – all designed to help you – the family farmer – fulfill your obligations.

With the value of farm production in our area increasing every year, the need for capital continues to rise along with it. We are here, and will continue to help you meet that need.

When we work together, through a relationship of mutual trust, we can all continue to move ahead. We can continue to keep agriculture strong.

NEMA annual meeting set for Hershey

HERSHEY — United Egg Producers will be represented at Northeast Egg Marketing Association's Annual Meeting at Hershey, on October 1, 2, and 3, according to an announcement made Wednesday by Bill Rent, NEMA's General Manager.

Claude Silva of Turlock, California, President of U.E.P., will be attending all of the sessions, while Douglas Hoffer of Warsaw, Indiana, is slated to address the Annual Banquet on the evening of October 2nd.

Hoffer is sales manager of the well known Creighton Brothers egg operation at Warsaw and is Vice President of a wholly owned subsidiary, Crystal Lake Egg Products, Inc.

His industry activities include Past Chairman of the Indiana Egg Council, past president of the Indiana State Poultry Association. He is currently serving a second three-year term on the Indiana Egg Board. He is a past director of American Egg Board, past president of

Douglas Hoffer

Mid-West Egg Producers and an alternate delegate to NCEN.

In five years as a UEP director, Hoffer has moved up to chairmanship of UEP's Government Relations Committee and is currently second vice president of UEP.

When he speaks to the Nema group, Hoffer will be drawing upon 25 years of experience at Creighton Brothers, beginning with part time flock work in his high school years and subsequent broad experience in hatching work, egg production and egg processing.

"I would like to emphasize the opportunities that Nema's Hershey meeting brings to Northeastern poultrymen," Rent continued. "You will meet UEP and Nema staff people who deal daily with the problems and issues that face our industry. Members will be invited to express their views as a means of helping our Board form policy for 1981."

Accommodations are assured all who attend by the Hotel Hershey. Reservations can be made by calling Nema at 603/868-2824. Allied industry people are welcome. Producers living in Pennsylvania or areas nearby to Hershey can avail themselves of special low-cost tickets for the meetings and banquet by calling NEMA.

Apple harvest festival set for Adams County

GETTYSBURG — Cooler days and earlier sunsets have signaled that the busy days of summer have passed once more.

To the fruitgrowers of Adams County, however, the fall marks the begining of their busiest season — the annual apple harvest.

Adams County, primarily noted for its historic Gettysburg battlefield, is actually the fruit bowl of Pennsylvania with nearly 20,000 acres of fruit trees producing over seven million bushels of apples annually, tops in Pennsylvania.

In celebration of the harvest, the Upper Adams Jaycees annually sponsors the Apple Harvest Festival which will be held this year, October 4 and 5 and October 11 and 12 at the South Mountain Fairgrounds, 10 miles north of Gettysburg on Route 234.

The Festival, set in one of Pennsylvania's most picturesque regions, the rolling hills of the South Mountains, provides a perfect setting for a relaxing week-end. The drive to the area sets the tone for the event, as visitors pass through tree covered hillsides bursting with limbs loaded with brilliant red and gold colored fruit.

The festival itself is a wonderland of apples, entertainment and excitement. Apple products are produced for you as you watch, many by the fascinating methods of a bygone day. There's an old fashioned cider press producing that sweet fresh apple cider, apple pancakes with apple syrups and candy apples, too.

Entertainment will be featured continuously on each day of the two week-end event. The First U.S. Army Band will be featured on October 4th and the fun continues to Bluegrass music, a Dutch band etc.

For the young, and young at heart, steam engine rides and contests such as apple bobbing will be held each day; a craft fair with over 100 artisans and craftsmen will be demonstrating their skills; antique gas engines and equipment will be running and antique autos will be on display.

The grand finale of the festival is the selection of the National Apple Queen "Miss Apple Queen U.S.A." Visitors are invited to attend the judging of the State Queens from the eleven apple producing states in attendance. Visitors are also invited to attend the gala Apple Harvest Ball set for October 11th.

For complete details and a free color booklet with a descriptive map write the Gettysburg Travel Council, Dept. 8-Y, 35 Carlisle St., Gettysburg, Pa. 17325, Telephone 717/334-6274. Or, contact The Apple Harvest Festival, Box 38, Biglerville, Pa. 17307, Telephone 717/677-9413.

National apple queen to be chosen

GETTYSBURG — Eleven state apple queens from Pennsylvania to California will vie for the coveted crown of "Miss Apple Queen U.S.A." October 11 at the 1980 Apple Harvest Festival.

The Festival, held the first two week-ends of October in one of the nation's most productive fruit regions, is one of the major festivals held annually in Pennsylvania.

Although the Festival itself features entertainment, artisans, craftsmen and tours of the picturesque apple orchards, the Festival highlight is undoubtedly the judging and selection of the new National Apple Queen.

Beauty will be very apparent among the participants from the eleven apple producing states in attendance, but poise, personality, knowledge of apples and public speaking ability will be the main factors used by the judges.

The eager contestants, who are single and between the ages of 16 to 22, will be competing from the apple producing states of Pennsylvania, Arkansas, California, Maryland, Michigan, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, Virginia and West Virginia.

Public events for the queens will include participation in the Gettysburg Apple Harvest Mart from 2 to 3:45 p.m. on Friday, October 10th. The Mart will be held in downtown Gettysburg on Lincoln Square and will include colorful displays of fruit, vegetables, crafts, homemade baked goods, etc.

At 7 p.m. that night, the public is again invited to participate in the apple dessert sampler which will be held at the Hickory Bridge Farm. There, at 8 p.m. the queens with their state banners and crowns, will each deliver a three minute speech on an apple related topic.

On Saturday, October 11th the queens will participate in various activities at the Apple Festival held 10 miles north of Gettysburg at the South Mountain Fairgrounds.

Then, that evening at the Apple Harvest Ball; set to be held at the Carroll Valley Country Club, the judging will be concluded with the selection of the "1980 Miss Apple Queen U.S.A."

For tickets to the Ball and other events, or additional information, contact The Gettysburg Area Chamber of Commerce, Dept. A-1, 33 York Street, Gettysburg, Pa. 17325, or call 717/334-8151.

Ag Secretary praises milk security act

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell Wednesday told the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board that regulations affecting the Milk Producers' and Cooperative Security Funds Act must treat all segments of the dairy industry with fairness and equal opportunity.

Hallowell said, "The Pennsylvania Milk Producers' and Cooperative Security Funds Act is a major improvement from the previous bonding limitations...a solid first step."

He said the Act "demonstrates that Pennsylvania's dairy industry can unite for a common cause when the best interest of the grass roots dairy farmer is at stake."

The Milk Security Fund has been a major goal of the Thornburgh Administration, and became law when signed by the Governor on July 10, 1980.

Hallowell said, "Our initial goal was to move quickly to provide our dairy farmers with security from dealer to cooperative bankruptcy."

He added, "We wanted to get the framework for a working bill on the books, realizing that finishing touches could be applied at a later time."

The Agriculture Secretary told the Board that the Act can serve its intended purpose, without any amendments to the law at this time. He recommended a technical revision for proposed regulations, inserting a definition for "trust company."

J I Case Needs a Few New Dealers

We are looking for enterprising businessmen who understand agricultural equipment retailing. "We" being the J I Case Company. Founded in 1842, Case now has over 3,000 dealers world-wide and an unsurpassed reputation for product quality, reliability and current growth.

If you think that the farm equipment business requires involvement with many different product lines, you'll find Case an interesting exception. As a Case Tractor Specialist, you concentrate on one major product line, agricultural tractors and related tillage tools, because Case builds nothing but tractors for the farm market.

Case Dealers sell twelve basic tractors, 43 to 300 horsepower. Five models are under 90 horsepower, four are the exciting new 90 series - 108 to 180 horsepower; and our three big four-wheel drive tractors lead the booming 4WD market

High potential marketing areas are available now. Profitable Case light construction and outdoor power equipment contracts may also be available. As a Case Tractor Specialist, you would benefit from liberal financing policies, attractive consumer terms and time-proven Case Rental Systems.

Case produce and policy advantages, when combined with your own aggressive sales and management abilities, will afford you the opportunity to realize an excellent return on your investment

TORQUE AMPLIFIER, CLUTCH & WATER PUMP PARTS & SERVICE

Rebuilt TA assemblies for IH tractors from SMTA through 1586. Water pumps, Dyna-Life clutches and pressure plates from A, B, C through 1586 and for many of the combines, 101 - 303 through the 915.

If you are operating a shop or are a farmer who does his own mechanical work, then you will do well to compare the parts which I have to offer. Complete rebuilt TA assemblies for 706 - 1586 are priced from $525.00 and come with a Dana Co. heavy Duty Sprag clutch instead of the usual IH sprag. These TA units are being installed in many of the leading IH shops across the country instead of the IH units.

Also have available assorted parts for TA's which are not available individually through new parts at IH. I am prepared to do complete installation at competitive prices and will match any guarantee that is offered on TA units or rebuilt clutches, pressure plates & water pumps. I will also install original factory parts on request.

For a no obligation estimate or for information and references write or call me.

Hisex White wins more contests around the world than any other layer! The secret is consistency — more eggs on less feed, more profit over feed cost flock after flock, under all sorts of commercial conditions! No wonder so many more egg producers are scoring with our white bird. Hisex Brown, so easy to grow and handle, has everything, too — high peak, big hen-housed production, penny-pinching feed conversion. You have to look to be sure it's brown! So whichever league you're in, get with a winner! Talk it over with your Hisex Representative. Soon.

Kathleen Denlinger rips into rug braiding

BY SALLY BAIR
Staff Correspondent

It's fair time in Lancaster County, and crafty people are busy searching out samples of their finest work to ready them for display and competition at the local fairs.

Kathleen Denlinger, Denlinger Road, Gap, has been exhibiting at three local fairs and the Pennsylvania State Farm Show for many years, and is currently gathering a sample of her rug braiding and smocking to enter at the Solanco Fair. Later her entries will travel to the Lampeter Fair and to the New Holland Fair.

This is being written before judging at the first fair is completed, but the wool braided rug she is entering is a work of art. Kathleen recalls that she learned rug braiding about 12 years ago and started entering fairs after that. "The very first time I entered a braided rug at the Farm Show I took first," she says proudly.

She became interested in braiding through a brother-in-law who makes rugs and took her initial course at Octorara High School "to help fill a class" which didn't have enough applicants. She says learning to braid is not hard, "for me. I don't think it's difficult."

Kathleen wanted to make a braided rug for her dining room, but was cautioned against making a 9 x 12 rug for her first project. So she quickly completed a smaller 3 x 5 rug and then moved onto the larger one. The largest rug she ever made was a 12 x 16 foot rug which was sold and which took over a year to complete.

Kathleen's rugs are made from 100 percent wool and she prefers using new fabric. "I don't like to use scraps. For the time you put into it, it doesn't make sense not to have it wear well," she states. She purchases her wool by the pound at the Amish Farm and House. She estimates that it takes approximately one pound of wool per square foot of rug.

Choosing colors for the finished product is a job Kathleen enjoys and she admits that she has a good sense of what looks good together. She laughs when asked if she sells her products, and says, "I do, but I don't charge enough."

She has one rug in a home in New Jersey and before she tackled the colors she traveled there to visit the home where the three living room rugs would be used. Usually she says she uses a piece of wallpaper or a covering from the arm of furniture to help with the selection.

After selecting the wool, the first step is ripping the wool or cutting it. Some wool will rip, once Kathleen starts it with her wool cutter. Strips are cut 1-5/8 inches wide. When she has a quantity of wool to be ripped, Kathleen invites the neighborhood children for an afternoon, and then treats them to ice cream. "They think it's fun," she says. She recalls doing the ripping in her home, but the fuzz was overwhelming so now the chore is done in the garage.

Once all the wool is cut, she begins to braid. As the braiding progresses she works with lacing the rug together with linen lacing thread. She said her rugs are laced so the right and wrong side are the same.

While she does the braiding on the small rugs in her family room or kitchen, Kathleen says she sits on her basement floor to work on larger ones. "I sit on a pillow and go around the floor," she states.

In the Spring, she helped with some braiding at a local church and as she demonstrated, she heard comments like, "She must be strong. It's good she's so small or she couldn't work on the floor like that." Kathleen responds that the floor work does not bother her, and she does have good strength from pulling the lacing thread tight. "The tighter it is the better it is," she points out. She also noted a blister on her finger from pulling the thread.

The wool rugs she braids are extremely durable. "I turn my rug at every housecleaning so that each side wears better. You should also put a pad under the rug. It makes it last a lot longer," she states.

Kathleen is exhibiting a rug she made for the minister of her church, done in muted shades of off-white, light blue, reds and dark blues. She said, "I will take the rug to all three fairs, but you can't enter a rug a second time. I will probably enter this rug at the Farm Show in January but I might make another one to take there." She has good thoughts about the rug she is exhibiting, saying, "I think I will win. It rolls out flat." Whatever she does, it's a sure bet it will place right up there with the best Kathleen says, "I've never lost."

Despite her dry garden, Kathleen has had real success with her hanging plants this year and is considering entering them in fairs along with her braided rugs and smocked dresses. She is holding a Tahitian bridal veil and is standing next to a lush Swedish ivy, both of which she started from cuttings.

She explains that judging is done on the basis of the color combination, how flat is lays when it is unrolled, how tightly it is laced and if the edges show. Kathleen pointed out how carefully color changes are effected, usually at a corner, so as hardly to be noticed.

Asked if she has a hard time parting with rugs she has made for sale, she laughed and said, "I usually want them done. You get tired of working with the same one." One advantage of braiding and lacing together is that color changes occur which makes it more interesting as the work progresses.

Kathleen's husband Thomas died five years ago at this time of the year, and he was very supportive and helpful when fair time comes. She has four children, Tom, 24, who lives on a dairy farm in Leola with his wife Janice and eight-month-old son Tommy; Heidi, a graduate of Millersville State College; Kathi, 16, a senior at Pequea Valley High School; and Todd, 12, a seventh grader. The children all help around the house, with Heidi sharing her mother's interest in needlework. Kathi and Todd are members of the New Holland Baby Beef 4-H Club.

Kathleen Denlinger shows the braided rug which she will exhibit at the community fairs this Fall. Her braided rugs are made of 100 percent wool, and are carefully braided and laced to make them a work of art.

The Denlinger family enjoys doing things together as a unit, and Kathleen says she traveled with her three younger children to Kansas City when Tom received his American Farmer Degree in 1977.

Another speciality of Kathleen's is smocking, a little-practiced art these days. She recalls that she learned to smock before she was married when she was helping a woman with a newborn baby. That same baby was in her wedding, and Kathleen estimates that she's been smocking for 28 years. In that time she has made 237 smocked dresses. She knows the exact count because she keeps a swatch of each piece of fabric with the name of the person for whom it was made. Kathleen says, "I started making them as baby gifts. I love them."

She has a favorite pattern for a baby dress which has now been discontinued by McCalls. Kathleen said, "I wrote to them and asked them please to start including it again. I always get an answer when I write."

A third love of Kathleen's is needlepoint, and she has lovely examples throughout her house. Her needlepoint is something she keeps close at hand to pick up and take along to a doctor's appointment and other places where waiting is involved. "I keep a piece in the car," she noted. She admits that she often sits with the phone on her shoulder and works on projects as she talks.

Kathleen entered her first exhibits at the New Holland Fair, and added the Lampeter Community Fair and the Solanco Fair. "Once it gets in your blood you don't want to quit. I pick out something and I take it. I used to take stuff from my garden because I figured if I was going I may as well take a lot," she said about her exhibiting.

When she arrives at the fair, she knows exactly what category each item belongs in to save time in entering them all. She laments that this year her garden suffered from lack of rainfall, like many others, and she will not be entering vegetables. She has several lush hanging baskets which she is considering entering if she can figure out a way to get them safely transported there.

Kathleen feels there is more competition and interest in handwork than ever, and she feels exhibiting is a lot of fun. She said she has met many people whom she gets to know as they each return to the fair to enter and pick up their exhibits.

An extremely busy homemaker, Kathleen also sings in the choir at Bellevue Presbyterian Church in Gap and serves as a substitute Sunday School teacher as well as helping with Bible School. She is active in the women's group which serves wedding receptions, funeral lunches and other food functions at the church.

Kathleen is in charge of Meals on Wheels in the Gap area, something she said she thoroughly enjoys. "It's fun. You get attached to the older people and it makes you feel good. I've enjoyed it." She arranges for drivers for the nine families they are serving, and when someone can't make it she usually takes the meals herself.

Kathleen said she enjoys anything outside, and she relishes telling how she worked a full afternoon this summer cutting tobacco with an Amish neighbor. "I speeded out the row," she says with a laugh.

Homestead Notes

Needlepoint is a favorite craft of Kathleen's. Here is an antique shoe polishing chest which she refinished and created a needlepoint for.

This is an example of the smocking which Kathleen does on little girls' dresses. She will exhibit a smocked dress at the community fairs, along with other hand work she creates.

Homestead Notes

This summer Kathleen and her three youngest children went to the Passion Play and a tour of Germany, Switzerland and Austria. "The Passion Play was really the highlight of the whole thing. I also liked the window boxes and the clean gardens," she recalled. She said she and her daughter Heidi took their needlework along on the plane and found plenty of time to work on their projects. She even brought back a needlepoint kit from Europe.

Kathleen says she always has several projects going, and picks up "whatever suits my fancy. If I have a deadline I do that project first." She calls her projects "relaxing" for her, and says she braids rugs mostly in the winter.

Kathleen Denlinger's needlework offers her not only enjoyment, but also a sense of accomplishment. Her entries at the fair each year afford many people the opportunity to see and enjoy the work which brings her pleasure as she works on it and as she sees it go into homes in the community.

Whoop it up during Indian Summer

For those without gardens or crops to worry about, this summer has been one of long, warm days and lots of bright sunshine for picnics and outdoor activities. For farmers, Summer 1980 has been a time of parched fields here in the state, which made relaxing under the sunshine a little more difficult. In either case, the summer is about to become history, for autumn officially comes in on Monday.

Often the change from summer into fall is a one of puzzling decisions — which blouse do I wear today, the short sleeved or the long sleeved? do I put the lawn furniture away? shall we go to the beach one last time, or to the mountains to preview the foliage? etc.

The problem is often one of category. We like to categorize the season as summer or fall. Some things which are enjoyable in either season do not fit a particular slot. Such are our recipes today.

While we often run recipe topics, now during the last issue of summer seemed like a perfect time to run our readers' recipes which have not been used under other topics and are well worth sharing. So enjoy the last hours of summer this weekend and fall into the old routine Monday with some new recipes.

An unusual pork chop treatment using frozen lemonade concentrate in combination with currant jelly, brown sugar and mustard is found in Broiled Lemon Pork Chops. Look for the recipe in today's column.

YOGURT SALAD DRESSING

1 cup plain yogurt
2 teaspoons milk
1 teaspoon lemon juice
¼ teaspoon garlic salt
¼ teaspoon onion salt

Combine all ingredients and chill. Serve with vegetable salad. Makes 1 cup.

Mrs. Charles Biehl, Mertztown

BARBECUED CHICKEN SANDWICHES

1 tablespoon butter
⅔ cup catsup
2 tablespoons brown sugar
1 tablespoon Worcestershire sauce
1 teaspoon chili powder, optional
1 teaspoon salt
dash pepper
4 cups cooked, diced chicken
6 sandwich buns

Melt the butter in a pan and stir in the other ingredients except the chicken. Simmer about 3 minutes. Add the chicken. If more liquid is needed, add more ketchup. Heat to serving temperature. Steam buns until soft. Put the mixture on buns and serve.

Mrs. Aaron W. Huber, Myerstown

ROQUEFORT DRESSING

½ cup mayonnaise
½ cup light cream
1½ teaspoons lemon juice
4 ounces Roquefort or blue cheese

Combine the mayonnaise, light cream and lemon juice. Crumble cheese into mayonnaise mixture and mix well. Chill and serve with lettuce or tomato wedges. Makes 1½ cups.

Mrs. Charles Biehl, Mertztown

GINGER MOLASSES COOKIES

½ cup lard
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
¼ cup blackstrap molasses
2¼ cups unsifted flour
2 teaspoons baking soda
1 teaspoon cinnamon
½ teaspoon ginger
¼ teaspoon cloves
¼ teaspoon salt
granulated sugar

Cream the lard and add brown sugar, egg and molasses. Beat well. Mix in remaining ingredients except granulated sugar. Cover and chill overnight. Shape into balls the size of a walnut. Roll in sugar and place 2 inches apart. Bake at 375° F. for 9-10 minutes. Remove immediately from the cookie sheet. Cookies will look unbaked at 9 minutes, but are done. For best results, use lard.

Mildred M. Cella, Loganton

APPLE FRITTERS

1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sugar
1 egg, beaten
¾ cup milk
4 medium tart apples, chopped

Mix all the ingredients together and fry in a frying pan until browned.

Mrs. Charles Biehl, Mertztown

PORK CHOPS IN SOUP

6 pork chops
1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon pepper
2 tablespoons butter
4 cups thinly sliced potatoes
⅓ cup chopped onions
1 can cream of mushroom soup
1¼ cup milk

Fry the pork chops in melted butter and onions. Brown lightly on both sides. Put in buttered casserole or roast pan Add sliced potatoes. Blend soup and milk and pour over the potatoes. Cover. Bake at 350° F. for 30 minutes. Uncover and continue baking for 30-40 minutes until the potatoes are done.

Mrs. Janet Heller, Robesonia

CANNED TOMATO SOUP

6 onions, chopped
1 bunch celery, chopped
8 quarts fresh tomatoes, quartered
1 cup sugar
¼ cup salt
1 cup butter
1 cup flour

Start cooking the onions in a little water. Add the celery and tomatoes, washed and chopped. Cook together until tender. Put through a food sieve. Return the juice to the kettle and add the sugar and salt. Cream the butter and flour and add to the mixture. Blend well and simmer until slightly thickened. Cook as for gravy and put the boiling soup into pint jars. Use recommended canning procedures. When serving, put into the saucepan and add 2 pinches of baking soda. Heat slightly and stir in an equal amount of milk.

Ladies Have You Heard?

By Doris Thomas
Lancaster Extension Home Economist

CHECK WATER HEATER FOR HEAT LOSS

It is almost certain you can save money if you add more insulation to your hot water tank. If the tank water is not well insulated, energy is being wasted and you're paying for it.

Test for heat loss by placing your hand on the side of the tank. If the tank is warm, heat that should remain inside is being lost. By wrapping insulation around the water heater you can start saving energy dollars immediately. Do not cover the vents at the top of the heater.

Kits are available to use in adding insulation at building supply outlets, hardware stores or in mail order catalogs. Tape is supplied with most kits although bands of wire will adequately secure the insulation.

Pipes which carry hot water should also be insulated. A great deal of heat can be lost along the way, especially if the pipes travel through an unheated crawl space or basement. Easy-to-apply pipe insulation is available and should installed wherever pipes are accessible.

Water heaters use more energy than any cooking or refrigeration appliance; they are second in energy consumption only to the heating system. Because it accounts for a major part of your total energy use, investigate whether insulating the heater and the hot water pipes may cut down on wastefulness of energy and money.

INVOLVE FAMILY IN ESTATE PLANNING

Running the family's financial business should be a joint undertaking by all family members, including children, as soon as they can understand the process.

From the daily processes of managing the cash flow and the monthly income and outgo evolves the larger task of estate planning. This, too, should be a process that involves all family members as children become old enough to understand.

Estate planning does not just entail writing a will; first, good financial records must be maintained so an accurate picture can be made of the estate's value. It may be helpful to look back over income tax returns and cancelled checks for the past six years. These should be kept as part of your financial records.

Estate planning should be viewed as a positive process of doing what you want with your assets or estate for whomever you designate.

Estate planning involves:

*Making decisions, plans, and taking action NOW regarding dependents and/or other beneficiaries concerning real and personal property.

*Providing for you and your dependents until and during retirement.

*Sharing wealth among your survivors according to YOUR desires.

*Allocating living expenses for dependents while they wait for your estate to be settled.

*Avoiding waste of an estate through death taxes and legal costs.

*Reducing misunderstanding among survivors as to your wishes.

*Designating guardians–financial and/or personal–to ensure the welfare of minor children or mentally or physically limited family members or relatives (survivors).

Keep in mind that the main purpose of estate planning is to do something for your survivors by providing for their financial well-being and giving them guidance if they are minor children. Help your survivors through a difficult time upon your death by dealing with hard, financial facts before you die. By discussing in advance with a wife, husband, and children or others to whom you want to share in your estate, you minimize and perhaps eliminate the confusion of settling financial affairs which must be settled soon after a death.

LANCASTER COUNTY DAIRYMEN:

IT'S A FACT: chances are better than 9 out of 10 that your herd of slick, high-producing cows is infected with roundworms. Here are five more facts you should know about worms, the production losses they can cause, and how to help stop them with TBZ, the prefreshening cattle wormer.

FACT 1—Most wormy cows "look healthy" because they eat enough to feed the worms AND to keep themselves looking good. University, Extension and other scientists have proved over 90 percent of all cattle are wormy, even in cold, northern climates.

FACT 2—Worms can cut production, even in top herds, by as much as 400 to 500 pounds per head per lactation...shown in trials in Wisconsin, Vermont and other dairy states.

FACT 3—One out of four dairymen now worm routinely, and thousands more are beginning every year.

FACT 4—Worming each cow with TBZ before she calves lets her begin lactation clean, and helps make peak production possible all through lactation.

FACT 5—TBZ is a one-dose, one-time worming treatment available in paste, bolus, suspension and pellet forms. At the stanchion or in the calving pen, TBZ makes worming each cow as she freshens simple, easy, quick.

Ida's Notebook

Ida Risser

How times do change. There are now many more working mothers than there were during the 1950's and 1960's when I was raising our six children. I don't envy them one bit as they struggle to be superwoman and juggle home, family and job responsibilites.

Our own daughter has chosen to go back to her job as a nurse practioneer and have a baby sitter care for her four month old son. When one has spend many years getting an education, I'm sure it is a great temptation to use it and earn a good living in the bargain. And who is to say but that the child may be better off for having many outside contacts.?

Already, David has traveled up and down the Pacific Coast visiting in many homes, gone to some of the better restaurants and been to a baseball game and saw the Phillies beat the Giants.

In my time, I was satisfied to stay home and bring up my own children. I'd worked eight years in an office and had enough of working outside the home. It was nice to be able to make my own hours in so far as that was possible with small ones demanding constant attention. I've always been able to go it alone and when they came home from the hospital there was no one here to help.

So, I simply did the best I could and went right out in the garden and got to work.

And to change the subject a bit, now when I work in the kitchen, I have very tiny uninvited guests. I'm talking about some ants that have come in from outside and despite my best efforts, I can not get rid of them. Any traps are completely ignored and ant spray deters them only momentarily.

Finally I tried my mother's and grandmother's method and poured a huge canner of boiling water on the ground outside the window where they come in—it only takes a pin-size hole for them to crawl into the house. That seemed to work for three days but then they regrouped and came calling again.

Maybe cold weather will discourage them.

Short course for new farmers

KENNETT SQUARE — How much money do you need to operate a farm? Will livestock or cash crops be more profitable for someone just getting started in farming?

Tough questions, but questions you will have to answer if you are thinking about starting a family business.

Now a special short course has been planned for those who have thought about getting into farming but who lack the practical experience.

Offered by the Penn State's Extension Service and the University of Pennsylvania's School of Veterinary Medicine, the new farmers short course will cover basic steps in livestock and crop production as well as the economic aspects of acquiring land, taxation, and budgeting a farm business.

The short course will be held October 25 at the University of Pennsylvania's New Bolton Center near Kennett Square. Enrollment will be limited to the first 150 individuals who register.

The session includes the following schedule:

Switch fertilizer tanks to a Calumet vacuum tank with soil injector

Liquid hog manure can save thousands of dollars in commercial fertilizer costs. So it makes sense to preserve that value with good management.

That's why Calumet recommends pairing our vacuum tank with a 2 or 4-shank Calumet soil injector. Soil plow down retains about four times the nitrogen lost with surface spreading, plus reduces odor and runoff.

Stop in to see the full line of Calumet vacuum tanks — in capacities from 1180 to 4500 gallons and choice of two vacuum pumps. And ask about the benefits of using a Calumet 2 or 4-shank soil injector.

On being a farm wife -And other hazards

Joyce Bupp

Gee whiz, Summer, is it time for you to go?

The heated relationship we've had for the past several weeks seems to be cooling a bit. And, while you haven't made any solid commitments about leaving, still, the subtle hints are there.

For instance, you've begun your season outburst of decorating for your farewell party. Scarlet speckles are brightening the green of the dogwoods and golden overtones have started creeping across some of the plants on the hillsides.

Up the road, the orchards have donned the polka dots of crimson apples, purple plums and yellowing pears. Suddenly the meadows are outfitted in acres of goldenrod, waving with the winds in their cheerful lacy costumes.

Then last week one night you sneaked out to snatch the green from the cornfields and leave behind a dull, listless, dusty brown instead. The practical joke was too much for most of the stalks, and their ears are drooping with frustration.

There'll be some sadness when you finally do go. We'll miss the special things we've been sharing together: afternoon swims, supper on the back porch, fiery red gladiolus in the green vase on the buffet and platters of steaming sweet corn just a half-hour removed from the field.

But, while you're leaving, don't leave those few little problems of yours behind. The flies, for instances. And hail. Poison ivy. And the starlings eating pokeberries in the trees over the washline.

Now don't forget — we've made a reservation here for you next year. Y'all come back now, hear?

Delaware ag museum to run harvest festival

DOVER, Del. — A Fall Harvest Festival is being planned as the second major event of the new Delaware Agricultural Museum. The event, which will include a full range of harvest-oriented activities, will be held October 18 at the museum site on Route 13 in Dover. The facility will open at 10 a.m. and close at 5 p.m.

The Festival plans will center around harvest activities on a late 1800,s era farm and the social interaction that occurred during that second, according to Paul Parvis, director-curator of the museum.

Activities to be demonstrated during the festival include basket making, quilting, hand hewing and shingle making, blacksmithing, cider pressing and apple butter making. Tradesmen will not only demonstrate their skills, but will involve festival participants whenever possible.

Several forms of 1800s era entertainment will be performed throughout the day, incuding country dancing and bluegress music.

The full museum facility will also be open including the main exhibit building, a blacksmith shop, one-room school, farmhouse and grist mill. The mill is in final stages of construction and the farmhouse is undergoing restoration.

The blacksmith shop already has been restored and is operational. The school house will be complete except for some interior fixtures.

Admission charges to the Fall Harvest Festival include adults $2 children 10 to 16 and senior citizens $1, and children under 10 free. Traditional foods will be available at nominal charges and free parking will be provided.

The Delaware Agricultural Museum is operated by the Delaware Agricultural Museum Association, a private nonprofit educational corporation. Membership is open to anyone who is interested in Delaware's agricultural history and costs $5 annually.

More information about the Harvest Festival is available from the museum in Dover. It's located just south of the Delaware State College Campus. Telephone 302/734-1618 or contact Jerry Webb in Newark, telephone 302/738-2500.

Centre Co.'s Stephanie Chicko is PQHA queen

BY SHEILA MILLER

HARRISBURG — This year's Pennsylvania Quarter Horse Association queen is Stephanie Chicko, a twenty-two year old resident of Centre County.

Stephanie, who will be graduating this Winter from Penn State with a degree in animal production, has been riding horses since she was ten years old. She now owns three horses — one Thoroughbred mare and two Quarter Horse geldings.

Stephanie is an accomplished equestrienne, riding both English and Western. She is a member of the Penn State Equestrian Team, and received her Assistant Instructor's Degree from Fox Hollow Farms, Chester Springs.

Although she was never a member of 4-H, Stephanie has learned the ropes of showing horses over the past four years. She said she likes meeting people and the competition best as far as her career in showing goes. "I learn a lot in each class I enter," she added. "The judges point out what I need to improve on."

After graduating in February, Stephanie said she hopes to find a job as an investigator for the Humane Society, along with showing horses. "I would really like to event — three days of dressage, jumping, and cross country riding."

With the Humane Society, the PQHA queen said she would be working with the American Horse Protection Association, helping them with the problems of abused animals.

Concerning her feelings about the Quarter Horse Breed, Stephanie described them as "versatile and steady". She explained that these horses are "calmer and more reliable" and they perform well in just about any job — reining, cutting, eventing, dressage, or jumping.

For any youngster serious about buying a horse, Stephanie recommended that they visit a reputable trainer who can give them advice and fit them with the proper horse.

Stephanie, who has trained horses for four years, stressed the importance of matching horse and rider, especially their personalities.

"Each horse has a different personality that the rider must accept, otherwise there will be personality conflicts. If a horse has sensitive sides, the rider has to learn not to use leg pressure; with a horse with no sides, the rider will really have to use pressure.

As far as her feelings on showing horses goes, Stephanie said she feels if a horse does its job in the show ring, the size of the horse should make no difference to the judge. Selecting for the biggest horses in each class, she said; has led to leg problems in the Quarter Horse breed. However, she quickly added that different breeders have varying opinions.

With two months under her Western belt buckle that sports the image of her favorite breed, Stephanie has already had a busy Summer, and is scheduled for an even more hectic Fall. But with her enthusiasm and loyalty for the Quarter Horse breed, the Association can rest easily and know their breed's representation is in competant hands.

PQHA Queen Stephanie Chicko and her Quarter Horse Gelding, "Goodie", an unusual gray, were recently in the spotlight at the Eastern International Horse Show in Harrisburg.

Farrier Forging Contest kicks off tomorrow

KENNETT SQUARE — A Farrier Forging Contest will be held tomorrow at New Bolton Center, the large animal facility of the University of Pennsylvania School of Veterinary Medicine.

Farrier forging, which is another name for making horseshoes, is an art which is much in demand. The best forgers can look at a horse's hoof and make a shoe to fit without taking any measurements.

Sunday's all day event begins at 9 a.m. with contestants making a variety of horseshoes. At about 2:30 p.m. the forgers will fit shoes to horses as the crowd looks on.

The experts from New Bolton Center have set up events involving a number of conditions in horses which can be alleviated by using the proper kind of shoe. In one event a veterinarian will read an x-ray for the farriers, and they will try to make a shoe that will alleviate the condition presented.

The farriers, each with their own portable forge and anvil, will set up in two rows, facing each other across a 40-foot corridor, making it possible for visitors to observe their work and compare, without interfering.

Horseshoes and ornamental ironwork will also be on display throughout the day and awards will be given for the winning display board.

A chicken barbecue lunch will be available for those who get hungry watching the strenuous effort involved in heating, bending and shaping solid iron bars into horseshoes. Tickets for the barbecue will be available at the door.

Test available to check nutrition for pregnant ewes

BELTSVILLE, MD — A medical test used extensively in the U.S. is being adapted by U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists to improve meat production, particularly lamb.

The test is one used by diabetics to determine the level in their urine of ketones, chemicals excreted when body fat is being used up. The test can also be used by sheep producers to determine whether ewes are getting adequate nutrients during pregnancy, according to G. Paul Lynch of USDA's Science and Education Administration.

"The ketone test can be especially helpful to owners of small flocks who carefully mange their animals for maximum lamb production," says Lynch, of the Ruminant Nutrition Laboratory at SEA's Beltsville Agricultural Research Center in Maryland.

Lynch points out that a trend in sheep production in recent years has been to produce three lamb crops in two years, and use of breed crosses that have a high rate of multiple births.

"If a ewe is carrying two or more fetuses, she has greater nutritional requirements than a ewe carrying only one fetus," he says. "If these ewes are underfed, the result may be less lamb production rather than accelerated lamb production."

In one experiment at Beltsville, about half the lambs of underfed ewes carrying multiple fetuses were born underweight or dead.

"When an animal isn't getting enough food to meet nutritional requirements, it uses reserve body fat. And when the animal is drawing on reserve body fat, ketones show up in the urine. The disorder can be corrected by providing more feed," Lynch said.

In small flocks, it may be possible to separate ewes on the basis of test results, and give extra feed only to those who need it. Usually, these will be ewes with multiple fetuses. In larger flocks a few ewes may be tested to indicate the general nutritional status of the flock.

Ketone test kits are available in pharmacies.

Obtaining urine samples is best done by two persons, Lynch says. One person first holds a hand over the ewe's nostrils to temporarily cut off her breathing. This causes nervousness, and in response most ewes will urinate. The second person can then collect the urine sample. Only about a tablespoonful is needed for the test.

Lynch first reported research on the ketone test at a meeting of the Animal and Dairy Science Association in Morgantown, W. Va.

Feds to face fuzz at National Peach meeting

MARTINSBURG, WV — Continuing problems with government over-regulation in agriculture have led the 1981 convention committee to adopt the program theme of "Government's Role and Influence on the Peach Industry" for its 40th Anniversary Convention, February 16-19, at Del Webb's Townehouse in Phoenix, Arizona.

this is considered apositive attempt to open communications between government agencies, such as the United States Department of Labor and the United States Department of Agriculture, and growers in an effort to get on with the important business of growing food for an increasingly hungry world, and allowing a fair return for the producer, NPC said.

With the NPC 1981 convention following hot on the heels of the 1980 elections, peach growers will be asking piercing questions about farm worker programs, USDA policies, research funds, registration of chemicals, fruit grades and standards, and projected changes in agriculture.

Registrants will have the opportunity at the 40th convention to hear it from "the horse's mouth", and an opportunity to challenge and plan for the future.

The first chance to hear comments built around the convention theme will be at the keynote breakfast on Tuesday, February 17. Deputy Secretary of Agriculture James W. Williams has been invited to speak there.

The sessions after the breakfast will concentrate on "Government's Perception of Its Own Role" with speakers from Farmers Home Administration, U.S. Employment Service, and USDA's Office of Environmental Quality. Growers will have an opportunity to ask questions after the presentations.

Tuesday afternoon's session will concern "How Government Regulations Affect Peach Growers." Herbert Cohen from the United States Department of Labor will explain the Farm Labor Contractor's Registration Act of 1974. In rebuttal, Keith Eckels, a grower from Summit Point, PA, will have the opportunity to elaborate on how this regulation has affected his business and what he has done about it.

Speakers from USDA's Agricultural Marketing Service will discuss the Capper-Wolstead Act and fruit grades and standards. William Quirles from Sunkist Growers will comment on how the Capper-Volstead Act has benefitted Sunkist. Anthony "Tony" Rubino of Blue Goose Growers will present current problems and suggest solutions for problems involving grades and standards for peaches.

Wednesday, February 18, will be a dynamite-packed session suggesting "How Growers Can Effect Change". The first speaker of this session will be Antonio Mendez, president of the Agricultural Communications Consultants.

Mendez was a trusted member of the United Farmworkers of America for seven years, first as a volunteer, and later as a paid staff member (boycott organizer, picketer and field organizer). He became completely disenchanted with the union and its tactics in 1970 and joined the California growers to fight the blight of union encroachments. He's been fighting ever since.

Larry Waterfield, Washington editor of The Packer and Drover's Journal, will comment on regulations or proposed regulations that might have an impact on the peach industry and will suggest to growers how to use the press to aid in making changes in agricultural policies.

Since the registration of minor-use chemicals has become a problem, Paul Schwartz, National Program Leader, Pest Control Materials, National Program Staff, USDA, at Beltsville, MD, will discuss how special funds were appropriated for research to promote the registration of such chemicals.

The success of this program, how it might affect peach production, and how growers can affect Federal agricultural research programs and policies will be explored.

The educational program of the convention will wind down Wednesday afternoon with a look at "Projected Changes in Agriculture". W. Klassen, National Research Program Leader, Pest Management, USDA, at Beltsville, MD, will speak on the subject of integrated pest management — how IPM programs will impact on the future of peach production and the rest of agriculture.

Robert Reginato, U.S. Water Conservation Laboratory, USDA, at Phoenix, AZ, will talk about remote sensing technology and its future application in agriculture. He will discuss what changes might be brought to agriculture as a result of this country's space program and associated technologies of aerial surveillance and remote sensing.

The potential for peach propagation by tissue culture techniques will be related by Freddi Hammerschlag, plant physiologist, Cell Culture and Nitrogen Fixation Laboratory, USDA, Belt-

Professor Kean retires after over 30 years

BY SHEILA MILLER

STATE COLLEGE — "I can't believe a lot of people came to hear a little bit of bull," were the closing remarks of Penn State's Professor Glenn Kean during an Appreciation Night held in his honor last Friday evening.

The Ag Hill instructor's statement was quite accurate as he looked around a jam-packed room filled with close to 400 of his friends and co-workers.

Many fellow instructors from Penn State, along with former students, traveled anywhere from a few miles to several hundred miles to pay tribute to the Professor.

The Penn State herdsman was heard to remark, "There's only one other person at Penn State that would have this many people turn out for their retirement party — and that's Joe Paterno."

During the evening, Professor Kean was "roasted" by well-known folks in the agricultural field and the meats industry such as Thomas King, Bill Baumgardt, Mick Colvin, Becky Perkins, Henry Gruber, Ron Fouche, John Brubaker, J.M. Beattie, and Don Ace.

They delved back into Professor Kean's past with great zeal and exageration,

(Turn to Page C19)

Taking his seat of honor, Professor Glenn Kean prepares to enjoy the night of appreciation given him by close to 400 former students and fellow Penn State staff.

Dean J. M. Beatie congratulates Professor Glenn Kean on his retirement and future distinction of Professor Emeritus.

sville, MD. She will tell to what extent tissue culture techniques are being used commercially for agricultural crops, and the success of tissue culture research on peaches.

Since we are not living in the computer age, Howard F. Lehnert Jr., National Program Leader, Emergency Preparedness, USDA, in Washington, DC, will demonstrate his Green Thumb" computer aid and explain how this new system can serve agriculture in general and peach growers in particular.

As growers and others listen and learn during the educational sessions, it will be apparent that National Peach Council has weathered well the last 40 years and is indeed still "Growing at 40".

Professor Kean

exposing the "King of the Bullshippers" as a "diamond in the rough".

Glenn Kean began his existence in Dempseytown, Pennsylvania and grew up on his family's dairy farm. His upbringing on the farm prepared him for the hard work ahead of him when he enrolled at Penn State in 1939 after graduating from Oil City High School.

The Professor, a Dairy Husbandry student, fell back on his farm-learned skills of milking and other farm chores to help pay his way through school. But he always managed to have time to participate in both the Dairy Science and Block and Bridle clubs, earning the distinction of Grand Champion Fitter at the 1940 Dairy Expo and Grand Champion Showman at the 1942 Little International Livestock Show.

During his collegiate years, the Professor also was a member of the Dairy Cattle Judging Team, the Livestock Judging Team, the Meats Judging Team and the Penn State Track and Cross Country Team.

Kean received his Bachelor's Degree in Dairy Husbandry in 1942.

From the time he received his college diploma until he was discharged in 1947, Kean served his country in the U.S. Army, attaining the rank of Captain.

After the service, Kean returned to Penn State to work on his Masters Degree in Animal Husbandry which he received in 1948. After a brief tour of duty as the Assistant County Agricultural Agent in Fayette County, the Professor once again returned to Penn State — this time as an instructor in animal husbandry.

Then, in 1974, the Professor finally became official — he was promoted to the rank of Professor of Animal Science on July 1.

During his career at Penn State, Professor Kean taught many students the fundamentals of beef cattle management and the basics of the meat industry. He counseled them and molded them through his extra efforts as coach for the judging teams and advisor for Student Council, Delta Theta Sigma fraternity, and as the Block and Bridle Club's "father-image" for 28 years.

Now, after 30 odd years, the Professor has decided it's time to retire. As a tribute to his contributions and outstanding work, College of Agriculture Dean J.M. Beattie announced that the Board of Trustees has accepted the recommendation of the Department of Dairy and Animal Sciences to confer upon Glenn Kean the status of Professor Emeritus.

"I didn't do anything for the students that I didn't want to do," concluded Kean. "I always got paid back."

Henry Gruber, former Ag Hill student and buyer for A & B Packing, Allentown, helps the Professor size up the warm long underwear --- presented to him by the meats judging teams who spent many hours in cold coolers with their coach.

USDA to allow tenderizers

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The U.S. Department of Agriculture has revised its meat and poultry inspection regulations to permit the use of tenderizers in all red meats and mature poultry, effective October 6. Formerly, tenderizers were permitted in beef only.

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Carol Tucker Foreman said if tenderizers—called proteolytic enzymes—are used, the label must indicate it with a descriptive statement next to the product name—for example, "Tenderized with Papain." If any substance other than water is used in the enzyme solution, it must also be shown on the label, she said. Weight gain from an enzyme solution is limited to three percent above the weight of the raw, untreated product.

Enzymes permitted under the new rule are papain, bromelin, ficin, aspergillus oryzae and the aspergillus flavus oryzae group. They are "generally recognized as safe" for use in human food by the Food and Drug Administration, Foreman said.

The final insepction will apply to all products subject to inspection under the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act, as well as to all products treated with the enzymes at retail establishments, including those establishments exempt from federal inspection requirements.

Foreman said the final regulations are based on a consideration of the comments received on the regulations proposed June 1, 1979, and the views of the National Advisory Committee on Meat and Poultry Inspection. The final regulations are the same as those proposed except for slight modifications for the purpose of clarification, she said.

This action was published in the September 5 Federal Register, available at local libraries.

Peace of mind comes in small packages.

It comes in a package as small as a Federal Crop Insurance policy. Because All-Risk Insurance takes a lot of worry and concern out of crop production.

It's a good feeling, too, to know your crop investment is protected from planting to harvest. And because you're covered, All-Risk Crop Insurance provides the needed incentive to spend a little more in fertilizers to produce a more profitable crop.

Call your FCIC representative and find out how you can use Federal Crop Insurance to build peace of mind from planting time on—with no premium to pay until harvest.

No-till corn yields an extra 27.7 bushels

POPLAR HILL, Md. — Corn planted by the no-till method after double-cropped soybeans yielded a three-year average of 27.7 bushels more per acre each year than corn planted by conventional methods in research conducted at the University of Maryland's Poplar Hill Research Farm in Wicomico County.

This is one of a number of research projects university scientists are conducting in no-tillage crop production, a relatively new technique in which crops are planted directly into mulch without tilling the soil. Current estimates indicate that 50 percent of Maryland's corn and 80 percent of the state's double-cropped soybeans are planted by the no-till method.

Out-of-state scientists and agricultural officials got a close look at the results during a recent tour of the university's no-tillage research plots and of farms around the state where the method is in practice.

Maryland's national role of leadership in no-till is emphasized by the fact that farmers in the state have increased their use of the practice 700 percent in the past 10 years. The attraction of no-till has not only been increased yields but real savings in time, energy and erosion control.

No-till corn apparently has a higher yield potential — when properly managed — than conventional till corn. At low nitrogen rates, conventional tillage corn grain yields may be higher than no-tillage, but yields worked out equally well for both systems when nitrogen was applied at optimum rates — assuming normal soil moisture.

In a related experiment, scientists compared three nitrogen fertilizers applied broadcast or injected at planting or as a delayed application. As 1980 was the first year for this project, full results are not yet available.

However, in a related test performed in 1979, no-tillage corn grain yields were increased by approximately 24 bushels per acre where nitrogen was injected into the soil, as opposed to being broadcast on the surface of the soil. Too, a similar response occurred for three different nitrogen sources.

University scientists have also examined the influence of insecticides and fertilizers on the no-tillage establishment of alfalfa seedings.

This project had two major objectives: (1) To identify the critical seeding techniques associated with the successful establishment of no-till alfalfa; and (2) To evaluate the influence of in-row phosphorus and nitrogen fertilizers on seedling establishment.

Both plant population and seedling weight were markedly increased when Furadan insecticide was banded with the seed; phosphorus and nitrogen also increased plant population and seedling weight — but only to a smaller extent.

The banding of Furadan, phosphorus and nitrogen with the seed produced the largest seedlings; the highest survival rate was obtained when Furadan or Furadan plus phosphorus were banded with the seed.

Livestock producers to watch withdrawal

NORRISTOWN — Livestock producers today use a number of different drugs and chemicals to control chronic diseases and promote more efficient conversion of feed to edible meat.

These substances contribute to the profitability of livestock production, says Nancy M. Kadwill, County Agent, Penn State Cooperative Extension Service, but the presence of many of these drugs in meat is undesirable and may be harmful to the consumer.

The Food and Drug Administration and U.S. Department of Agriculture work cooperatively to guard against drug residues in edible meats. FDA has set withdrawal times on each drug and chemical currently being used in animal feed to allow for residue depletion in tissue before slaughter. Animal products are then periodically sampled by USDA for drug residues.

The producer whose animals are shown to contain drug residues may be liable to criminal prosecution. It is the obligation of the livestock producer to know the withdrawal time of each drug used, whether fed or injected, and stop treating in sufficient time for residues to clear from the tissues of animals, Kadwill says.

Butterfat test lowest ever

Order 4 milk price $13.21 for August

ALEXANDRIA, Va. — Middle Atlantic Order Market Administrator Joseph D. Shine Wednesday announced an August 1980 base milk price of $13.21 per hundredweight and an excess milk price of $11.86.

The weighted average August price is $13.20 and the butterfat differential for the month is 16.6 cents. The base milk price increased seven cents from the previous month and is 71 cents higher tha last August's base price.

The advertising withholding rate was 12 cents a hundredweight this year compared to seven cents a year ago.

The gross value of producer milk during August was $6.25 million. A total of $569.2 thousand was deducted for advertising and promotion.

Shine said producer receipts totaled 474.4 million pounds during August, an increase of almost ten million pounds or 2.1 percent from the previous month, and nearly four percent above last August.

Class I producer milk totaled 227.9 million pounds and accounted for 48.04 percent of total producer milk receipts during the month, down from 49.30 percent in July and 52.22 percent last August.

Base milk accounted for 90.51 percent of total producer milk receipts in August, down slightly from a year earlier.

There were 7336 producers supplying Order 4 handlers during the month and the average daily delivery per producer of 2086 pounds was up 30 pounds from July and was 44 pounds or 2.2 percent above last August.

There were 122 more producers than a year ago.

The average butterfat test of producer milk was 3.46 percent in August compared to 3.49 percent in July and 3.51 percent a year ago. The August butterfat test is the lowest on record.

Middle Atlantic Order pool handlers reported Class I in-area milk sales of 6.3 million pounds per day during August, an increase of 0.7 percent from last August, after adjustment to eliminate variation due to calendar composition.

Spinner spreader introduced

COLDWATER, Oh. — Avco New Idea introduces a new tractor mounted, pto-driven spinner spreader, designed for easy filling and use.

The double-cone design of the new Model 119 Spinner Spreader serves three purposes: first, it creates steep sides to ensure constant material flow. Second, because there are two cones the hopper has excellent capacity – more than 14 cubic feet, or about 900 pounds of granulated fertilizer.

New Idea spinner spreader has double-cone design.

"DEUTZ DIESEL ENGINES SAVE 20 TO 40% ON FUEL"...SAYS CALIFORNIA DEALER

Fuel allocations and increased prices make it wiser than ever to switch to Deutz air-cooled diesel engines

A Bakersfield dealer* says, "Our customers report savings from 20 to 40% on fuel A good example is a centrifugal pumping operation that boosts water for sprinkler irrigation Pulling a continuous load of 75 to 80 bhp, the Deutz F6L 912 engine uses about 4 gallons of fuel per hour This compares with up to 5½ gallons per hour for other widely used makes in this area Where the Deutz will use 100 gallons a day, other engines will use a minimum of 120 gallons That's a savings of 5,000 gallons a year for this one operation

He adds, "Such fuel savings will enable some farmers to continue operations where they might otherwise have to shut down"

Order 2 dairymen to receive $13.01 for August

NEW YORK, N.Y. — Dairy farmers supplying milk plants regulated under the New York - New Jersey marketing orders during August will be paid on the basis of a uniform price of $13.01 per hundred pounds or 28.0 cents per quart.

Market Administrator Thomas A. Wilson, who announced August's price, also said the uniform farm price was $12.48 per hundredweight in July 1980 and $12.23 per hundredweight in August 1979. The uniform price is a marketwide weighted average of the value of farm milk used for fluid and manufactured dairy products.

The seasonal incentive fund returned a total of $3,092,548.50 or $.359 per hundredweight to the dairy farmers' uniform price for August. This fund was generated by reducing the uniform price paid producers during the high production spring months.

The total amount of milk received from the 17,548 dairy farmers supplying the New York-New Jersey Marketing Area was 861,095,640 pounds during August 1980. This was more than 29.3 million pounds above last year. The gross value to dairy farmers from milk deliveries was $112,179,549.34.

Wilson explained that this included differentials required to be paid to dairy farmers but not voluntary premiums or deductions authorized by the farmer.

Regulated milk dealers (handlers) utilized 363,652,926 pounds or 42.2 percent of the total amount of milk for Class I. The Class I milk is used for fluid products such as homogenized, flavored, low test and skim milks.

For August 1980, handlers paid $13.93 per hundredweight, or 30.0 cents per quart, for the milk used in Class I products compared with $13.01 a year ago.

The balance of the milk, 57.8 percent, was used to manufacture Class II products including butter, cheese, ice cream and yogurt. For this the handlers paid $11.96 per hundredweight.

The uniform price is based on milk containing 3.5 percent butterfat. For August 1980, a differential of 16.6 cents was applied to the price for each one-tenth of one percent that the milk tested above or below the 3.5 percent standard.

All prices quoted are for bulk tank milk received within the 201-210 mile zone from New York City.

Bergland addresses state ASCS conference

CHAMPION — Pennsylvania State and County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service committeemen and their staff people participated in a Statewide conference at Seven Springs, Champion, last week.

Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland told ASCS committeemen that U.S. Agriculture for the 1980's must be geared up to handle greater demands for food production that we have ever known.

Secretary Bergland called on ASC committeemen to administer Agricultural programs that will produce more for a growing world demand for U.S. Agricultural products.

He expressed concern for problems facing government, farmers and the Nation. Growing demand on the Nation's cropland for food, urbanization, recreation, and environmental quality will create stress that causes additional problems for farmers and government.

Farmers will continually need to produce more food on less acreage because of the non-food use of land for other purposes. More intensive use of land creates greater soil loss due to erosion, he said.

Farmers and government will be called upon to use the best agricultural technology available to manage farmland for maximum productivity with minimum soil damage. Government will be required to share the cost of erosion control, natural disaster damage to crops, and the economic stability of farm production and prices, he said.

Secretary Bergland said, "Our current 1977 Agricultural Act expires in 1981. Congress, USDA, farm organizations, and others are now working to develop a new Act with programs designed to meet the challenges of the 1980's."

Several proposed programs were outlined by the Secretary. He said he expects the current ASCS disaster program for feed grains and wheat to be replaced by a joint USDA and private business operated all-risk crop insurance program. The program will enable farmers to purchase crop insurance at reasonable rates, subsidized in part by USDA, which will provide insurance coverage on up to 75 percent of the normal expected crop yields on each farm.

He anticipates Agricultural Conservation Program cost-sharing payments to be available to treat those most critical conservation and pollution problems, especially in areas subject to extreme erosion.

The Secretary heralded the "grain reserve" system of managing our Nation's grain supply and demand. The "reserve system" results in farmers storing excess grain at government expense in periods of plenty. This grain will be available for years when production is less demand. 1979 and 1980 were cited as examples.

The U.S. 1979 record crop production placed a billion bushels of grain in the reserve. Due to the 1980 drought conditions, most grains in the reserve have been released into the market place to be sold by the farmer owner whenever he wishes to do so. The Dairy Support Program and others are expected to continue, but will be modified to meet the demands of the 1980's.

County ASCS committeemen will be called upon to continue their "grass roots" administration of these programs. The Secretary praised the farmer-elected committeemen for efficient and fair adminstration of these programs as they pertain to each and every farm in the country.

The Secretary said, "Consumerism is a part of USDA and will continue. A major objective of USDA is to provide an abundance of wholesome and safe food for all in the U.S. and many other nations."

USDA food and nutrition programs will continue including economic food aid for those who cannot afford adequate diets on their own. However, rule changes are sure to take place.

Attending the conference from Berks County were: Mark Balthaser, Chairman of the Berks County ASC Committee; Donald E. Lutz, Vice Chairman; Lester W. Gelsinger, Regular Member; Henry E. Bohn, Jr., County Executive Director; and Program Assistants Dianne F. Younker; Mary Lou Shryock; Harriet L. Simmons; and Joan Anthony.

State ASCS committeemen, Washington personnel, and State program specialists lead workshops on ASCS programs administered in Pennsylvania. Topics discussed were price support loans, farm storage facility loans, the Agricultural Conservation Program, Emergency Programs, and county administrative responsibilities. The current drought in Eastern Pennsylvania and related disaster program benefits stimulated plenty of discussion.

Committeemen learned the latest in program philosophy, policy and procedure that will improve county ASCS service to farmers and others.

Brucellosis — On The Increase

The Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture recently announced that 18 dairy herds in five counties of the State are quarantined for Brucellosis. That is 18 too many! We are heading in the wrong direction.

Dairymen and regulatory agencies have spent enormous amounts of effort and money over the past quarter century in an attempt to eliminate this dreaded disease from our dairy herds, and now, we suddenly have 18 herds quarantined! This points out one thing very vividly; no matter how well we have been controlling diseases, we can never afford to let down our guard. The same precautionary measures that dairymen had to use in the past are as valid today as they were then.

A lot of cattle are being moved through sales, auctions, dealers and privately. It is quite evident that some of these cattle are coming from infected herds and from infected areas.

Know what you are buying

It is very important for dairymen to know the health status of the cattle they are buying. Be sure to buy from reputable people, and insist that all cattle be accompanied with authorized health papers.

Don't be lured into buying slaughter cows and feeder heifers at an auction and bringing them home to the milking string. A cheap, infected cow is never a good bargain.

Remember, too, that infected cattle may have moved through the same sales facilities, been hauled on the same truck, and mixed with the same cattle that some of your cattle may have come in contact with. Similarily, the people that walk into your stable may have just come from an infected herd or an infected facility.

So, be very precautious about whom and what your cattle come in contact with. It is always wise to insist that visitors not walk in the feed alleys, and if you are a visitor, be considerate and wear a clean pair of disinfected boots when entering someone else's barn.

Since infected cattle are present in the state, it is also a good practice to be vaccinating young stock for protection against Brucellosis, and to periodically test any cattle in question, such as newly purchased cattle.

Protect against other diseases

I have been concentrating all my comments on Brucellosis thus far. But, many of the same precautions will also help protect your herd from many of the other communicable diseases that can easily infect cattle. Minimizing the movement of cattle in and out of the herd - less showing, buying and selling - will also reduce the risk of spreading diseases. Risk is also reduced by using artificial insemination in preference to using bulls that have been used for natural service in a number of different herds. Good ventilation and control of vectors (birds, flies, etc.) is also a good precautionary practice.

Healthy, disease-free cattle are a very valuable asset to dairymen. We can't afford to let down our guard. Let's get serious about controlling cattle diseases by cracking down on any offenders and by sharpening our own precautionary measures.

Be sure to work closely with your veterinarian to develop a good, preventive herd health program for your herd.

Goss's wilt found in Illinois

DEKALB, Ill. — As if the hot and lack of rainfall didn't pose enough of a problem for Illinois corn growers, now a disease new to the state has been found in some Henry County corn fields.

Nebraska bacterial wilt and leaf freckles, commonly known as Goss's wilt, was discovered just weeks age in a number of Henry County corn fields. This is the first time the disease has been detected in Illinois.

Goss's wilt was first identified in Nebraska in 1969 and spread slowly into parts of Colorado, Kansas, South Dakota and Iowa.

In fact, an Iowa State University release claims that the disease has been detected in several locations in eastern Iowa this summer.

According to David Smith, corn research pathologist for DeKalb AgResearch, Inc., the spread of Goss's wilt is sporadic in nature, although the bacterium causing Goss's wilt in known to overwinter in corn residue.

Smith, who has traveled to Henry County to diagnose and confirm the existence of Goss's wilt in Illinois, says there is a sharp hybrid-to-hybrid difference in field reaction the disease.

"There are various levels of hybrid resistance and susceptibility to Goss's wilt," Smith points out. He adds that DeKalb began conducting resistance work to the disease in 1971 in Nebaraka and Colorado, and that most of the hybrids marketed by DeKalb in the area carry good levels of resistance.

Smith says that Goss's wilt can actually cause damage at any phase of plant growth.

"Generally, warm temperatures and some type of mechanical injury to the plant, such as hail or wind storms, aid in the infection of plants," the pathologist notes.

The most characteristic symptom is dark green or black spots along the edges of leaf lesions. Yellow to gray streaks appear parallel to leaf veins, and these grow together and die, causing scorched areas. Close inspection may show a slimy film on the leaves.

Once the bacterium is present in an area, Goss's wilt may or may not occur in following years, "but the potential definitely exists," Smith says.

According to the corn disease specialist, the disease can strike young plants if appripriate conditions exist, and a corn crop can be drastically affected.

"Henry County farmers escaped that level of infection this year," Smith says, "but in the fields I observed, it did appear as if there will be some level of economic damage."

The pathologist suggests that as a strong precautionary move, farmers in affected areas ask their seed dealers to recommend resistant hybrids, and that they utilitze care not to spread the disease by cutting infected specimens and removing them from the field without following proper procedure.

Wayne feed announces new worming product for dairy cattle

CHICAGO, Il. — Wayne Fresh 'N Worm, a combination wormer and nutritional product fed to dairy cows on the day of freshening, has been introduced in a new, improved formula by the Wayne Feed Division of Allied Mills, Inc.

Tests from 2,000 dairy cow herds in all areas of the U.S. have proven that over 94% of all dairy herds are infected with worms. Even though the herd does not look sick, the worms are there, says Dr. Gary Hartnell, Dairy Research Specialist with Wayne Feeds' Research and Development Center.

"The worms are nematodes or roundworms that live in the abomasum and small intestine," Hartnell notes. "Once the calf or cow has consumed the infective larvae from its surroundings, the larvae or immature stages most often burrow into the lining of the gut."

These worms may affect the host animals in the following ways:

1. By damaging or consuming the cow's gut lining and thus reducing its absorptive capability for nutrients.
2. By absorbing nutrients that the cow could use for growth, maintenance reproduction, or milk production.
3. By sucking the cow's blood. Some species can suck off as much as a pint in a few days.
4. By blocking secretion of digestive juices.
5. By causing wounds through which other kinds of pathogenic organisms may enter into the cow's bloodstream.

"As if that were not enough, the adult female worm lays eggs, depending on species, at rates up to 10,000 eggs per day," Hartnell says. "The eggs are excreted in the manure which may land in the barnyard, on water tanks, feed bunks, other cows, stanchions and fences. Later on, the eggs hatch into larvae which are consumed as the animal licks herself and the surroundings."

Wayne Fresh 'N Worm comes in a 5 lb. size that is ready for use in the right amount for one meal. The package size eliminates measuring, waste and staleness. It is available in two forms — Krums and Pellets.

The product is also effective in worming calves and heifers to produce higher weight gains.

The active worming agent in the product is thiabendazole, proven effective in controlling the five major species of gastrointestinal round worms. At the same time, the product has been improved for palatability and in the nutritional support it provides for the cow's rapid recovery from calving:

—Complete vitamins and mineral fortification, including B-complex vitamins and minerals in the highly available chelated and inorganic form.

—Propylene glycol to help alleviate low blood glucose levels generally common in ketotic cows.

—Protein, energy and fiber to help meet the cow's nutritional needs.

Worming programs are increasingly beneficial to dairymen as average milk production rises, explains Dr. Gary Hartnell, Wayne Feeds' manager of dairy research. For example, a cow's production can be cut by 3-4% if she is laden with internal parasites.

That means milk production from a cow producing more than 13,000 lbs. of milk could be reduced over 400 lbs., he said. At $12.50 a hundredweight, it's $56 per lactation, or $2,800 for a 50-cow herd.

Hartnell cited research which shows deworming on the day of freshening is very effective. Studies in six dairy areas and 75 herds indicated that the extra milk production ranged from 423 to 1,075 lbs. per cow per lactation. The average fell between 500 and 750 lbs.

Worming on the first day of lactation will result in greater returns compared to worming later on in lactation, Hartnell added.

Penn State slates horticulture show

STATE COLLEGE — Within a few short weeks horticulture students of Penn State will convert two huge circus tents into a landscape wonderland. Saturday and Sunday, September 27 and 28, the flower gardens of the University Park campus will be the site for this year's 67th annual Horticulture Show.

The show will open on Saturday with the dedication at 10 a.m. and will run until 9 p.m, continuing on Sunday, September 28, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

"Horticulture, Yesteryear's Seeds Growing Today" is this year's theme — in honor of Penn State's 125th anniversary. Planned and built by students interested in horticulture, the event will represent all areas of horticulture — ornamentals, floriculture, fruits, and vegetables — and will depict the evolution of horticulture from the 1800's to the present.

Visitors will walk through an introduction area into an old fashioned garden, and then proceed to a patio garden. Walking next into a house, visitors will see home canning exhibits — which lead to a vegetable garden.

Featured beyond the home area will be an exhibit of hydroponics (growing plants in nutrient solution). The next area will present a "new fashioned" garden. This will be followed by a display from Pi Alpha Xi, the honorary floriculture and ornamental horticulture society.

A sales area will be located at the walk's end where visitors will be able to buy fresh apple cider. A variety of plants will be on sale, including a large selection of indoor plants, foliage plants, hanging baskets, African violets, gloxinias, and many more. A selection of spring flowering bulbs to be planted in the fall will also be available.

At the conclusion of the show, after 4 p.m. September 28, all plant material in the displays will be sold.

As always this 67th annual Horticulture Show will be free to the public, Saturday and Sunday, September 27 and 28.

Chicken cook off held in Georgia

ATLANTA, Ga. — A young career woman who is a naturalist at the Smithsonian Institution in Washington, D.C., captured the $10,000 top prize in the 1980 National Chicken Cooking Contest.

Shelia Hoban, representing the District of Columbia, called her recipe Capital Chicken Casserole. It is a tasy combination of cut-up chicken parts cooked with fresh mushrooms and artichoke hearts, seasoned with wine.

Placing second and winning $4000 was Hedy Penney, a Utah widow and grandmother who was taught to cook as a child by her German mother. Her Creamy Lemon Chicken is made with chicken breast halves topped with whipped cream.

Other winners in the 32nd annual chicken cook-off were: Catherine Rita Rooker of Arkansas, who placed third and won $3000 for her Chicken Zucchini Parmesan; Wilfred J. Caligari of North Carolina, national field director of the Miss America Pageant whose Chicken Escalope Gourmet won the $2000 fourth prize; and Mary Lou Berndt of Kansas, who was fifth and won $1000 for her Sunshine Chicken Pie.

The contest is sponsored each year by the National Broiler Council, trade association of the industry, to encourage the creative use of chicken. A contestant from each state and the District of Columbia cooked more than 300 pounds of chicken simultaneously in mini-kitchens.

The chicken cook-off is the nation's oldest annual chicken cooking competition, dating back to 1949. It is held each year in a different broiler-producing state and was hosted this year by Georgia, which ranks second in poultry production. Next year's contest will be in Ocean City, Maryland.

To obtain an entry blank and information about the 1981 National Chicken Cooking Contest, sent a self-addressed, stamp envelope to: Chicken Contest, Box 28158 Central Station, Washington, DC 20005.

CAPITAL CHICKEN CASSEROLE

4 tablespoons butter
1 tablespoon cooking oil
1 package, 8 ounces, fresh mushrooms, sliced

1 teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon tarragon leaves
¼ teaspoon pepper
1 can, 15 ounces, artichoke hearts, drained
6 green onions, green and white parts included, chopped
2 tablespons chopped parsley

Remove chicken and place in baking pan or casserole. In same frypan, saute mushrooms about 5 minutes or until tender. Stir in flour. Add soup, wine and water; simmer, stirring, about 10 minutes or until sauce thickens. Stir in cream, salt, tarragon and pepper; pour over chicken. Bake, uncovered, in 350°F. oven for 60 minutes. Mix in artichoke hearts, green onions and parsley. Bake about 5 more minutes or until fork can be inserted in chicken with ease. Makes 4 servings.

Grangers meet to prepare legislative policies

BY CURT HARLER

LINGLESTOWN — The Pennsylvania State Grange legislative committee met Monday and Tuesday to get imput for policy formation at the annual sessions next month.

Among speakers at the meeting were George Brumbaugh, chairman of the Pennsylvania Milk Marketing Board; Paul Hand, Inter-State Co-op's economist; Fred Fox of Department of Environmental Resources; Luther Cook, president of the Rural Letter Carriers Association; and Lancaster County farm preservation activist Amos Funk.

Brumbaugh outlined five areas of concern in the dairy business. He included discount scheduling, tolling, bracketing of dealer prices, formula pricing, and the new milk security fund.

He said some dealers have offered letters of credit, some have posted bonds and others have asked to be included in the dairy security fund.

So far, only one dairy cooperative has asked to be excused from the milk security fund provisions.

Brumbaugh also said he would like to see a shortening of the period between milk pickup and payment. He said he would like to see payment by the 18th day of the month following pickup.

Inter-State's Paul Hand outlined Co-op policy on the dairy referendum.

He said money collected should follow the milk to market. In other words, he maintained that money collected in a particular Area and Zone should go toward promotion in that area.

He said he wanted representation on the committee proportional to dairymen represented.

He said Inter-State favors a checkoff of three-fourths of one percent. He said that would generate a $7 million dollar fund.

Hand also said there should be no ask-out for producers who don't want to support the fund.

Fred Fox, DER's legislative laision, told Grangers that DER is not trying to condemn land nor control land which would be put in the Scenic Rivers program.

Fox said he expects 2000 to 3000 miles of waterways to go into the system.

The Grangers restated their position that they would work against eminent domain in any potential scenic river area and would push for a pastoral designation, one which includes farming as a legitimate land use along scenic rivers.

Fox also told Grangers that hazardous wastes will continue to be a problem in rural Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania is the fourth largest producer of such waste in the nation.

Fox said the Commonwealth needs at least three more sites for disposal of hazardous materials. He noted that if the dumping could not be done at private sites it could reluctantly be placed on state owned land.

Luther Cook, president of the Rural Letter Carriers Association, told the Gangers that efforts toward a five day rural delivery system temporarily have been stopped.

He said there is a federal bill, HB 7337 which would change the U.S. code and require there be no less than six day mail service.

Pennsylvania has the largest number of rural mail routes in the nation. Cook noted delivery along those routes could be cut to four days on weeks when there was a holiday.

Amos Funk, a prime mover in Lancaster County farmland preservation, outlined the deed restriction program now being considered in the county.

He gave a chronological outline of what has happened in the land preservation movement over the past seven years.

National Grange Legislative Director Bob Frederick told the Pennsylvania Grangers that the Community Nutrition Institute proposal to revamp the Federal Milk Marketing Order system seems to be dead for the moment.

He said he did not think USDA would make any decision on the matter until after the Novemeber elections. But, he added, after that it is anyone's guess as to what will happen.

He said USDA had received over 8000 comments from farmers against the CNI proposal and added that he doubted CNI has that kind of influence with USDA.

Legislative committee members also tossed around a number of resolutions. Among them were measures dealing with the Federal Order base building period, landfills, trapping, Three Mile Island, Grade A milk pricing formulae, and rural mail.

Members proposed looking in to the possibility of having butterfat testing done by independent sources.

Some farmers are seeing two to five point differences in butterfat tests between dairy records and DHIA reports. At 15 cents a point, it is a major financial consideration.

State Grange Master Charles Wismer said he had learned a lot from the meetings and termed the two-day session "very successful."

If the meetings had a theme it probably could be summed up in the remark of one committee member who pointed out that unless farm organizations flexed some political muscle "sooner or later everybody is going to end up working for the government."

It will be the job of those at the State Grange annual sessions to see that does not happen. The meetings will run October 27 through October 31 at the Holliday Inn, Lewistown.

Bob Frederick, National Grange Legislative Director, outlined the situation in Washington, D.C. for members of the local legislative committee. Among other topics, Frederick talked about the CNI proposal to disband federal milk marketing orders.

Holstein Assn. names new membership director

STATE COLLEGE — Douglas J. Hershey, Quarryville, has been appointed to the new position of Director of Membership Service for the Pennsylvania Holstein Association, announced PHA Executive Secretary, William C. Nichol.

Hershey primarily will be involved in helping the individual members of the State Association. He will provide assistance in all registry areas and be responsible for the development of advertisement programs throughout the State. In addition, he will be working with the milk promotion activities.

While a Junior and Senior in High School, Hershey worked on his grandfather's dairy farm. The farm consisted of 85 acres and 45 Holstein dairy cows.

Hershey was graduated from Penn State in 1980 with a Bachelor of Science degree in Dairy Production. While attending Penn State,

Douglas J. Hershey

Hershey was active in the Dairy Science Club. During the 78-79 school year, he served as treasurer of the Club.

The past two years Hershey has performed with Re-Creation, a singing group which performed at banquets, fairs, nursing homes and prisons. Most of the group's travel was throughout Pennsylvania; however, he did have the opportunity to perform at Camp David in Maryland.

Ag meeting set on TMI cleanup

HARRISBURG — A special meeting has been set on the clean-up of Three Mile Island and how any clean-up will affect agricultural land.

The meeting, sponsored by the Department of Environmental Resources and the Pennsylvania State Grange, is scheduled for Monday evening, September 29, at 7:30 p.m.

The session will be held at the Lower Swatara Township Building.

The building is located off Route 283 on Pa. 441. Farmers coming from Harrisburg area should take the first exit on Rt. 283 to Lancaster. It is market Rt. 441.

Farmers coming north from Lancaster should take the last Middletown exit, also marked as the exit for Rt. 441.

After exiting from Rt 283 take Rt. 441 back towards Harrisburg. You will be on Spring Garden Drive. If you pass a fire hall you have turned the wrong way.

The Township Building is located about one half mile from the cloverleaf on the right side of the road.

DER says it thinks it is important that as many people as possible have a chance to hear the clean-up plans summarized.

State Grange Master Charles Wismer noted farmers as a group have been affected by TMI and its related problems but have had little chance for input into the decision and information sessions.

"We hope this exchange will give them an idea of what they can expect from TMI over the next several years," he concluded.

Over One Million Lancaster County Birds Have Proven

Bio-Mittent™ Lighting Makes Cents

Field results of Bio-Mittent lighting programs have confirmed what Purina research results have shown. Here are what three managers have had to say about their results:

"The most significant feature of the intermittent lighting program is a feed savings over birds that previously were on a full-fed program. I feel there is a potential for 40¢/bird increased income from using the intermittent lighting program. Mostly, this income is a feed savings, but some is associated with increases in egg size plus the potential for an extra 3 or 4 eggs per bird year" (Note, hens in some cases in this operation had been mechanically restricted with smaller egg size resulting.)

"Intermittent lighting does not affect production. It does definitely save electricity. We experience less mortaility with the experimental group (Bio-Mittent lighting). We have put four more houses on the program."

"I don't know why producers don't use Bio-Mittent™ Lighting just to save some electricity. We've also seen some improvement in feed conversion even though our house isn't light-tight."

Rising energy prices could spawn ag revolution

CHICAGO, Ill — Deputy Secretary of Agriculture Jim Williams said here Sunday that current rising energy prices could spawn a new agricultural revolution in the 1980's.

Speaking at the North American Agricultural Lenders Conference, Williams said that rising energy prices will mean a drop in the demand for energy and greater efficiency by the agricultural sector.

"This, in turn," he said, "could put us on the edge of an agricultural revolution in which production is increasingly based on agriculture's own renewable energy supplies."

Williams said, "Agricultural production uses about three percent of the nation's total energy consumption. Yet on that three percent depends the nation's supply of food and fiber. Because 93 percent of the energy used in agricultural production is petroleum-based, farm fuel costs have risen nearly 406 percent since the 1973 embargo by the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries.

"This rise in energy prices means that farmers will continue to seek ways — including more energy-efficient equipment and changes in farm production practices — to maintain or increase production while using less energy," he said.

Williams said American agriculture in this decade will also react to government investments in national energy security and government dollar channelled directly into agriculture.

"Under the comprehensive national energy program developed by this administration," Williams said, "the government is backing farmers with an ambitious program of loans and loan guarantees to meet specific energy goals."

Among these goals are the production of 60,000 barrels a day of alcohol from agricultural products by the end of 1982 and a six-fold increase in the national production of gasohol by the end of 1981.

Because the government is stimulating the demand for borrowed money and is making the production of energy economically attractive, Williams predicted an increasing demand for capital by the agricultural sector in the 1980's.

Gitt Holstein takes grand at South Mountain Dairy Show

BY DEB SPAIN

ARENDTSVILLE — Christine Gitt, R2 Littlestown was worn out but satisifed by 10:30 p.m. Friday evening at the close of the Open and 4-H Dairy Show at the South Mountain Fair, Adams County. Christine had been busy since 6 p.m. exhibiting her Holsteins in the show ring.

Her efforts were well rewarded, however, Chris's big regal 3 yr. old "Penn-Gate Jetstar Queen" proudly wore the Senior Champion and Grand Champion rosettes as well as the first place ribbon for her class.

The Gitt's Penn-Gate herd collected an impressive list of awards by the end of the competition. Their two intermediate heifers won first and second places in their class, while first and second place in the Junior Yearling class were captured by two more Penn-Gate cows. "Penn-Gate Jetstar Vickie and "Penn-Gate Raven Ace Teresa". And, Penn Gate's outstanding four year old "Janibo Dian Elevation" ranked ahead of the competitors in her class.

In numerous combinations, the Penn-Gate herd collected blue ribbons for Best Three Females, Senior Get of Sire, Best Uddered Cow (Penn-Gate Jetstar Queen), and Dairy Herd.

In the next barn, another family was busy hanging up ribbons and rosettes.

The Weimers of Weim-Sharr Farms, R2 New Oxford, make cattle a family affair. Sons Tom and Mike showed in several classes, Jennifer exhibited in the open show and the 4-H competition and other family members including a proud father, Stanley, were nearby to assist in the show ring.

Jennifer Weimer won the

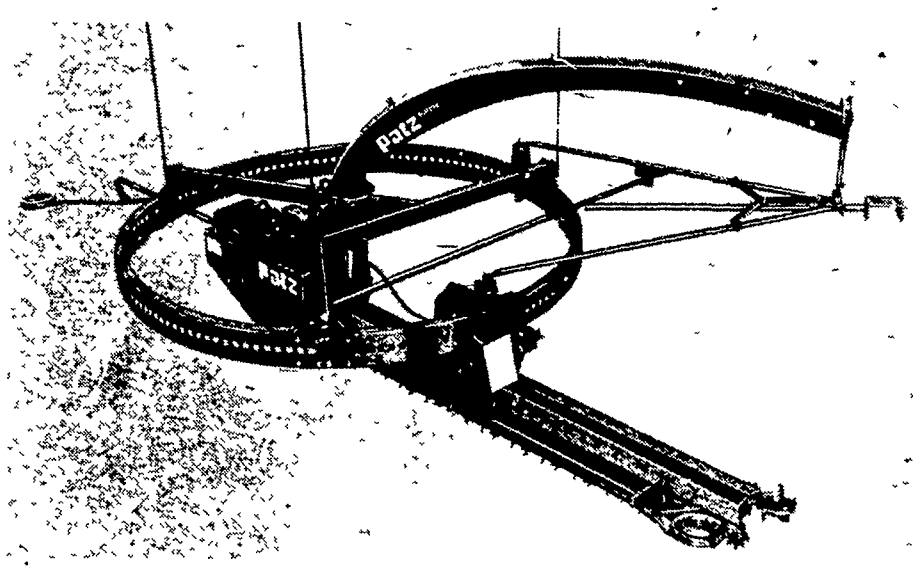
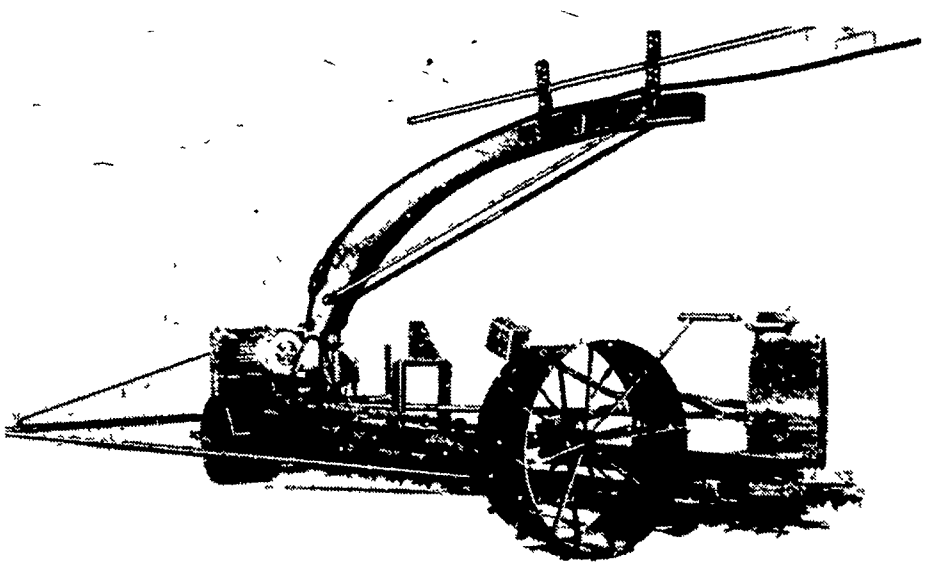
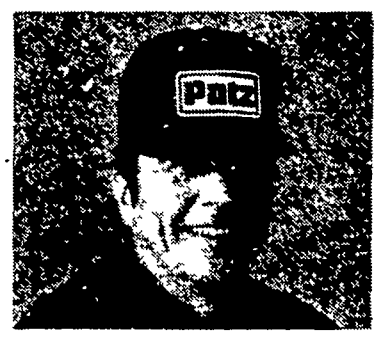
Reliable Year-Round Feeding







You know the problems caused by hard packed and frozen silage. Patz gives you two solutions to the problem — the Model RD-790 ring-drive silo unloader and the Model 98B surface-drive silo unloader.

Both unloaders feature a double-hook gathering chain with hardened steel cutters and claws that rip through frozen and packed silage. When you push the button, you know you can count on a smooth feeding operation.

Evaluate our powered silo wall cutters. Spring tension holds 4 self-sharpening steel cutter blades in place to follow the curve of the silo wall. This keeps silage from building up along the walls, so you can be sure that you're getting all the feed where it belongs . . . in the feeder and not stuck to the walls.

The claws and cutters of the gathering chain deliver a steady flow of silage day after day.

Want to know more about the Patz system? See your Patz dealer. He'll show you Patz quality and reliability . . . two important words to a farmer like you.

Rotating steel blades keep the silo wall free of silage buildup (shown without guards)

Junior Champion honors in the open show and the 4-H exhibition with "Elsie Weim-Sharr Marvex" who also placed first in the Senior Heifer class.

The Weimers have high hopes for Elsie. They recently showed her at the Maryland State Fair in Timonium and plan to show her at the Pennsylvania All American Show this Fall in Harrisburg. Elsie recently passed her first birthday and in honor of the occasion Jennifer baked her a cake.

Elsie is not alone in her excellence among the Weim-Sharr herd. Older brother Tom showed the Reserve Senior Champion and Reserve Grand Champion "Mel-Aire Promis Star", a cow he entered in the five year and older class to take first place. # How to protect your home during a power blackout

A Kohler Powerhouse Generator with optional Emergency Power Kit (connection box and transfer switch) puts electricity directly into the circuitry of your home. Now you can power essentials like the furnace, refrigerator, freezer, sump pump, and water pump with power to spare for appliances and lights.

1. Powerhouse Generator.
Choose 3500 watt or 5000 watt Kohler Powerhouse generator with manual or electric start to power your home. Produces 120/240 volt electricity. Powered by long-life Kohler cast-iron engine.

2. Connection Box.
The Kohler weatherproof outdoor connection box accepts the power cord from the generator. Installed on the exterior of your home, it permits generator power to flow to the Transfer Switch.

3. Transfer Switch.
Kohler's safety interlock switch transfers the circuitry of your home from "normal" line power to the emergency power source — your generator. The switch permits line power and emergency power to enter the circuitry, but not both at the same time.

Dairy Show

4-H winners in the Holstein show included Jennifer Weimer with the Junior Championship, Chris Gitt with the Junior Reserve, Senior Reserve Senior Champion and Grand and Reserve Grand. Josephine Hess took first place in the 4-H Dam and Daughter show with "Adlo Gay Ideal Wendy" and "Jo-Bo Marvex Ideal Amy." Kathy Durborow was another 4-H winner with second places in the five year and older competition and the Dam and Daughter class. All the 4-H exhibitors were given awards for showmanship and fitting.

A smaller but no less enthusiastic group of competitors showed Guernsey, Jersey, and Brown Swiss on Thursday night in the Open and 4-H shows.

Mt. Murren Farms, Hanover, boasted a poster full of prizes. The Junior Champion and Reserve Junior Champion were both Mt. Murren cattle. "Mt. Murren Noble Cindy" captured the Champion title followed by "Mt. Murren S. Bonus Jackie" as Reserve.

Sisters Peggy and Susan Murren were 4-H winners in the Junior class with Junior champion "Mt. Murren Jills Tex Jenny" and Reserve Junior Champion "Mt. Murren Billys Bonus Babe."

Another Murren animal "Mt. Murren Dexters Carmer" was chosen Reserve Champion of the show and in the Senior division. Peggy Murren contributed to the list of winnings with second places in the Best Three Females, Dairy Herd and Produce of Dam. Terry Murren took first place in Produce of Dam.

The Senior and Junior Reserve Champions teamed up to place first in the Dam and Daughter competition and complete the winnings of Mt. Murren Farm.

Fred and Leona Hobaugh from York, competed strongly against the Mt. Murren herd. Their star, four year old "Varro Drops Donna" placed first in her class and then swept Senior Champion, Grand Champion and Best Uddered cow.

Other first place ribbons were won by the Hobaughs for Senior Get of Sire with three animals sired by "Leaders Wistar", for Best Three Females and Dairy Herd. They placed second in the Dam and Daughter class with "Fisher Farm F. Cindy" and "Fayvor Cindy's Crissy."

The winnings in the Jersey competition were swept by Karen Hobaugh and Dawn Ridinger.

Hobaugh was awarded Junior Champion and Reserve Junior Champion for her two entries "Stilestrite Samson Beth" and "Stilesrite Samsons Sweet Sandy." Senior Champion and Grand Champion titles went to "Redal Acres Taffy Surville" shown by Dawn Ridinger.

Hobaugh also showed the Reserve Grand Champion "Stilesrite Samson Beth" and won the Junior Get of Sire for her animals sired by "Gramhill Leader Sophia Samson."

The Brown Swiss entires were too few to provide much tough competition. Nevertheless, several fine animals were exhibited by brother and sister Todd and Dawn Meyers, Mey-Maple Farm, Biglerville. The Junior Champion and Grand Champion titles were won by "Windsor Acres Sunny Nancy" shown by Todd Meyers. Dawn Meyers showed the Reserve Junior Champion and Reserve Grand Champion "Brush Creek D. Diana."

Mycotoxins feared

Corn quality concerns poultry industry

GEORGETOWN, Del. — The drought, which has occurred this summer over much of Delmarva, will drastically reduce the yields of the area's corn crop. In addition, dry conditions also make the likelihood of the presence of mycotoxins in corn a big possibility.

In 1977, a year similar to this year, a large portion of Delmarva produced corn was affected. Mycotoxins are substances produced by molds. When corn is subjected to drought conditions as well as insect damage, conditions for the growth of molds and the production of mycotoxins become ideal.

Certain of the mycotoxins, when fed to animals, especially poultry, affect growth rate, feed efficiency and the general health of the birds.

Paul V. Twining, Jr., president of Delmarva Poultry Industry, Inc., the local trade association representing Delmarva's multi-million dollar broiler industry, recently expressed DPI's concern about this possible problem.

"Though there is no present way to completely prevent the prescence of mycotoxins in corn, there are some practices to reduce its magnitude. Proper care and handling of corn in storage are essential", said Twining.

"Many Delmarva grain receivers are testing incoming corn to detect the presence of these toxins. It is essential that corn be properly dried. Ideally, corn should be dried to 13 percent moisture or less", the DPI president added.

When grains are uniformly dried to low levels, it minimizes the possibilty of the continued growth and spread of molds and their mycotoxins.

Boars bring good prices in Delaware

DOVER, Del. — Twenty-six boars sold for an average of $451 at the recent third Annual Delaware performance tested boar sale, with the highest selling boar going for $2000, reports Richard Fowler, University of Delaware extension livestock specialist.

The highest selling animal was a Duroc consigned by Edwards and Edwards Farm, Rich Square, N.C. He was purchased by Cabel Yorkshires and Durocs at Tarboro, N.C.

The highest indexing individual Duroc was consigned by Kenneth Ketterer of Newville, Pa., and purchased by Park Thomas of Beavertown, Pa., for $610. The eleven Durocs in the sale averaged $545 apiece.

The top indexing pig sold was a Yorkshire consigned by Leon Arnold of Lebanon, Pa., and purchased by David Glass of Birdsboro, Pa., for $1000.

The eleven Yorkshires in the sale averaged $408 each. Three Landrace boars sold for an average of $231 each, one Chester White sold for $625, and a Berkshire sold for $335.

The highest indexing boar at the 1978 Delaware sale was the sire of the leading pen of pigs at the recent 1980 Pennsylvania tested boar sale, reports Fowler.

According to Sussex County extension agent Ted Palmer, prices received in this year's Delaware sale were excellent. The average price of an untested commercial boar is between $250 and $350, he says.

The purpose of the test is to provide local producers with good quality boars so that they can improve herd performance and thus reduce the cost of production while raising quality pork. More than half the boars went to Delaware growers.

The sale was held at the state fairgrounds in Harrington. Auctioneer was Chester Carroll. The event was sponsored jointly by the Delaware Extension Service and the Delaware Pork Producers Association.

The test and sale will be repeated next year, with the 1981 auction tentatively scheduled for September 8.

Attend training session

HUGHSON, Ca. — Carnation Genetics with a network of District Sales Managers nationwide has initiated a series of week long training sessions for these managers.

"We bring a few of the managers at a time to our headquarters here at Hughson to familiarize them with the different company departments and staffs," said W.R. "Skip" Pringle, general manager of Carnation Genetics.

"In addition to a number of sessions on basic and advanced sales training, the program will have special emphasis on customer services programs," he added.

District sales managers will also visit several central California dairies to look at daughters of Carnation Genetics sires.

First session was held September 8 through the 12.

Instructors included Pringle, Dave Owens, regional sales manager for the northwestern states, and Don McCormick, regional sales manager for the western states.

Among district sales managers in attendance was Joel Weir, East Petersburg, who covers Delaware, Maryland, and southeast Pennsylvania.

Gary Miller, Lititz, eastern regional sales manager, also participated.

'MARTIN-AIR' PATENT PENDING
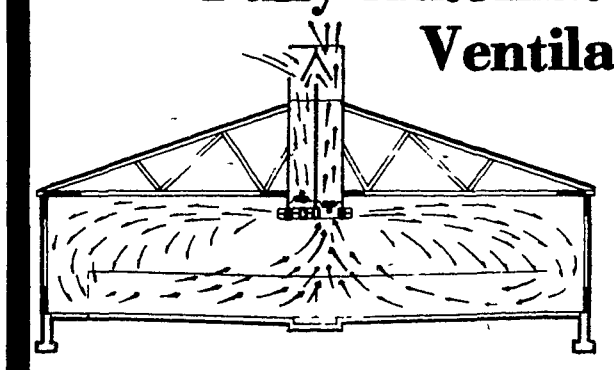
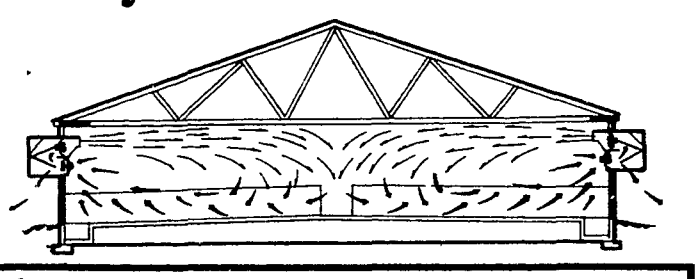
Fully Automatic Total Confinement Ventilation Systems





A unique air blending process provides even temperatures and controlled, draft-free air flow.

- Reduce animal stress
- End temperature fluctuations
- Reduce drug costs
- Reduce incidence of pneumonia and disease
- Reduce labor
- Lower condensation
- Confine manuring

Why The 'Martin-air' System is best for you

The success of Martin-air systems rests on a different concept than that used by most ventilation designs. Others work by exhausting air completely then drawing cold air from outside—usually at the other end of the barn. Martin-air units use an exclusive damper system which mixes fresh air and exhaust air so the output of the unit is never more than 4°F different from the room temperature. And, at any given spot in a properly designed barn, the temperature should seldom vary more than 1°.

The Martin-air principle is simple and effective. Thermostats control fan speed and a dampered mixing chamber to blend fresh air with warm air. Constant circulation throughout the building maintains uniform temperature, eliminates drafts and reduces condensation to provide a dry environment.

'Martin-air' can fill your specific needs

No matter what your livestock confinement requirements, a Martin-air System can be designed and installed to fulfill your needs. Systems are designed to create a stable, draft-free environment based on building architecture, insulation, number of animals, and all heat sources. Successful installations are operating in many calf barns, dairy houses, hog, poultry and rabbit operations and even horse barns.

Martin-air units are available in a wide range of ceiling or wall-mount models and each installation is carefully designed by ventilation specialists.

Martin-air ventilation can be installed in any existing building you may be using for livestock confinement, even old bank barns.

Deb Spain is Conservation District's "Right-hand-man."

Discussing the engineering details with local contractors is one of Deb's many responsibilities.

GETTYSBURG — The Adams County Conservation District is getting a helping hand from one of the most attractive technicians in the county's history.

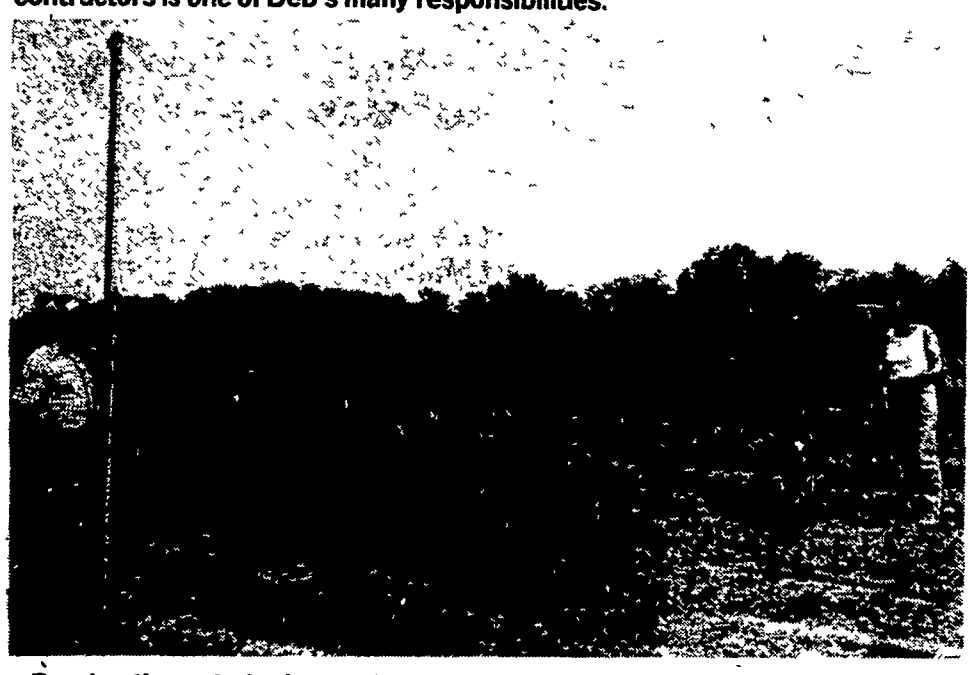
Deborah Spain, a 28-year-old graduate of Gettysburg College, has been helping to survey ponds, waterways, and subsurface drainage, and has been the "right-hand-man" to the local Soil Conservation Service office's technician William McCleaf.

What makes Deb so unusual is that she was not from a farm and received her degree in English Literature rather than agriculture. Through CETA, the Comprehensive Employment Training Act, Deb has learned the art of peering through a Dumpey level on swelteringly hot Summer days, along with trudging through mud and dust that's ankle deep while running the surveying rod during an engineering survey.

"It's surprising how much you can learn when your working on the farm," she said. Assisting McCleaf has given Deb a chance to learn about farm management practices such as manure storage facilities and stripcropping.

According to Deb, there is not any part of the job she finds too difficult. What's difficult, she said, is the frustration of knowing that when she's finished her year and a half of training there remains a question of whether she'll be employed.

Deb Spain works as a conservation technician for the Adams County Conservation District.



Peering through the lense of her Dumpey level, Deb assists Soil Conservation Service Technician Bill McCleaf perform a final construction inspection on a waterway.

Unique events planned for KILE

HARRISBURG — Looking for something different to do October 2-6? If so, the Keystone International Livestock Exposition, KILE, will offer unique and interesting events for five full days at the Farm Show Complex in Harrisburg.

Have you ever seen trained sheep hitched to a wagon and performing maneuvers? If not, here's your chance.

The Etzler's Sheep Driving Team of Van Wert, Ohio, will perform figure eights, 90 degree turns and other driving features on Friday and Saturday, october 3 and 4.

The team will perform Friday at 8:30 a.m. on the steps of the State Capitol Building, and at the Farm Show Building that afternoon and all day Saturday. A special performance has been planned for Saturday at 2:30 p.m. in the large arena. The team is tame and pettable, an experience you won't want to miss.

Childrens' tours will be conducted Friday, October 3, and Monday, October 6. A barnyard babies exhibit will be the main attraction both days, featuring baby lambs, calves and a litter of piglets. Baby chicks hatching in an incubator, baby ducks playing on a water slide, kittens, puppies and more will be there.

For craft enthusiasts, an all-inclusive Agriculture Craft Show will be held Sunday, October 5, from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Anything and everything related to agriculture goes. Potters, apple sculputred dolls, pig pottery, straw basket weaving, broom crafts, linens, woven wool items, plus many other unusual crafts will be on hand.

Craft exhibitors will demonstrate their individual crafts and a children's table will be set up at booths for children to dabble and experiment. Admission is free to this most unusual craft show.

A KILE Trade Show will be held throughout the five days. Almost all your livestock and specialty needs will be found at the Trade Show. The KILE Trade Show will offer farmers, exhibitors and the general public a chance to get the equipment and supplies they need in an esay and accessible way. The show will also have the unique advantage of offering specialty items not normally found in central Pennsylvania.

The main focal point of the Exposition, naturally, is the top quality livestock on exhibit and in competition. Last year over 3000 beef cattle, sheep, swine and horses were entered from 23 states.

Livestock exhibition begins Thursday, October 2. Judging in all divisions starts Friday morning with the Appaloosa horse show at 9 a.m. in the large arena. A feeder calf show and feeder pig show will begin at 10 a.m. with sheep competition starting at noon.

A feeder pig sale at 4:30 p.m. will be followed by a feeder calf sale at 6:30 p.m.

A Chianina cattle sale will be held on Saturday, October 4, at 4:30 p.m., and five breeds of sheep will be sold at the KILE Bred Ewe Sale.

A Paint Horse Sale follows in the small arena at 9 p.m.

On Sunday, October 5, the Duroc Barrow show begins at 11 a.m. with all other livestock and horse divisions beginning at noon. That evening at 5 p.m. the 1980-81 Pennsylvania Lamb and Wool Queen and Pennsylvania Suffolk Queen will be selected at the sheep arena in the main exhibition building.

At 5:30 p.m. the KILE Ladies Lead Contest will begin. This event features young women modeling the latest in wool fashions while leading a trained sheep at halter. The Pennsylvania Sheep Shearing Contest will follow at 7 p.m.

On Monday, October 6, swine classes will begin at 8 a.m. in the small arena with sheep and beef cattle classes beginning at 8:30 a.m. The Arabian Horse Show kicks off at 9:30 a.m. in the large arena. All animals will be released at 5 p.m. Monday evening.

KILE is sponsored by the Pennsylvania Livestock Association in cooperation with the Pennsylvania Farm Products Show Commission, the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture and various breed organizations.

Indiana farmer is up in the air about Pioneer

BY SHEILA MILLER

TIPTON, Ind. — Allen Baird is one farmer from Tipton, Indiana who is up in the air about Pioneer seed.

Baird, who farms about 3000 acres around and about Tipton, the Eastern Division headquarters for Pioneer Hi-Bred International, Inc., is the captain of an unusual "ship" that advertises the seed company he likes best.

In May of 1979, Baird became the proud owner of a hot air balloon that sports Pioneer's logo.

Baird's wife, Rachel, explained this balloon, made in England, cost about as much as a brand new Cadillac. Most of them have a price tag between $8000 and $18,000, she said.

She told how Baird became interested in ballooning after he watched the balloon races at the Indiana State Fair. After that he was hooked, she said, and he was trained by a local ballonist on the intricacies of flying the bag of hot air.

Now, Baird flys the balloon and is sponsored by Pioneer. He is paid for his floating advertising as he drifts across acres and acres of Indiana corn fields.

For a 45 minute flight, about ten gallons of propane gas is needed to heat the air inside the balloon to around 212 degrees Farenheit, Rachel said. The gas costs somewhere in the neighborhood of $1 a gallon.

Rachel, who is in charge of driving the chase car, remarked that Allen has already taken the balloon up over 10,000 feet in altitude. His longest flight, she said, was about 40 miles in one day.

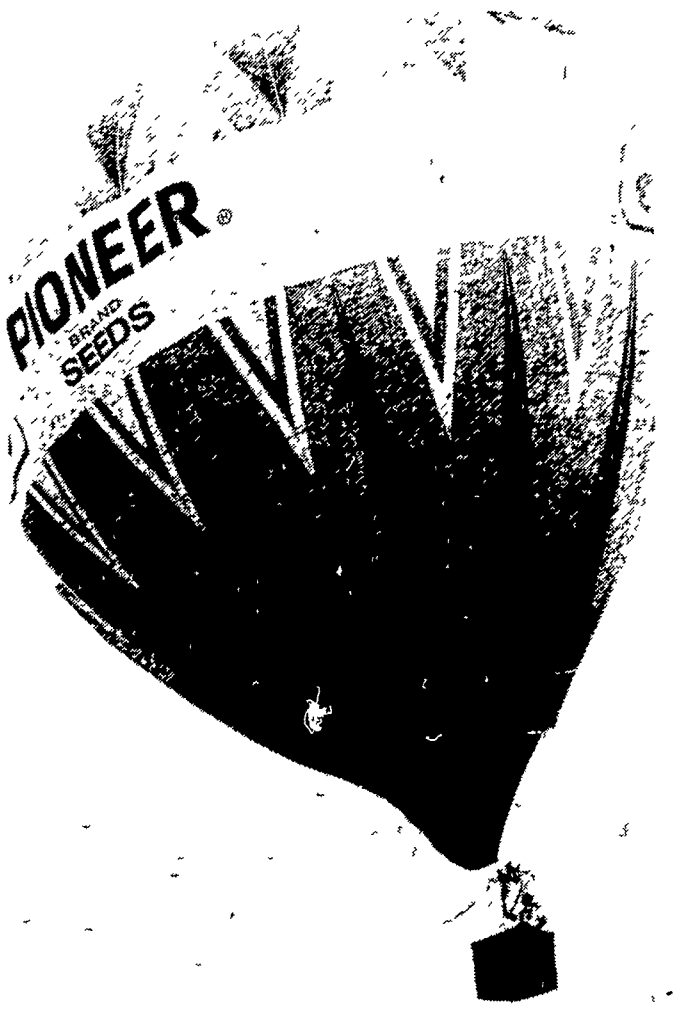
"Sometimes, depending on the wind, you can only go a couple miles in a day," Rachel explained. "But there is no better way to see the corn than from the vantage point of the balloon's basket."

Her worst experience since Allen began ballooning was when she completely lost his balloon during a race, Rachel said.

"We have radio contact between the chase car and the balloon. And usually I can keep up with him as he goes cross country and I drive down the country roads.

"But that day I totally lost him. I looked up and down the roads for over an hour and finally had to call the telephone number for lost balloons. That was embarassing.

"Well, they finally found Allen and hours later we got to the party where we learned that Allen had won the race. I haven't lived that one down yet."



Allen Baird, an Indiana farmer, floats along with Pioneer seed.

Farm Talk

Jerry Webb

Farmers are gamblers. That's what I've always heard. They're willing to bet against Mother Nature, Uncle Sam, the landlord, and almost anyone else, that despite the odds they can still come out on top.

Yes, I've always heard that farmers are big gamblers and I accepted the philosophy and the comparison without question, because I had never really seen a gambler. At least, not until I passed through Reno, Nevada a few weeks ago as part of a cross-country vacation.

The experience was unreal, unlike anything I had ever seen or even anticipated. Thousands and thousands of people thronged into these casinos, bellying up to the slot machines and crowding around the gaming tables. Hour after hour they sat, or stood or leaned, pouring their hard-earned money into hungry machines that seemed to consume it all and regurgitate nothing. Or they stacked it on green covered counters where fast talking dealers raked it up with long sticks.

For as long as I could stand it, I watched a cross section of Americana gamble what they could with a sort of self-destroying determination that kept them there long past their normal bedtime.

casinos never close and that people stay there for days in those gaming rooms without ever checking into a hotel or getting a full night's sleep.

If farmers are gamblers, I reckoned there would be some sterotypes I would recognize. So I watched for similarities. There were the big talkers who could be heard for considerable distances, usually crowded around crap tables, harrassing the other players and hoping for miracles.

"Let it ride," seemed to be their byword.

Then there was the happy-go-lucky type who gladly poured silver dollars into a slot machine and considered the watchful eye of a curious tourist as a good luck omen. He won and he lost, and he won some more, and he never lost his sense of humor.

You could be sure he wasn't pouring the rent money into that piece of junk.

There was the cautious little lady who played Twenty-One with all the reckless abandon of a Calvin Coolidge. She always bet two dollars and would stick on 14 or 15, hoping the dealer would go bust. She almost always won.

There were winners and losers in those great games of chance, and it was easy to tell the difference. The losers that glum expressionless look on their faces as they went through motions of trying to win. Occasionally, one would be totally defeated and would be led away in shock or in tears.

Some are more determined and more opopportunistic than others. I watched one would-be millionaire running three nickle slot machines at the same time. It was like an assembly line. She walked from one to another, inserting nickles and pulling handles.

She so fascinated me that I checked back two or three times and never found her money pail to be overflowing.

We looked for big-time gamblers in Reno, Virginia City, Lake Tahoe, even Las Vegas. And we saw these same types and a few more. And I guess some of them were like farmers, or maybe farmers are like them.

Maybe farming is just a big gamble, but I don't think so. It's my conviction that what most farmers do has an element of risk involved, but virtually no element of gamble.

I'm also convinced that those farmers who think they are gambling should be told that the dealer has loaded dice.

Consider the South Dakota rancher I talked with who was ready to go to market with a lot of beef on a couple of different occasions when the administration opened up the door on imported beef and killed the price.

What about the corn farmers who could see a nice profit at the end of the season only to find a Russian grain embargo thrust upon them?

Even now, the uncertainity about dry weather and the potential size of the crop causes markets to fluxuate and growers to gain and lose hope.

Now that I've seen gamblers up close—thousands of them—I'm sure I don't want to be one and I'm sure there's a big difference betweeen gambling and risk-taking.

Perhaps there are farmers who are out-and-out gamblers. They bet their money and they roll the dice and they take what comes up. Those kind probably lose a lot more than they win. But risk-taking farmers have a well thought and properly financed system. Barring the unforeseen, they expect to win.

Having observed farming for many years and gambling for only a few nights, I'm convinced I'd rather be a farmer.

Turning back the furrows of time

Gook-a-mal-doh

BY DICK ANGLESTEIN

Powerful, straining teams did prance,
Beneath a bright, warm September sun,
Stoop-shouldered plowmen take their stance,
For both, begins a day of work and fun.

Dust-coated clod-hopper and straw hat,
Brown-baked arms extend from rolled-up shirts,
Stopping occasionally to just chew the fat,
Trying to forget the coming morrow's hurts.

Some sit stoically by as chucks by burrows,
Recalling fond memories of yore,
Younger frolic through the furrows,
Gazing bug-eyed at the back-breaking chore.

Tho, it was just a day of pretend,
On the parched Schaefferstown field,
Back through time many did wend,
To see how animals and men once did wield.

Farm export promotion effort prepares to roll

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Efforts to develop a unified national plan to build a stronger U.S. economy through increased farm exports in the 1980's were announced today by a team of prominent farm and agribusiness spokesmen at the Midyear Meeting of the Agriculture Council of America.

The program — called the "U.S. Farm Export Education Project' — will bring together leading members of the farm and export community with top decision-makers in Washington for a comprehensive effort with two basic objectives: 1) Identify specific ways that maximum expansion for farm exports can be achieved over the next five to ten year period and 2) Communicate to the American people the critical role farm exports play in creating jobs, reducing inflation and strengthening the dollar.

"We can conclusively demonstrate that this nation's economic well-being is directly and substantially linked to the growth and expansion of farm exports," stated Don Chartier, President of Far-Mar-Co (the nation's largest grain marketing cooperative), and Chairman of the new Blue Ribbon Committee on Export Expansion.

Chartier pointed out almost one year of research, development and organization have already gone into the effort. During that time, support has been developed from every major export commodity, all agribusiness suppliers, virtually every segment of the farm export community, and the U.S. government.

ACA is providing project staffing and administrative coordination as part of its overall program to communicate what modern agriculture means to America.

"With double-digit inflation causing so much uncertainty in our economy, there's no better time to promote one of the real strengths in our nation," Chartier said.

"Agricultural exports occupy a position of major importance in the U.S. economy — with the potential to assume an even more significant role in the future."

U.S. farm exports, projected to reach $40 billion for fiscal 1980, are by far the leading positive factor in the nation's balance of trade. A preliminary U.S Farm Export Education Project study shows that farm exports could more than double by 1985, and triple by 1990.

"Farm exports are one of this country's greatest national assets," Chartier added. "For example, every time we increase farm exports by one billion dollars — we create 31,700 new jobs for U.S. workers."

Chartier is chairing a Blue Ribbon Committee — of approximately 35 members — composed of leaders representing every major segment of U.S. agriculture.

Their job will be to oversee the development of a "Blueprint for Export Expansion" that includes specific recommendations for maximum feasible expansion of U.S. farm exports between now and 1990.

Representation on the Blue Ribbon Committee includes prominent leaders from throughout agriculture, industry and government. Members include three former Secretaries of Agriculture, a Governor, the Chairman of the House export Task Force, the Co-Chairman of the Senate Export Caucus and the farmer-elected heads of every major U.S. commodity promotion group.

"To the best of our knowledge, this is the first time that such a group has been assembled to develop a comprehensive private sector plan," Chartier continued.

The Committee will hold its first meeting on September 30th and October 1st at the U.S. Capitol. A first draft of the "Blueprint" will be presented by a project Steering Committee which is being co-chaired by Tom Hughes, Administrator of the Foreign Agricultural Service and Darvin Stolte, President of the U.S. Feed Grains Council.

The first draft of the plan will be distributed extensively by Members of Congress who will be invited to name prominent, constituents to serve on a National Task Force on Farm Export Expansion. Each person named will receive a copy of the draft report and an opportunity to respond individually to the tentative recommendations.

All responses to the first draft plan will be considered in a second draft to be presented at a National Conference on Farm Export Expansion scheduled for February 9 to 11, 1981 in Washington, D.C.

Following the conference, important features of the plan will be presented in an extensive public education program. Efforts will focus on reaching audiences in major urban centers across the country.

"It makes no sense that the United States, as the world's leading farm exporter, has no plan — in fact has never had a comprehensive plan — for promoting its agricultural products in world markets," Chartier concluded. "By working together and pursuing these opportunities aggressively, we believe we can more than double farm exports by 1985, and triple them by 1990."

Classification discussed at Ranck farm

BY SUSAN KAUFFMAN
Staff Correspondent

WAKEFIELD — "Since January of this year, every area has increased from fifteen to thirty-two per cent in numbers of animals being classified," said Holstein Association classifier William Hill, Jr. at the second of two barn meetings held this last week in Lancaster County.

The local barn meetings were planned by the county association to occur during the first week of the classifying schedule for herds at Eastern Pennsylvania. In all a total of twenty-nine classifiers will be working in the area for the next few weeks analyzing over 45,000 animals in some 900 herds.

Classifying, for those farmers who elect to participate, occurs every fifteen months at present. Classifier Hill explained the classification categories to the group which gathered at Jay Ranck's farm near Wakefield last Wednesday evening.

Hill, who has had a long history of working with cattle judging and showing, has been classifying one year with the Holstein Association. Immediately at the outset of his presentation Hill said classification to him was not the "Show ring" kind of thing. "I look for type and dairyness and longevity. Above all I look for functional udders which will hold up for many years. Teat placement and udder attachment paired with desirable legs and feet are what dairymen should be working for, he added.

Both Hill and state field representative Clarence Stauffer emphasized the use of classification as a tool to be used by the individual dairyman to upgrade his herd by chosing bulls to improve feet, legs, rump and udder. Classifying can also help the dairyman market his animals with more favorable economic or pricing criteria.

To assist better pricing of valuing of animals, Stauffer advised getting the pedigree packet from the Association as well. "This is the biggest bargain the Association has to offer," Stauffer said. For three dollars a cow, the dairyman can order the printed pedigree at classification time and then use it to evaluate a marketing price for his animals on a highly competitive basis.

Another program the Association offers is the Herd Builder service which helps in picking out bulls to help improve the existing herd by using data from recent classification results. The dairyman makes the final decisions on what bulls to use.

Several comments during the evening meeting centered around sire summaries, their data, prices to pay for semen and better selection on the part of the individual dairyman.

A possible nine-month classification schedule rather than the longer fifteen month interval now in effect could effect bull proofs in the future. "Stauffer said too many two year olds who do not stay in a herd because of low test or other culling qualities never get classified so bull proofs are missing these animals in the data.

Stauffer posed the question, "What is too expensive when you talk about choosing a bull?" He suggested that a rule of thumb might be the price the farmer receives for a veal calf at market. He said two units of semen per cow is the average to get a calf. Therefore, with present market rates what they are, forty dollars per semen unit is not too expensive, Stauffer said. He added that animals with better pedigrees continue to increase in market value so it depends what the dairyman wants the calf for. If he wants to sell stock, the better the bull the higher the market price.

Stauffer also advised the group that bulls with forty and fifty per cent repeatability should be picked like young sires. Get a three generation pedigree to help in selection rather than base selection upon production of only a few daughters, he said.

Classifier Hill said the recent increase in classification of herds is a direct result of the economic advantage of working with and marketing animals with the paperwork from classification and pedigree.

Sheila's Shorts

By Sheila Miller

Puzzling results.

In my August 30 column, I ran a request from R.G. Rauhauser, Box 766 Thomasville, PA 17364 for help in solving a puzzle.

Since that time, I have received two letters where folks have written in with advice on how to get the contraption apart.

As a matter of fact, one of our Lancaster Farming employees read the column and brought in the gadget for me to see — and to tempt me into picking it up and trying to solve it.

Let me first share with R.G. and the rest of our readers the letters on how to solve the puzzle. Then I'm going to tackle this heap of rings and wood all pieced together with leather ... even if it takes me all week.

Here's a letter from Nancy A. Fay, 2829 Egypt Road, Norristown, PA. She writes:

I believe I can solve the puzzle described in Lancaster Farming. I have been a victim of this little monster in the past, but I think I have mastered it.

In the drawing, the puzzle is shown with 8 rings and the puzzle I have only has 7. But it really makes no difference once you find the pattern for taking the rings off.

It helps if you hold the large horizontal loop in your right hand, sliding it back and forth and working the rings with your left hand.

Start with ring 2. Bring unattached end up over end of large loop so the ring rests above the bars of the large loop. Then slip the ring sideways down through the loop so the entire ring is below the bars of the large loop.

Do the same thing with ring 1 so both rings are below the large loop.

Then slide the large loop back and remove ring 4 the same as you did ring 2. Now you have rings 1,2, and 4 below the large loop.

Pick up rings 1 and 2 by slipping them sideways up through the large loop and dropping unattached ends over the end of the large loop. Now only ring 4 is down.

Drop ring 1, then ring 3. Pick up ring 1 and drop rings 2 and 1. Now the first four rings are down — and that's the easy part.

Drop ring 6 and pick up rings 1 and 2; drop ring 1, pick up ring 3; pick up ring 1, drop rings 1 and 2; pick up ring 4, pick up rings 1 and 2, drop ring 1, drop ring 3; pick up ring 1 and drop rings 1 and 2, drop ring 5; pick up ring 1 and 2, drop ring 1 and pick up ring 3; pick up ring 1, drop rings 1 and 2, drop ring 4; pick up rings 1 and 2, drop ring 1, drop ring 3; pick up ring 1, drop rings 1 and 2, and drop ring 8.

Obviously to get the last ring is most difficult and time consuming, If anyone comes up with a short cut, please enlighten me.

Okay, from drop ring 8, here's is the last step in solving the puzzle. I'm going to abbreviate drop as "D" and pick up as "P", followed by the ring numbers to make the directions easier.

Here goes — P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, P4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, P5, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, D4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, P6, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, P4, P1&2.

Now all but ring 8 are on the loop. From here — D1, D3, P1, D1&2, D5, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, D4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, D7, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, P4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, P5, P1&2, D1, P3, P1.

Rings 7 and 8 are off. It's a piece of cake from here — D1&2, D4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, D6, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, P4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2, D5, P1&2, D1, P3, P1, D1&2, D4, P1&2, D1, D3, P1, D1&2.

You have now taken the puzzle apart. If you've been able to follow this, it's like knitting. The pattern comes through — really.

If you've gotten this far and you want to put it back together, it's a little easier ... but not much.

To get ring 8 on, start with 2 and work all rings on. You still have to drop and pick up everything about 8 times until ring 8 is on.

Then start with ring 1 to get ring 7 on, then 2 to get ring 6, 1 to get ring 5 and from 4 down, it's easy.

As I said before, if there are any quicker ways to do this, I'd like to know. But then again, there aren't any short cuts for knit 1, purl 2 are there?

(Thanks, Nancy, for the directions. Let's hope no one mistakes these for a pattern for an afghan or sweater — can you imagine what that would look like!)

Next we have a letter from John W. Foster, Sr. R3 Foster Road, Middletown, N.Y., who writes:

This is a very old puzzle in the same category as scrimshaw to a seaman — something to pass the time before the advent of television. This type of puzzle has passed down through our family for several generations.

Now, the way to get it apart is to count the number of rings — in your case 8. This is an even number.

Drop off 1 and 2 and 4. Replace 1 and 2. Drop off 1 and 3. Replace 1. Drop off 1 and 2. 6 is now able to be dropped off.

Replace all except 6. This leaves an odd number. Drop off 1 and 3. Replace 1 and 2. Drop off 1, 2, and 5. Replace 1,2,3,4. Drop off 1,2,and 4. Replace 1 and 2. Drop off 3.

Now repeat for 7 and 8 by dropping 8, replacing all back. Then drop 7, replacing all back. Then 6, and so on.

I've seen a couple of guys remove and replace an 8 ring unit in about a minute and a half.

Just a bit of a side line — my dad was a machinist during the time of the depression, the men in the machine shops used to make up these puzzles as a way to occupy their spare time. Dad told me that one fellow made one up that had 50 rings and took about 3 hours to take apart.

Also, in one of the old houses in this area, there was one of these puzzles on a mantle for well over 100 years. Everyone had tried to take it apart but no one could. Dad had occassion to be at the house and showed the owner the "key". I've often wondered if they remember it.

As you can see I've not given the whole instructions. But I'm sure that I've given enough for most any one to figure out the "impossible puzzle."

(Thanks, Mr. Foster for the most interesting story and directions. Don't be too sure though that they were enough for this "someone" to solve the puzzle. I may be at this for weeks!)

Anyone else have a problem or a question that need's an answer? Send it in to Sheila's Shorts and I'll see if I can help.

The Milk Check

TOM JURCHAK
County Agent

BROKEN RECORDS

August statistics in Order 2 were full of broken records - some good and some bad.

The one you'll enjoy the most is a 53 cent jump to a new record high blend price of $13.01. This was 37 cents better than the previous record set in October of last year. And this is only August. Imagine what you have to look forward to this Fall!

You accomplished this with a record high Class II price of $11.96 and a record low Class I utilization (for August) of 42.2 per cent.

You got that low Class I utilization as a result of 18 consecutive months of production increases compared to the same month of the previous year. So after 18 months, you have six months of increases on top of increases.

August production of 861 million pounds was the highest for the month in Order 2 since 1973 and Class I sales were the lowest since 1956. For the month of August you produced a million pounds of milk a day more than last year and sold 300,000 pounds of fluid milk a day less than last year.

Isn't it nice that with all these increases in production and a record low Class I utilization you end up with a record high blend price and the promise of more to come?

HOW COME?

The first thing you can cut away from that $13.01 August blend price is 36 cents that came from the Louisville Plan money that you put in last Spring. That already drops the $13.01 to $12.65.

That Class II price of $11.96 had a ten cent seasonal differential in it and really was only $11.86. With 58 per cent of your milk going to Class II, that would have reduced your blend to $12.59 which was the "real" price in Order 2 for August milk.

Compared to $12.48 for July milk that's only 11 cents more than last month not 53 cents more.

Admittedly, these figures aren't precise but the 11 cent increase over last month more nearly reflects the change in the market situation than the 53 cents increase. It also more nearly reflects your "real" income from milk.

On the average, your milk check was higher in August than July, but when you take away all the "trimmings" your production dropped 6.7 per cent and your "real" price went up only one per cent. So your "real" gross income was less in August than it was in July.

All of these adjustments revolve around the Louisville Plan and the seasonal adjustments to the Class II price. They have been part of Order 2 for a long time and were included with the consent of the producers in a worthy effort to facilitate the marketing of your milk.

You should understand how they work as well as why they are used so you can distinguish price changes induced by order provisions from price changes induced by marketing conditions.

Dairy foundation honors researcher

BLACKSBURG, Va. — Elmer H. Marth, Ph.D., Professor of Food Science and Bacteriology at the University of Wisconsin, is the recipient of the 1980 Dairy Research Foundation Award. He was presented with a plaque and $1000 check Tuesday at the 75th annual meeting of American Dairy Science Association at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University, Blacksburg.

The award, which honors outstanding scientific contributions to the dairy industry, was presented by William W. Menz, vice president, product research, Dairy Research Inc.

Marth is a food microbiologist who has studied bacteria and fungi in dairy products and other foods. Currently he is conducting research into factors affecting the formation and fate of aflatoxins in milk and dairy products and methods of controlling the fungi that produce them. He has developed a procedure using bisulfate to inactivate aflatoxins. Marth also is studying the influence on cheese yields of psychrotrophic bacteria in milk. Psychrotrophic bacteria are both cold- and heat-resistant.

The researcher received his B.S., M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in bacteriology from the University of Wisconsin, where he served on the Department of Bacteriology staff for several years. # Ask the VMD

Leon Riegel Tim Trayer Edgar Sheaffer

If you have a question you would like answered by the team from Valley Animal Hospital, send it to Ask the VMD, Box 366, Lititz, Pa. 17543. Questions will be kept anonymous on request.

Colt castration, a question of cutting.

A reader asks:

Why can't the basic horseman or farmer castrate the new born colt while the testes are down during its first several days?

We used to want to wait and see if the colt would make an outstanding stallion. We wanted to put a husky neck on the animal, so we would wait until he was two or three years old before we would castrate him.

Now we are sweating necks to thin them up. Stallions are a dime a dozen and the vet wants $50 to cut them.

I think a 1980 management decision would be forth coming. Why not cut the colt during the first 10 days with a razor blade?

John Liggett
197 Smoketown Road
Lewisburg, PA

Dr. Sheaffer comments:

I am not in favor of castrating infant colts with a razor blade.

Testicles in a young horse are not always properly descended so early in life. And, there is a problem with controlling hemmorhage. It is often difficult to ligate or crimp the vessels in the cord.

The presence of male hormones, primarily testosterone, in the normal growth process is important in the development of healthy muscle and bone. Withdrawing the hormone at such an early age will usually result in smaller, effeminate body structure.

It is difficult to sterilize properly a razor blade or pocket knife. I believe that when surgery is performed on an animal the right sterilized surgical instruments should be used.

Surgical procedure on a two or three year old is much safer than on an infant colt. A two year old's testicles are generally better developed, structures are more easily defined, and they are descended through the canal in a more definite way.

Under developed or partially descended testicles are more difficult to remove completely. Occasionally it takes from 24 to 30 months before complete development of the testicles takes place.

In conclusion, have your veterinarian examine your colt to determine when is the best time for castration. Let the colt mature at least to eighteen or twenty-four months of age before putting the knife to him.

Senate approves bill to expand crop insurance

WASHINGTON, D.C. — The Senate Monday approved and sent to the House a House-Senate conference bill to make compreshensive crop insurance available to all farmers and on all major crops throughout the Nation.

Sen. Herman E. Talmadge, chairman of the Senate Committee on Agriculture, Nutrition, and Forestry, said the expanded crop insurance program is urgently needed to provide farmers with adequate protection against losses from natural disasters, such as the extended drought that continues to grip much of the southern and southwestern parts of the country.

The new all-risk, all-crop insurance program will be phased into place over a period of time starting with 1981 crops.

"The protection the existing programs provide often is insufficient or nonexistent to meet emergencies when and where they arise," Talmadge said. "The present federal crop insurance program is now available in only about half the Nation's counties and on only 26 crops. In Georgia, only 61 of the state's 159 counties are included in the existing crop insurance program."

"It makes no sense to me – and it makes no sense to farmers affected – that this insurance protection is available to some and not to others, even when they may be neighbors operating farms side-by-side divided ony by a county line," he said.

The measure approved by the Senate extends the present limited Federal crop insurance coverage to all counties and to all major crops and would increase the capitalization of the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation form $200 to $500 million.

Federal crop insurance protecting against loss in yield must make available to farmers coverage for 75 percent of normal yield and lesser levels including a yield coverage of 50 percent. Under the insurance program, the Federal government would, in general, pay 30 percent of participating farmers' premiums on that portion of each policy insuring up to a maximum of 65 percent of yield. Indemnity payments would be based on the projected market price.

The bill includes a number of provisions designed to assure that the private insurance industry will have the opportunity to participate in the expanded, all-risk crop insurance program. The bill would authorize private companies and agents to participate in the program if approved by the Federal Crop Insurance Corporation. The Federal premium subsidy would apply to all-risk privately written insurance that is reinsured by the government, as well as to coverage provided directly by the government.

In addition, the conference bill gives farmers the option of eliminating hail and fire coverage from their Federal policies and substituting coverage from private firms. Where this is done, the premium charge on the Federal policy would be reduced by amounts ranging from 15 to 30 percent, depending on rates for private insurance in individual areas, to offset the reduced coverage.

Grange asks price boost for Area 1, Zone 2 milk

DOWNINGTON — Citing the drought conditions most farmers within Chester, Montgomery, and Bucks Counties have been facing this summer, Charles E. Wismer, Master of the Pennsylvania State Grange, called on the Milk Marketing Board to increase producer prices for milk at the Area 1, Zone 2 milk hearings, in Downingtown last Wednesday.

"Over the next 12 months," Wismer said, "dairy farmers in this area will be faced with coping with the added expense of carrying on normal operations after coming through one of the worst droughts we've faced in 20 years."

The Montgomery County dairy farmer noted the drought was not yet over, and there is no guarantee it will soon end.

Wismer asked that if it did continue, the Milk Marketing Board might consider temporarily increasing milk producer prices to compensate for lost profits from corn and other roughage production.

He noted producer prices were increased temporarily in the early Sixties during another bad drought. The term of the price increase was three months.

Wismer's other remarks at the milk hearing included a commendation to the Milk Marketing Board, and a suggestion to change the pricing formula.

His commendation was directed at the Board for "using the Federal Order No. 4 prices to establish minimum producer prices" in the Area.

"We believe this pricing method to be the best available at this time," Wismer said. "However, the National Milk Producers Federation recently questioned the accuracy of the Minnesota-Wisconsin Pricing Formula, in light of today's economy.

"The problem with the formula is that the number of condensaries since the formula's drafting has been greatly reduced. This brings to light some questions concerning the accuracy of the prices derived from it," he said.

He did not offer any alternatives to the present pricing formula, saying the matter would be under consideration by the State Grange Dairy Committee.

Walebe farms finishes second

Bebe sets two records in Jersey production contest

COLUMBUS, Ohio — Crystal M. Acomb, Stafford, N.Y., and her cow, Ogston Generator Bebe, set two records for the National Jersey Pot O'Gold Production Contest, sponsored by The American Jersey Cattle Club, Columbus, Ohio.

Finishing second was Walebe T. Banner Dina, owned by Tracy Wiepert, Ransomville, N.Y. and consigned by Cynthia Waltemyer, Walebe Farms, Collegeville.

Dina had a record of 15,819 pounds milk and 762 fat. Dollar value of the record was $1834.38.

Competing in the 1980 contest, Bebe set an all-time high record for 305-day production, both actual and m.e., in the twenty-year history of the contest.

Calving at one year and 10 months of age, she produced 19,866 pounds milk and 907 pounds fat with an m.e. of 27,018 pounds milk and 1206 pounds fat. The dollar value of this record totaled $3477.22.

Crystal, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Acomb, will receive the largest award ever presented to a Pot O'Gold winner, $2,568.13. The presentation will take place just prior to the 1980 Pot O'Gold Sale on November 8 in Louisville, Ky.

Crystal purchased her animal as a heifer in the 1977 Pot O'Gold sale from John Bishop VI, Ogston, Columbus, N.J.

The Pot O'Gold Production Contest encourages 4-H and FFA members to develop and test outstanding Registered Jerseys.

Each year 18 Jersey heifers are sold in the sale, held in conjunction with the All American Jersey Show. Twenty-five percent of the sale gross is put into a fund to be awarded to the production contest winners.

The juniors must own their animals through the cows' 2-yr.-old lactation. The winner among the animals that complete a record within the contests' time limits is determined by figuring the dollar value of the milk produced. This dollar value is based on the USDA average price for milk and butterfat differential in effect on December 31, 1979.

The Pot O'Gold Production Contest is just one of the many programs sponsored by The American Jersey Cattle Club to encourage youth participation in the Registered Jersey business. A complete brochure on AJCC Youth Programs is available by writing The American Jersey Cattle Club, P.O. Box 27310, Columbus.

State gypsy moth defoliation predicted at 1 million acres

HARRISBURG — The gypsy moth, that blue and red spotted caterpillar with a voracious appetite, chewed its way through 440,500 acres of Pennsylvania's forests this year and is expected to defoliate more than one million acres in 1981.

James C. Nichols, chief of the Division of Forest Pest Management, Department of Environmental Resources, said defoliation in the commonwealth increased tremendously this year, compared to the 8500 acres affected during 1979.

"This year," said Nichols, "has actually been the worst year on record for the northeastern United States, a record which goes back 111 years. Much of New England was defoliated, along with an estimated 2.5 million acres in New York state.

"Pennsylvania is lagging about a year behind the northeastern outbreak," added Nichols, conservatively estimating between one and two million acres will be defoliated in the commonwealth next year.

"The rapidity and intensity of this resurgence, after 1979's low levels, were unexpected in so short a time. The exact reasons for this revival are open to conjecture," he said.

"In Pennsylvania, we know that the tremendous parasite populations which brought about the 1978-79 gypsy moth collapse were decimated by the lack of host material.

"Also, the mild winter may have been a determining factor in the survival of the gypsy moth.

"Next year the Poconos again will experience serious problems and several new counties have been designated as problem areas: Blair, Clearfield, Delaware, Huntingdon, Susquehanna, Wyoming and even Fairmount Park in Philadelphia.

"Problems also will occur next year in Bradford and Tioga counties, and there are possibilities that Bedford, Fulton, Franklin and Cambria counties also will feel the effects of the gypsy moth."

Nichols pointed out that spraying requests for 1981 from county and forest districts, based on the guidelines established for the county-state-federal cooperative program for gypsy moth control in high-use forested areas, are due by October 1.

He expects these requests to be in the neighborhood of 150,000 acres but said funds are available for treating only about 25,000 acres, the same as in 1980.

DER's Forest Pest Management Division plans for next year will be outlined during a public meeting scheduled for September 30 in the division's conference room, 34 Airport Drive, Harrisburg International Airport, Middletown. The meeting will begin at 10 a.m.

The meeting is being sponsored by the U.S. Department of Agriculture Forest Service, to hear comments relating to gypsy moth suppression and regulatory activities planned by DER and USDA's Animal and Plant Health Inspection Service.

It will not be a forum for debating the issues. All statements, both oral and written, must be related to the proposed plans for 1981.

Topics to be discussed by DER and APHIS representatives will cover the human health effects of insecticides, public notification prior to the insecticide application, the effect of insecticides on wildlife, safeguards employed in aerial spraying, and the environmental effects of insecticide applications.

Persons who cannot attend the meeting may submit written input to the USDA Forest Service, 370 Reed Road, Broomall, Pa., 19008, by October 30. Written statements will be given the same consideration as oral presentations made during the meeting.

Information derived during the meeting and from written input will be used by the Forest Service in the development of an environmental analysis of proposed 1981 gypsy moth suppression in Pennsylvania.

Foreign ag trade seen as major state business

HARRISBURG — Pennsylvania Agriculture Secretary Penrose Hallowell last Friday said foreign agricultural trade has become a major industry in the Pennsylvania economy.

Hallowell told more than 40 export exhibitors participating in an Agriculture and Food Exposition in Philadelphia, "You are on the leading edge of an industry that is growing better by leaps and bounds. This year marks the 11th consecutive year of record food and farm exports.

"The agricultural export field has grown up in Pennsylvania and the northeastern United States to the point where it is a part of the regular marketing system, not just a means to dispose of surplus foods."

As vice-president of EUSAFEC (Eastern United States Agriculture and Food Export Council), Hallowell was hosting the exposition. Representatives of 15 Japanese firms were in Philadelphia on a buying mission which includes the one-day exposition at the Holiday Inn-City Line Avenue.

Japan is a major customer for U.S. agricultural and food products, annually importing $4 billion in U.S. commodities for its 115 million consumers.

The Japanese buyers will make three other stops while in the United States: in Houston, Kansas City and seattle. They are interested in the full line of food and agricultural products, including fresh, frozen and canned dairy products, snack items, processed foods, feedstuffs and grains.

"Agricultural exports are predicted to reach $40 billion in 1980," Hallowell said, "and to provide a national trade balance of $22.5 billion."

Pennsylvania's share of the agricultural export market is increasing and should top $200 million for the first time this year.

The Agriculture Secretary said farm and food exports increased by 20 percent in 1979, and noted that a similar increase this year could provide jobs for 2,000 Pennsylvanians.

"Economic development is a top priority of the Thornburgh Administration, and agricultural exports can play an important part in development of our agribusiness economy," he said.

"As an agricultural state and a food processing and marketing center, Pennsylvania is in an excellent position to help fill the needs of potential foreign customers. We have the farm production capabilities, the capital and the know-how. We have the marketing, transportation and port facilities. We can be a reliable source of farm and food products for the export market," he said.

"I expect Pennsylvania's agribusiness enterprises will continue to expand."

The Japanese Buying Mission and the Agriculture and Food Exposition are being sponsored by EUSAFEC, the Foreign Agricultural Service and the Pennsylvania Department of Agriculture.

Checker™ Gilts

The all important other half

Half your income potential comes from the gilts you farrow. That's why Checker™ Gilts are bred to lower your feed costs and at the same time increase your pork production. They're bred to farrow big litters of fast gaining market hogs.

Each Checker Gilt is raised under one of the industry's most comprehensive health programs.

Kleen Leen health measures include

- Raising all Checker Gilts in isolation to prevent outside contamination.
- Slaughter checking all production herds at least three times a year.
- Vaccinating every production herd for Leptospirosis and Erysipelas, and validating them Brucellosis free.
- Checker Gilts are delivered to you in a clean, sanitized truck.

Kleen Leen's unequaled health program

Every effort is made to insure the good health of the Kleen Leen breeding stock arriving on your farm. Here are some of the steps Kleen Leen takes:

- Artificial insemination is used to introduce new bloodlines into the Kleen Leen program.
- Production herds are kept as isolated as possible to prevent contamination from outside sources.
- Each production herd undergoes pre and post slaughter examination at least three times a year.
- The breeding stock you receive arrives on your farm in a clean, sanitized truck.

The Kleen Leen Health Warranty

"All Kleen Leen stock is delivered free of Lice, Swine Dysentery, Infectious Atrophic Rhinitis and Mycoplasma Pneumonia."

Inside a Kleen Leen hog

Lungs show no evidence of mycoplasma pneumonia, or parasite damage

Turbinates in the nose filter air properly helping to prevent secondary lung infections

Liver and intestinal tract show no indication of excessive parasite damage

Some comments from hog producers who bought Checker Gilts

Richard Roeth and son Jeff
Troy, Ohio

Richard Roeth was running about 80 sows He sold out, cleaned up and repopulated with Kleen Leen . 2 groups of 25 and 1 group of 30, plus 4 Blackline Boars Since then he has bought nothing but Kleen Leen boars and gilts Richard says, "I feel that health, genetic improvement and the availability of gilts and boars through the Purina Dealer are the best reasons to buy Kleen Leen "

Ron DeBruin
Leighton, Iowa

"I had good length in my hogs at home but wanted to increase my quality of meat type hogs faster So I bought Kleen Leen boars and gilts for that reason (Kleen Leen) animals showed good bone and muscle structure on delivery, and have continued to develop well "

Glenn DeVries
Gowrie, Iowa

" when Landrace became available, I bought 14 of them to breed with my Checker™ Boars Talk about performance! We farrowed 145 live and healthy pigs from those 14 gilts I'm one happy pork producer who is sold on Kleen Leen and the Purina feeding program Let me say thank you for making such a breeding program available I recommend Kleen Leen to everyone."
